

Siuslaw School District musicians perform with Dallas Brass

On March 29, Seacoast Entertainment Association presented The Dallas Brass in a brass and percussion concert of American music at the Florence Events Center.

If the theater had a ballroom floor, fans would have likely been dancing to the group's rendition of "Yankee Doodle," "The Pink Panther" theme and the iconic "Sing, Sing, Sing With a Swing," as well as every genre in between.

The Brass' signature encore includes parts of 36 songs reeled off in under five minutes following a full two hours of solid musical entertainment.

Part of the Brass' core mission is educating young musicians. Last week's concert was an example of a collabo-

Baha'i to discuss the many forms of ecstasy

On Monday, April 10, at 6:30 p.m., everyone is invited to join a group of friends from varied spiritual paths to discuss ecstasy.

One of the stages of consciousness which is extraordinary in the sense that most individuals experience it only rarely is most clearly illustrated.

When one gets a sudden insight into a problem abruptly, seemingly from nowhere, pops up an answer for which one has struggled in vain for days.

Sometimes such insights come in dreams, or at moments of reverie when one is thinking about something else: in any case, we know that the answer emerges from what are called subconscious levels in the personality.

Such consciousness may occur in scientific, religious or artistic activity alike; it is sometimes popularly called 'dawning' of ideas or 'inspiration.'

As all students of creative activity make clear, this level of consciousness is present in all creative work.

The classic psychological term for this awareness is ecstasy.

The word literally means 'to stand outside one's self,' that is, to catch a view of, or experience something, from a perspective outside one's usual limited viewpoint.

Temporarily we can transcend the usual limits of conscious personality.

This creative self-consciousness is a stage that most of us achieve only at rare intervals; and none of us, except the saints, religious or secular, and the great creative figures, live very much of our lives at this level.

But it is the level which gives meaning to our actions and experiences on the lesser levels.

It is as though for a moment one stood on a mountain peak, and viewed his life from that wide and unlimited perspective.

The public is invited to attend and share the moments they "stood on a mountain peak."

The gathering will be at 875 Seventh St. The meeting will end at 8 p.m., with prayer requests left in the Prayer Pole in the garden of the Florence Playhouse.

There will also be prayers from those in attendance.
