

Peace Harbor helps those who are in mourning 'Journey Through Grief'

The Peace Harbor Hospice "Journey Through Grief" class will offer grief education through a unique 8-part class that meets weekly, Oct. 4 through Nov. 22.

This is a chance for those who are in mourning, or know people who are, to meet others with the same experience, learn that grief is a normal process, talk about their grief in a safe, non-judgmental environment, receive support, offer support to others by listening and learn about the grieving process.

The classes cover a wide variety of topics, including changes experienced in bereavement, self-help approaches, understanding the grief process, coping with stress with emphasis on self-care, role changes and exploring what helps and does not help with loss.

The classes also include discussion as participants share experiences and receive support from others.

"Journey Through Grief" will be led by a trained bereavement counselor and confidentiality is assured. There is no charge to participate, and all materials will be provided and open to all community members who have experienced the death of someone. For more information and to register, call Nancy Smith at 541-997-3418.
