Wellspring Clinic suggests ways to beat the smoke

Patients have noticed an increase in symptoms with the worsening air quality in the Siuslaw region, as reported by Florence's Wellspring Clinic. Many people cite aggravations of lung-related conditions, allergies, fatigue, headaches and even feelings of sadness as the smoke of nearby wildfires fill the air. To reduce the toxic burden at home, Wellspring Clinic makes the following recommendations:

- Stay indoors as much as possible. HEPA filters or negative ion generators can filter out even more particles.
- Take 500 mg-plus of vitamin C a minimum of three times per day, especially if the supplement has bioflavonoids. Meriva (curcumin phytosome) or other liver support formulas may help bodies deal with toxins in wood smoke (polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons).
- Stay hydrated, drinking more water than usual.
- Nasal rinse (such as Neti pot) helps to cleanse the particles out of the nose, thereby reducing symptoms of exposure, such as allergy symptoms.

Thorne Research Quercetin Phytosome also helps with allergy symptoms.

Dog-house building contest to benefit pets

The "Dog Days of Summer" dog house contest will take place Saturday, Sept. 16, with participants competing to see who can build the best dog house out of pallets, scrap or whatever is lying around the yard. Loved Again Pets, a non-profit foster-based pet rescue in Lane County, will be hosting the "Dog Days of Summer" cookie get-together and dog house contest. All dog house entries must be brought to Craig's BBQ, located in the Pro Lumber parking lot on Highway 101, by noon on Saturday, Sept. 16, during the cookie get-together. The dog houses will be auctioned off Saturday, Sept. 30, from 11 a.m. to noon via Craig's BBQ's Facebook page and live at the food cart. It will be a 50/50 split to the dog house that brings in the most money, along with a $25 gift certificate to Craig's BBQ. Second prize will be 75/25 split and a $15 gift certificate, and third prize will be a $10 gift certificate. All proceeds, after payment of monetary prizes, will go to the Loved Again Pets medical fund. For more information, contact Sammi Lewis at sammijlewis@yahoo.com.
