"Little Things" by Charles Draper

Florence Regional Arts Alliance (FRAA) is showcasing the photography of Charles Draper in the lobby of Oregon Pacific Bank during the month of July.

Draper has a long career in photography and film production.

Many of his films have appeared on "The Wonderful World of Disney," the longest television prime-time series in history (1954-1983).

In both television and theatrical releases over the years, his credits have included actor, production photographer, cinematographer, location scout, set design, director of photography, director and producer.

Of one of his collections, titled "Little Things," he said, "Sometimes it's the little things that give us the most joy. The person that saved this large tray of buttons, beads, paper clips and other things must have thought them very precious to have taken the time to preserve this collection."

Oregon Pacific Bank, where the exhibit is held, is located at 1355 Highway 101.

FRAA is located at 120 Maple St. in Historic Old Town Florence.
