Housing, NEDCO to be discussed tomorrow

The Lane Community College (LCC) Florence Center and Siuslaw Vision 2025 invite the public to a discussion of the housing, financial education and homeownership services available through the Neighborhood Economic Development Corporation (NEDCO) on Thursday, Oct. 12, at 1:30 p.m.

Maia Hardy, Loan Officer with Community Lending Works, an affiliate of NEDCO, will be present to share information on available services in the Siuslaw region.

NEDCO, which is located in Springfield and serves all of Lane County, looks to build human and capital assets to strengthen neighborhoods and broaden participation in community ownership and governance. It fulfills its mission by helping communities find safe and affordable housing, developing and maintaining solid businesses and bringing neglected neighborhoods back to vibrancy.

Available services include financial stability classes and counseling, Individual Development Accounts (IDAs), foreclosure intervention and homeownership resources, affordable housing and microenterprise assistance.

The discussion, which will last approximately an hour, will be held in room 154 at LCC, located at 3149 Oak St.

The 1:30 p.m. community conversation with NEDCO at LCC Florence Center follows a Noon Forum at Three Rivers Casino, sponsored by the Florence Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Forum will feature Hardy and Jesse Dolin, Economic Development Catalyst for the City of Florence, in sharing how local businesses can access funding and services from government partners.

MAYORAL PROCLAMATION

CHANTELLE MEYER/SIUSLAW NEWS

Florence Mayor Joe Henry (center) proclaimed October as National Domestic Violence Awareness Month during Monday's Florence City Council meeting. He read statistics which stated that 1-in-4 women will experience domestic violence in her life, and 1-in-5 will experience sexual violence. "In Florence, Siuslaw Outreach Services continues to provide advocacy services to women and men who have been victims of domestic violence, and serves, on average, over 150 persons per year," Henry read. After concluding the proclamation, Henry added, "I want to say thanks to Siuslaw Outreach Services and to all the volunteers. They do a real good job for us. It's sad in a community of our size that we have this problem, but it is there with us." SOS led a march for awareness last week.

Siuslaw National Forest firewood now underway

CORVALLIS—Firewood permits are now available for purchase at Siuslaw National Forest offices beginning this week. Permits are required regardless if the firewood is for personal use or to be sold commercially.

Firewood cutting season typically runs from the beginning of October through the end of February, although cutting and removing firewood outside that timeframe may be authorized on a case-by-case basis.

Anyone interested in purchasing a permit is encouraged to contact their nearest national forest office for details.

Hebo Ranger District: Permits for personal use go on sale beginning Thursday, Oct. 5. The cost is $10/cord with a two cord minimum purchase and six cord maximum per calendar year. This year, the district is offering both "fall your own" standing trees as well as previously felled and decked logs for personal use permits. The decked logs are located north of Highway 22 and "fall your own" areas have been designated throughout the district.

Commercial permits went on sale Oct. 6. The cost is $20/cord with a four cord minimum purchase and 30 days to harvest the wood. Areas are designated for either commercial or personal use; firewood collection is only permitted in those areas. Additional "fall your own" areas may become available for purchase later this fall or winter. Interested buyers are encouraged to contact the ranger district for more information.

Central Coast Ranger District: Personal use permits went on sale Oct. 2 at both the Waldport and Reedsport district offices, as well as the supervisor's office in Corvallis. There will be a reduced supply of personal use permits due to a current shortage of harvestable wood.

Those interested in purchasing a commercial permit must first contact the district office, 541-563-8400, to learn how to submit an advance permit request in writing.

Individuals may purchase a commercial permit for up to a maximum of 15 cords. The cost for commercial permits is $20/cord with a six cord minimum and 15 cord maximum, with 30 days to harvest the wood.

Across the forest, firewood harvesting must occur in designated cutting areas only. Maps are available for review at district offices prior to purchasing a permit and will also be issued at the time of permit sales.

When collecting firewood, harvesters are reminded to:

- Adhere to provisions listed on their permit
- Clean up cutting area, scattering or removing debris from wood cutting

- Keep firewood lengths to 6 feet or less when transporting

- Accurately record quantities cut on their removal cards and firmly attach load tags to the transported wood

If collecting only limbs, chunks of wood or bark for personal use only, firewood gatherers should request a free-use permit. No power equipment can be used when gathering free-use firewood. Free-use permittees cannot gather their firewood within cutting areas designated for paid permittees.

Failure to comply with provisions on any firewood permit may result in fines up to $5,000, forfeiture of the permit, or both.

For more information or to obtain a permit, contact a Siuslaw National Forest office in Corvallis (541-750-7000); Hebo (503-392-5100); Reedsport (541-271-6000); or Waldport (541-563-8400.)
