

Lane Community College-Florence honors three faculty members

Lane Community College (LCC) honored three LCC Florence Center faculty on May 30 at its 2018 Employee Recognition Gala held in the Center for Meeting and Learning on the main Eugene campus. The honored instructors were Carrie Newell, Mary Coville and John Arle.

Newell is officially retiring June 30, though staff hope to still see her around the Florence Center in days ahead. She has worked with gray whales and other marine mammals for more than 25 years and is the founder of the Whale, Sea Life and Shark Museum in Depoe Bay that also offers Whale Research Eco Excursions. She teaches marine biology and related science courses at the LCC Florence Center.

Coville was honored for her 20 years of service to the college. She has a Ph.D. from Oregon State University and has taught chemistry at the Florence Center for the past several years as a much-loved instructor.

Arle has now been with LCC for 10 years, another milestone worthy of recognition. Even more impressive, John has spent well over four decades as an innovative science instructor. At the LCC Florence Center, John has developed a strong cadre of students who appreciate his hybrid anatomy and physiology classes.

“I am incredibly proud of the great work our faculty do every day on our local campus,” noted Russ Pierson, dean of the LCC Florence Center. “It is an honor to serve the greater Florence community and the entire Siuslaw region with remarkable professionals exemplified by Carrie, Mary and John.”

Smartphone app helps find u-pick fields

Use a smartphone to easily find farm stands, u-pick fields and on-farm events with Oregon's Bounty at www.oregonfb.org.

Strawberries, asparagus, squash and salad greens — not to mention bedding plants, flowering baskets and fresh-cut flowers — are just a few favorites of spring's agricultural bounty in Oregon.

But if you want to venture out into the country, where can you buy directly from the source?

Oregon's Bounty is a searchable directory of nearly 300 family farms and ranches that sell food and foliage directly to the public.

The program allows visitors to do keyword searches for specific agriculture products — such as berries, cauliflower, honey or eggs — and/or search for farms within a specific region of the state. Visitors can also do a keyword search for “u-pick” or “events” to find farms that offer those activities.

Each of the farms listed in Oregon's Bounty are owned and operated by Farm Bureau members.

The state's largest general farm organization, Oregon Farm Bureau is a grassroots, nonpartisan, nonprofit organization representing the interests of the state's farmers and ranchers in the public and policy-making arenas.
