Recycle program accepting applications

Lane County Waste Management Division is offering a free course this spring that provides comprehensive training in local solid waste issues. Hear from local experts, tour local facilities and learn why things are or are not recyclable.

The Waste Management Division hosts this course to help Lane County residents and businesses reduce, reuse, recycle and rethink waste habits.

Applications are available at www.lanecounty.org/mas or by calling 541-682-2059.

Completed applications may be submitted by fax, email or regular mail.

The Master Recycler training course includes 35 hours of classroom instruction: nine consecutive Tuesday evening classes, a Saturday compost demonstration and two Saturday multi-site field trips to area solid waste and recycling sites. Instructors are local experts in solid waste from business, government and non-profit sectors.

The course is free for those who volunteer 30 hours to educate and assist their communities in the year following the training. Those who do not wish to volunteer may pay a small fee.

More than 850 Lane County master recyclers have contributed more than 37,500 hours of education and assistance to local citizens and businesses since the program began in 2000.

In addition to attending class sessions and tours with local experts, all participants enroll in Recycling 101 online. The R101 course was developed for and by Oregon's recycling industry. Normally valued at $50 to $75, R101 is free for Lane County Master Recycler students.

In Florence, classes will be held Fridays from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. beginning Jan. 13, 2017, and continue through March 10, 2017, at the Lane Community College Florence Center, 3149 Oak St.

Library to host talk on carcinogenesis

The Siuslaw Public Library begins its exciting October adult programming schedule with the appearance of Dr. Charles M. King, an expert in the field of carcinogenesis.

The study of carcinogenesis (the production of cancer) has been King's life-long focus. The retired scientist will speak on this topic Tuesday, Oct. 4, at 1 p.m., in the Bromley Room at the library's main branch in Florence.

King, who has published numerous scientific papers on the topic of carcinogenesis, has spent his career researching the genesis of tumors with the goal of "providing insight into the molecular mechanisms responsible for the formation of tumors."

He is dedicated to ensuring the public has access to accurate information on the causes of cancer. King will explain what cancer and carcinogens are as well as answer questions about cancer, such as what causes cancer and whether too much of anything will give you can-appointee of the National Cancer Institute (NCI).

For nearly two decades, before he retired in 1995, King headed the Carcinogenesis Programs of the NCI-designated Comprehensive Cancer Center of Metropolitan Detroit and the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

He was also a Professor of biochemistry at Wayne State University. This is just a highlight of the impressive list of research and professional positions held by King.

This program will interest anyone who has questions about cancer, has been touched by cancer or has had family members who have suffered from the disease.

The program will shed light on the disease, its causes and offer suggestions to aid in solving the problem of the formation of cancer cells.

For more information about the program, visit the Siuslaw Public Library in person, call 541-997-3132 or visit the library's website at www.siuslawlibrary.org.

Dear Ones,

The curtain is down it's time to call it a day. What a pleasure it has been. I would have preferred an extended engagement. Oh Well!

Please take good care and I'll be seeing you.

Best Love Always.
