

Art Committee installs horse sculpture at Senior Center

The Florence Public Art Committee is excited to announce the latest donation to the city's public art collection. Join the team for a photo opportunity and celebration to honor the installation of a horse sculpture at the Florence Senior Center, 1570 Kingwood St., on Tuesday, April 24, at 2 p.m.

The sculpture is made from recycled oil drums and hand welded by artists at the Kabiria Metal Works in Nairobi, Kenya.

This event will acknowledge this generous donation from Sam Spayd and Ron Green, and acknowledge the efforts of the Public Art Committee, Florence City Council, Florence Urban Renewal Agency, city staff and the Florence Senior Center Board.

The Public Art Committee is continuing its efforts to attract and feature artwork of all kinds that improves the

Siuslaw Watershed Council to discuss fishing, seafood Tuesday

On Tuesday, April 24, Siuslaw Watershed Council will hold a free discussion about Oregon's fishing and seafood industries. The event is part of Oregon Humanities' statewide Conversation Project.

Oregonians love local food, but finding truly local fish can be hard, even on the coast. As a culture, Americans are now much more aware of ethically grown meat and vegetables, but seafood remains somewhat mysterious. How does that crab get from the ocean to the table, and what's the true cost of cheap salmon at the grocery store?

This is the focus of "Fish Tales: Traditions and Challenges of Seafood in Oregon," a free conversation with Jennifer Burns Bright on Tuesday, April 24, at 6:30 p.m. at Siuslaw Public Library, 1460 Ninth St. in Florence.

This program is hosted by the Siuslaw Watershed Council and sponsored by Oregon Humanities.

Bright is a food and travel writer based in Port Orford,

Ore. She moved to the coast to write about seafood after many years teaching food studies and literature at the University of Oregon, where she researched a desire in 20th century literature, led a faculty research group in the emerging discipline of food studies and won a national pedagogy award for a team-taught, interdisciplinary class on bread.

She holds a PhD from the University of California at Irvine and a Master Food Preserver certification.

As a community organizer linking local producers and consumers, Bright often speaks and teaches at events. When she's not out gathering seaweed or smoking black cod, she might be found judging culinary masterpieces or interviewing luminaries in the food world.
