

Gallery features photographic duo

The Gallery Above The Silver Lining Boutique will feature Patrice Lampton and Stephen Jones with their extraordinary photography of nature.

"Their photographs bring you so close to the natural world you will feel transported to each and every location," said Kimberly Fleenor, owner of Silver Lining. "You can almost smell the ozone from the clouds and rain, you can feel the warmth of the subtle sun, you can hear the multitude of drops from the amazing creeks and waterfalls."

A champagne reception will be on the Second Saturday Artwalk, Sept. 10, between 3 and 5 p.m.

"These photos truly exemplify the physical experience of actually being in these spots they have captured on film and canvas," said Fleenor.

Lampton and Jones moved from Portland to Florence three years ago, enjoying hiking, kayaking and photographing the serenity and beauty of the area.

Jones is a veteran photo-journalist, educator, wedding, commercial and documentary photographer. He also enjoys playing guitar and drinking really dark coffee.

Lampton joined Jones 17 years ago and quickly became a full-time shooting partner. She is an accomplished photographic storyteller, an internationally published author, lecturer and artist. She is also managing editor of Aaronstadt Studios, the company started by the couple in 2001.

In Portland, their studio was a major player in the wedding photography market, averaging 45 to 65 weddings a year. Also, when they found time, they assisted managing four other two-person teams.

"They are both dedicated, diligent, creative and exceedingly busy artists," said Fleenor. "I am honored that they have carved out the time to share their enormous body of work with us."

Although they still shoot weddings, Jones and Lampton admit to being more enamored with the natural beauty surrounding them every day in Florence.

"I encourage everyone to come enjoy this special and spectacular show being offered throughout the month of September," said Fleenor.
