Save Time, Trouble And Money With A New Sort Of Phone Service

(NAPSA)—Answering the call for more flexibility in telephone service is an unusual new kind of company—the world's first cloud-based phone carrier. "Being disruptive is not about making a lot of noise, it's about changing the norm," explains Derek Ting, co-founder and CEO of TextNow. That company is focused on delivering reliable and affordable wireless connectivity solutions that let users access phone services wherever they are, without a costly cell phone plan. This may explain why it's one of the fastest-growing wireless carriers.

For millions of users, there's a more affordable alternative to traditional wireless plans and services.

may be unavailable. When there's no Wi-Fi connection, it uses Sprint's nationwide 2G voice, 3G, and 4G network for CDMA phones and SIM cards, and a nationwide GSM network for GSM SIM cards.

The app is free because it's ad supported. Visual voicemail and call forwarding are also free. There are no contracts, no hidden fees and it's easy to set up and easy to use. Customer support is based in North America.

How To Get It

- There are five ways to get on this.
1. You simply download the app from the iTunes App Store or Google Play to any mobile device. You're assigned a phone number—and that number can follow you across all your devices.
 2. You get a low-cost mobile device from TextNow equipped with custom software.
 3. You get a SIM from TextNow. Insert it into an unlocked compatible device and you're in business. You even get a month free with this option.
 4. You can get a gift card to provide connectivity—talk, text and data—to someone else. Give a phone plan for a month or a year.
 5. Whichever plan you start with, you're in control. You can change it whenever you like. Upgrade or downgrade at any time.
- However you get it, you also get a 30-day money-back guarantee.

How To Talk With Your Aging Parents About Using A Walker

(NAPSA)—Caring for an aging parent can be a great challenge. And as our beloved seniors age, their primary caregivers, commonly their children, need to initiate many difficult conversations. Whether it's suggesting the use of a hearing aid or simply talking about any other assistive device that has to do with getting older, starting these conversations isn't easy.

Talk the talk with your aging relatives so they're willing to walk the walk with a walker when necessary.

To start this dialogue, consider these tips:

1. Remind Mom or Dad that the right walker is a tool to maintain and, in most cases, increase their mobility. Emphasize the resulting increase in independence and how that will make them feel.
2. Empower their individuality and give them a choice. Today's walkers are far more functional and models like the Motivo Tour offer a contemporary design with styling that can't be ignored.
3. Stress the importance of being smart: Using a walker will prevent falls and resulting injuries. The facts are on your side and fall-related injuries may actually come with a discharge recommendation to a nursing home rather than Mom's return home.

A conversation like this is a two-way street, so if you're able to address their reluctance, then your parents will also need to embrace their own physical limitation. It's important that you don't make an absolute demand that they use a walker, so partner up and search for options together. Mom might feel better if she's able to see a less institutional-looking option, and a rollator like the Motivo Tour, with its risk-free 30-day trial, is a smart way to give a new walker a try.
