Port of Siuslaw to place debris booms at marinas

To prepare for the winter storm season, the Port of Siuslaw will begin placing protective log booms around its marinas. In early November, booms will be placed around the East and West boat basins and the boat launch located at the end of Harbor Street in Historic Old Town Florence.

Increasing debris flow in the Siuslaw River over recent years requires the port to take these protective measures. Debris trapped in the basins can damage docks and moored vessels, as well as hinder boat launches. The log booms are placed around the marinas to reduce the amount of debris that enters the basins.

Port staff still expends many hours per week removing floating debris that enters the basins in spite of the boom logs, or from when the booms are left open.

Boaters are advised to use care when operating around the log booms, and should not attempt to move the booms during strong winds or rough water conditions.

Boaters are responsible for securely replacing the log booms after their boat enters or exits the marina or launch ramp area.

The port is investigating the purchase of new, lighter-weight and easier to handle debris booms, but until those can be acquired, boat operators should give careful consideration to the current and river conditions before attempting to move the log booms.

Chains and shackles secure the booms, but handling lines are attached to each boom for ease of opening and closing the boom. Instructions will be posted at the docks for moving and securing the booms and port staff are available to answer questions or provide assistance.

Any questions should be directed to the Port office at 541-997-3426.

NEW OREGON VEHICLE FEES TO BEGIN IN JANUARY

New Oregon vehicle registration, title and trip permit fees will take effect Jan. 1, providing funding for a major investment in the state's transportation system.

Oregon residents with vehicle tags expiring on or after Jan. 1 will see new registration fees in their renewal reminders starting in November. The fee for two-year passenger vehicle registration renewal — Oregon Department of Motor Vehicle's (DMV) most common vehicle transaction — will go from $86 for two years to $112.

The registration fee is based on the vehicle registration renewal date, not when the fee is paid.

DMV mails renewal reminders several weeks before a vehicle's tags expire.

Vehicle registration fees, title fees and other motor vehicle-related fees, such as fuels taxes and motor carriers' weight-mile taxes, help support Oregon's transportation system statewide and at the local levels.

The increased fees are part of a major funding package to improve the state's transportation system and to strengthen Oregon's economy.

The Oregon Legislature and Gov. Kate Brown approved House Bill 2017 to provide Oregonians with improved roads and bridges, more transportation options and enhanced safety throughout the system.

In addition to this vehicle registration fee increase, the package is funded by increases in other transportation-related fees that take effect Jan. 1. These include increases on motor fuel taxes and fees for title transfers and commercial motor vehicles.

The bill also creates a 0.5 percent privilege tax on new vehicle purchases, and a $15 fee on new adult bicycles that cost $200 or more.

Here are some transportation system investments the fees will support:

- Highway maintenance and preservation, seismic upgrades and safety, including specific construction projects across the state.
- Increased funding for small cities and counties.
- A Safe Routes to School infrastructure program to reduce barriers and hazards for children walking or bicycling to and from school.
- Economic benefits by sustaining jobs, keeping freight moving and providing a boost to local communities across the state.

In addition, people can do some DMV business from home at OregonDMV.com.
