Notice of Hearing before the Board of Directors for Lane Regional Air Protection Agency (LRAPA) Rules and Regulations Modification of LRAPA Title 43, Asbestos Requirements

Summary of proposed rulemaking:
With this proposed rulemaking, LRAPA plans to update title 43 (Asbestos Requirements) following Senate Bill 705 legislation and The Department of Environmental Quality's (DEQ's) recent rulemaking setting more stringent survey requirements on residential renovation or demolition projects. Specifically, this rulemaking will amend the construction date of a residential building after which the asbestos survey requirement would not apply. The objective is to make sure LRAPA's regulations are as stringent as DEQ's regulations. This rulemaking also will correct a couple of typos and incorrect citations.

WHO IS AFFECTED: Anyone who is subject to LRAPA Asbestos Rules
PUBLIC HEARING:
Date: Thursday, June 8, 2017
Time: 12:30PM
Location: LRAPA Meeting Room
1010 Main Street
Springfield, Oregon 97477

Copies of the proposed rules, as well as Statements of Need and Fiscal Impact (Staff Report), are available for review at the LRAPA office located at 1010 Main Street, Springfield, Oregon until Thursday, June 8, 2017. The public may comment on the proposed rule amendments. Comments submitted prior to the hearing date must be submitted in writing and must be received by LRAPA by Wednesday, June 7, 2017. Written comments should be addressed to: LRAPA Board of Directors, 1010 Main Street, Springfield, Oregon 97477. Comments submitted at the hearing may be in writing or oral; however, written comments at the hearing must be presented orally by the commenter.

Don't Drive Damaged Goods

(NAPSA)—More than 725,000 vehicles driven on U.S. roads every day may be dangerous, according to new research from Carfax. These vehicles were damaged so severely in an accident, by fire or flood that DMVs across the country require permanent title marks to warn people about the damage. Still, thousands are back on the road in every state, and worse, many of the owners may have no idea they're driving a rebuilt wreck.

Thousands of people are driving potentially unsafe vehicles—but you don't have to be among them.

That's because some unscrupulous sellers resort to what's known as "title washing"; that is, they alter the car's documents. These criminals patch badly damaged cars back together, erase documented evidence of the damage and resell them to unsuspecting buyers in other states. Many of these cars are sold on free online classifieds sites, in busy parking lots and other high-traffic areas.

"I was shopping for a car for my daughter and arranged to purchase one off Craigslist that looked immaculate," said car buyer Scott Liker. "The seller asked if I could pay cash and told me the vehicle had a clean title. I went to Carfax and was shocked to find it was issued a salvage title out of Florida. Within days, the vehicle was titled in Tennessee and a month later was in Missouri, now with a clean title. I was shaking, because I had just dodged a bullet." North Carolina, Mississippi, New Jersey, California and Georgia have the highest number of these potentially dangerous vehicles. Crooks also seem to be moving and reselling these vehicles in cities along the I-40 corridor, the research suggests.

"Hundreds of thousands of people driving unsafe vehicles is a serious threat to public safety," said Larry Gamache, Carfax communications director. "In addition, anyone duped into buying one often pays thousands more than the car's really worth. Insisting on a vehicle history report and mechanic's inspection first will help you avoid unknowingly buying a car with major problems that crooks made disappear on paper."

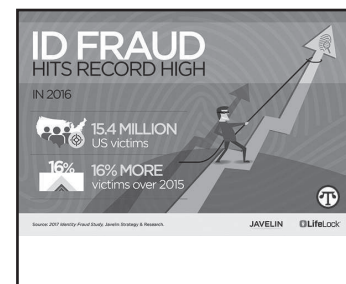

You can shop for used cars with confidence at www.carfax.com, where every car listed for sale comes with a free Carfax Report.

Victims of title washing can contact their state's Consumer Affairs Department or Attorney General's office for help.

Facts To Help You Fight Identity Fraud

(NAPSA)—The 2017 Identity Fraud Study by Javelin Strategy & Research revealed that the number of identity fraud victims increased by 16 percent in the last year, a record high. The study found that despite the efforts of the industry, fraudsters successfully netted 2 million more victims in 2016, with the amount fraudsters took rising by nearly $1 billion, to $16 billion.

On a positive note, while fraudsters are becoming better at evading detection, consumers with an online presence are getting better at detecting fraud quicker, leading to less stolen overall per attempt.

"After five years of relatively small growth or even decreases in fraud, this year's findings drive home that fraudsters never rest, and when one area is closed, they adapt and find new approaches," said Al Pascual, senior vice president, research director and head of fraud & security, Javelin Strategy & Research. "Fraudsters are stealing your card information and other personal identity information and shopping online with it. To successfully fight fraudsters, the industry needs to close security gaps and continue to improve and consumers must be proactive, too."

Five Safety Tips to Protect Consumers

It's best to work with your bank, mobile phone carrier, online shopping sites and other companies to minimize your risk of fraud. Here are five recommendations:

1. Be smart on social media—Social media can help you keep up-to-date with your friends' lives but can help fraudsters stay up-to-date, too. Fraudsters can learn when you're out at the movies or on vacation and the house is vacant, as well as your dog's name, mother's maiden name and lots of other personal identity information. Review your social media settings to make sure your profile is only visible to friends. Consider whether you post your vacation while you are gone or when you are back. Do not accept friend requests from people you don't know.

2. Protect online shopping accounts—With fraud moving online, accounts with online shopping sites are valuable targets. Enabling two-factor authentication on sites that have that capability, such as Amazon, can make it significantly more difficult for fraudsters to take over your accounts.

3. Exercise good password habits—Passwords have remained the de facto first line of defense for most online accounts, which has motivated criminals to compromise them whenever possible. Using unique passwords, one per each online shopping site and one for each bank account, you can help reduce the value to fraudsters of passwords stolen.

4. Sign up for account alerts—

Many consumers were able to detect fraud through alerts. So join the crowd. A variety of financial service providers, including credit card issuers and brokerages, provide customers the option to receive notifications of suspicious activity. Consider signing up for identity protection services such as LifeLock, which can provide security that's difficult to get on your own, such as regularly monitoring credit reports for suspicious new accounts and screening for sale of personal information on the dark Web.

5. Seek help as soon as fraud is detected—The quicker you notify your financial institutions, credit card company, wireless carrier or other service provider that fraud has occurred, the sooner these organizations can act to limit the damage. Early notification can also help limit the liability of a victim in some cases, as well as allow more time for law enforcement to catch the fraudsters in the act.
