

Discover Native American flute at Starlight Cabaret

Florence Unitarian Universalist Fellowship, at Highway 101 and Heceta Beach Road, presents two Native American flutists during Starlight Cabaret on Saturday, Aug. 19.

Nathalie Picard-Hatch and Dennis "dg" Hatch will perform beginning at 7 p.m., and doors open at 6:30 p.m.

Tea and coffee will be provided, and people are encouraged to bring snacks and additional beverages.

The event is free, though donations will be accepted.

Picard-Hatch is a Huron-Wendat flutist, composer, singer and storyteller who has been playing flute for 30 years. She also sings traditional Huron-Wendat songs.

She recently moved to Reedsport, Ore., from Wendake (Huron village), Québec, Canada, where she studied music at the Music Conservatory of Quebec City and completed her degree in Music at University of Montreal in Canada.

Picard-Hatch was invited to play in Toronto for the Prince of Wales for a special evening, played in Ottawa for the 2008 Canada Day Concert representing First Nations of Dennis Hatch and Nathalie Picard-Hatch will play traditional and newer songs on native flutes during Florence Unitarian Universalist's Starlight Cabaret on Saturday, Aug. 19.

Canada, toured with National Arts Center Symphonic Orchestra in Ottawa and British Columbia and has recorded for films and for different singers.

She also specializes in latin jazz and played transverse flute with Yoël Diaz's Cuban jazz band in Montreal for over 10 years.

Hatch has been a woodworker for over 30 years, and is a member of the Crane Clan of the Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan Chippewa Indian Tribe (Anishinabe).

He has been making Native flutes for about 20 years. He also makes and plays Native American Woodland flutes, traditional rattles and carves wood, antler and stone.

Hatch primarily builds all his flutes using his solid bore method (unlike most native flutes that are made in two pieces then glued together, he designs his in one solid piece), which creates a seamless and smooth finish inside and out.

He may design a flute using a single type of wood or mixing woods to include on-lays, inlays or end-caps for design and function.

An example of function would be inlaying a different wood or other material such as obsidian or quartz as the splitting edge to produce a warm, brilliant and responsive sounding flute.

Various materials included in his flutes are domestic/exotic woods, turquoise, metal, wooly mammoth or walrus ivory in his designs.

"The nice thing about the Native Flute is that anyone who has the will to play, can," Hatch said. "Through the use of the native flute, individuals can go to that peaceful place where they can create wonderful things in their lives."

Free Master Recycler classes to be offered this fall

Lane County Waste Management Division is offering a free course this fall that provides comprehensive training on local solid waste issues.

The Waste Management Division hosts this course to help Lane County residents and businesses reduce, reuse, recycle and rethink waste habits.

Fall classes will be held on Tuesdays from 6 to 9 p.m., Sept. 12 through Nov. 7, at Lane County Waste Management Division located at 3100 East 17th Avenue in Eugene.

Hear from local experts, tour local recycle facilities and learn why things are (or are not) recyclable.

Participants can also learn how to recycle a number of unusual and challenging items that are commonly thrown into the landfill.

Retirees, teachers, green job seekers, parents, high school and college students studying sustainability, business owners and employees tasked with reducing solid waste in the workplace all find common purpose in the Master Recycler community.

The Master Recycler training course includes 35 hours of classroom instruction: nine consecutive Tuesday evening classes, a Saturday compost demonstration and two Saturday multi-site field trips to area solid waste and recycling sites.

Instructors are local experts in solid waste from business, government and non-profit sectors.

The course is free for those who volunteer 30 hours to educate and assist their communities in the year following the training.

Those who do not wish to volunteer may pay a small fee. In addition to attending class sessions and tours with local experts, all participants enroll in Recycling 101 online.

The R101 course was developed for and by Oregon's recycling industry.

Classes of this type usually cost from $50 to $75. However, R101 is free for Lane County Master Recycler students.

Applications are available on line or by calling 541-682-2059.

Completed applications may be submitted by fax, email or regular mail.
