The last time the Sailors and Pirates faced off, it proved to be the lowest-scoring game of the season for both teams, with the Sailors walking away with a narrow 9-point 20-29 loss.

Thursday night during the rematch, the margin was even slimmer as the Sailors and Pirates traded baskets much like ships at sea trading cannon fire.

Mapleton came out quickly to nab what would be the biggest lead of the game after winning the tipoff and then scoring the first 7 points off of rebounding from freshman post Nathaniel Neece and junior Dominic Wells.

Marshfield called a time out to regroup, then came back to negate the Sailors' zone defense by draining a series of 3-pointers to tie the game 9-9

Even without a winning record to boast of, the Lady Sailors can feel good about the measure of improvement they showed during Thursday night's non-league home game against the Far West League's 4A Marshfield JV team.

"We played a lot more aggressively than we did against them earlier in the season and kept up with Marshfield very well," said Mapleton coach Mike Murray. "Our confidence is building a little at a time."
