Michelle Holman to speak at next City Club meeting

Michelle Holman has lived in Western Lane County's Coast Range (Deadwood) for more than 30 years and has been active in the anti-herbicide struggle since the late 1970's.

After many years of her community's unsuccessful fight to stop government-protected aerial spraying of toxic chemicals by private logging companies, she renounced traditional activism and joined the Community Rights Movement.

She has served on the Mapleton School Board for 25 years, where 20 years ago, the school district stopped using toxic chemicals on school grounds.

She will speak about her experiences and Community Rights Lane County at the next City Club of Florence meeting on Friday, Dec. 2, from noon to 1 p.m., with optional Q & A for the last 10 to 15 minutes.

The City Club meeting will be at the Ocean Dunes Golf Links Club House, off Munsel Lake Road, from 11:30 a.m. to noon for lunch.

To make a lunch reservation, contact Ruth Baumrucker at 541-305-9003 or email socialpollinator@gmail.com.

Community raises 11,111 pounds of food

Annual Pounding brings together donations for Florence Food Share

Florence Grocery Outlet and KCST Coast Radio sponsored the Annual Pounding for Florence Food Share on Saturday, hosted by event co-founder Cindy Wobbe. From 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., community members brought in donations of cash, canned goods, frozen turkeys, ham, milk, eggs, treats and pantry staples to fill the warehouse at Florence Food Share. The day totalled a record-breaking 11,111 pounds of food — an amount that will be matched, dollar for pound, by an anonymous donor. According to Wobbe, $10,000 allows Food Share to purchase 650,000 pounds of food from Food for Lane County and goes to support the costs of running the nonprofit Food Share. Director Norma Barton said, "I have a ton of gratitude for Cindy Wobbe, Wayne Sharpe and Woody Woodbury for helping over the years and so much. I'm especially thankful for our volunteers, staff and board for putting in so much work. The community did an amazing job." The giving season is not over, however — Florence Food Share's annual Empty Bowls Fundraiser will be at the Florence Events Center next weekend. For more information and more ways to donate or get involved, now and throughout the year, go to www.florencefoodshare.org.

Baha'i members to present Chilean slideshow

Members of the Florence Baha'i community, Paul and Frances Klippel, will be presenting a slideshow and information about their recent trip to Chile on Saturday, Nov. 26, beginning at 2 p.m., in the Bromley room at the Siuslaw Public Library.

The Klippels traveled to Santiago, Chile, to attend a historic world event: the dedication of the Baha'i House of Worship for the continent of South America.

This dedication is the culmination of a 100-year effort to build Baha'i Houses of Worship on each continent.

This goal was realized Oct. 13, in Penanolen, located on the outskirts of Santiago, Chile, at the base of the Andes Mountains.

The dedication of the seventh and final House of Worship took place with 5,000 Baha'is from 130 countries celebrating the invitation-only, three-day event.

The Klippels will be sharing and weaving story, videos and photos of cultural highlights of the dedication, aspects of the beautiful nine-sided dome architecture, unique materials used, and the unifying, sacred spirit these Houses of Worship represent.

Baha'is also symbolize worship and service, two vital parts of human life, and Baha'i Houses are open to people of all religious and non-religious backgrounds.

At the center of these Temples is the heart of the oneness of humanity.
