

Kitchen Craft delights audiences by demonstrating the unique features of their top-quality waterless cookware and offering tasty food samples. Kitchen Craft’s American-made stainless steel cookware is not available in retail stores and can be purchased only through live demonstrations at over 4,000 events throughout the United States and Canada. These events include such venues as Home Shows, County and State Fairs, Festivals, Women’s Shows, Hunting and Outdoor Shows as well as RV Rallies.

During the cooking show a professionally trained chef demonstrates the waterless cooking technique that earned the brand the title of “The Original Waterless Cookware.” Audience members experience first hand that healthy meals can be delicious without spending hours in the kitchen.

Stack cooking is one of the features that bring “oohs and aahs” from cooking show audiences. Kitchen Craft is constructed so that the smaller pots can be stacked on top of the larger ones.

An entire meal can be cooked on one burner with the foods that require a longer cooking time on the bottom of the stack, working up to the foods that require a shorter cooking time on top.

This technique reduces the amount of energy needed to cook dinner, and it eliminates the need to “shuffle” pots and pans on the stovetop when preparing a large meal.

Each purchase from Kitchen

Craft is backed by a lifetime warranty. Advanced engineering and skilled craftsmanship is combined at their Green-e Certified factory to create cookware designed for lasting beauty and durability.

A unique manufacturing process merges multiple layers of metal together to create cookware that heats evenly with no hotspots. The secret to the “Waterless Cooking,” in addition to the stainless steel construction, is the specially designed Vapor Seal cover, which creates a watertight seal, preventing the food’s natural moisture from evaporating. This reduces or eliminates the need to add water, oil or grease when cooking. No oils, no fats, no boiling!

Foods cook naturally in a complete circle of heat and there is no escape of food nutrients.

Flavor and color are preserved, shrinkage and odor are reduced, the maximum amount of minerals and vitamins are retained, and the product saves cooks time and money over conventional cooking. As Americans return to their homes to prepare wholesome and healthy meals for their families, Kitchen Craft considers it an honor to be part of that revolution.

Kitchen Craft is proud to be 100 percent American Made, using Green Manufacturing, and of their old fashioned ideals. It operates daily with a mission to get families back to the dinner table.

Face Rock Creamery

Face Rock Creamery is an award-winning cheddar creamery in Bandon, Ore., on the beautiful Southern Oregon Coast. Founded in May 2013, Face Rock Creamery has been gaining national acclaim and followers with its wonderful handmade cheeses.

Specializing in cheddar, Face Rock Creamery believes in a classic approach to cheese making where things are done the old fashioned way, and nothing artificial or unnecessary is ever added. We are all-natural, non-GMO, gluten and rBst free.

Cheddar cheese has been made for centuries, and Face Rock Creamery honors this tradition and heritage with each curd it produces.

Artful attention to detail in the craft of cheese making has paid off, as Face Rock Creamery has been honored with two American Cheese Society first place blue ribbons in our first two years of business. This is the highest honor in cheese making, and testimony to the quality of our cheese.

We are open seven days a week year round at Face Rock Creamery, 680 Second St. SE, Bandon.

At the creamery, we offer over 17 flavors of cheddars, jacks, curds, fromage and butter to sample on any given day. We serve cheese plates, soups, sandwiches, hefty scoops of Umpqua ice cream, along with a great selection of Oregon wines and beer.
