Florence couple arrested for marijuana trafficking

By NED HICKSON
Siuslaw News

EDWARDSVILLE, ILL. — Illinois State Police arrested Florence residents Donald A. Weaver, 56, and Tonja L. Weaver, 55, after a traffic stop in Edwardsville, Ill., turned up drugs and cash.

The Weavers were charged with marijuana trafficking and possession with intent to deliver.

On Sept. 12, the couple was traveling on Interstate 55 when Illinois State Police stopped them for speeding and improper lane usage. After receiving permission from Donald Weaver to search the pick-up truck and a flatbed trailer it was towing, the trooper, assisted by a canine unit, discovered a hidden compartment where police reportedly found more than 5,000 grams of marijuana.

Further investigation led to the discovery of $4,500 in the truck, which was seized by agents with the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois.

Local authorities filed a civil suit in order to take possession of the property under state law, which allows assets to be forfeited when connected with drug offenses.

Bail of $75,000 each was issued by the judge, with the Weavers posting the required $7,500 each before being released Sept. 18.

Both are awaiting a court date in October.

DriveHealthy looks to reduce distracted driving

Who are Oregon's safest drivers? That's what a new campaign created by the American Automobile Association (AAA) of Oregon /Idaho, Oregon Department of Transportation (ODOT) and the Oregon State Police seeks to discover.

DriveHealthy's aim is to help reduce the incidence of distracted driving in Oregon by introducing friendly competition.

A recent survey found that while 69 percent of Oregonians are very uncomfortable riding with a driver who is sending a text message, 72 percent admit to driving distracted themselves. In Oregon, on average eight people are hurt or killed by a distracted driver each day. This has contributed to the largest increase in traffic fatalities in Oregon in a decade.

At the same time, cell phone use in vehicles has strong addictive properties: Changing this behavior will be difficult.

"We're connected to each other socially with technology," said ODOT Director Matthew Garrett. "And the fact is, that connection doesn't stop when we get behind the wheel. So we want to replace the addiction to the phone by using those same social connections, combined with immediate feedback on driving and friendly competition."

Garrett explained how the program works.

"You get with your closest friends, family or co-workers and form a group. Your group works together to beat others in the same category — like schools, civic clubs, religious organizations or co-workers at other Oregon businesses. You can also compete on your own as an Oregon resident," he said.

Organizations can register at www.DriveHealthy.org. They can download a free app from Lifesaver, lifesaver-app.com, and the competition begins.

Each month is a new opportunity to compete.

Will it be effective? Data suggests that a recent similar campaign in Boston reduced distracted driving among participants by 47 percent.

By not opening your phone while driving, you keep your score high. At the end of each month, the groups with the highest scores win bragging rights on the DriveHealthy website.

"We're convinced," said Garrett, "that while technology helped create the problem, technology can also help provide a solution to distracted driving."

DriveHealthy started as the result of a statewide task force, which also recommended passage of tougher cell-phone laws.

House Bill 2597 takes effect Sunday, Oct. 1, and, among other changes, increases the penalty for using a mobile electronic device while driving to $2,000.

Businesses, corporations, organizations and media outlets can support the DriveHealthy campaign in a variety of ways:

1. Adopt the campaign as a cause for your organization.
2. Sponsor media promotion for DriveHealthy in your local market.
3. Sponsor monthly rewards for the best drivers.

For information on how to sponsor DriveHealthy monthly rewards, contact LifeSaver at info@lifesaver-app.com.

For information on how to adopt DriveHealthy in your community, contact Tom Fuller by phone at 503-986-3455 or email him at Thomas.Fuller@odot.state.or.us.
