COMMISSION DECLINES UPLISTING OF MURRELETS

Survival guidelines will still be adopted to encourage conservation on state lands

The ODFW Commission declined to uplist the marbled murrelets from threatened to endangered during its meeting in Baker City earlier this week in a split 4-2 vote Thursday.

The commission did ask staff to bring modified survival guidelines for marbled murrelets back, with some language reworked to reflect suggestions heard from people who testified at the June 7 meeting.

The guidelines will encourage conservation efforts on state-managed lands.

Commissioners who voted in favor of not uplisting this seabird noted Oregon State University researchers are in year two of a state-funded 10-year study of marbled murrelets.

“Let’s wait a few years and let scientists update us on how this species is doing,” said Chair Mike Finley.

The commission heard testimony from more than 30 people, including several county commissioners from coastal communities concerned about the economic impact of the decision.

TIME OUT

By Lloyd Little
Retired teacher, coach and game official

With more than 55 years as an athlete, coach, parent and spectator, Lloyd Little has gained some insights and perspectives regarding athletics. In this weekly column, he shares what he’s learned about sports from his multiple points of view.

I Called Him ‘Coach’

Many athletes can reflect back to their athletic days and identify the coach who most inspired them. My coach was Frank Buckiewicz at Pacific University. He was the guest speaker at the Warrenton football banquet in 1969.

His talk was directed to the 2-7 Warrenton team. He was enthusiastic and passionate about football and life. Soon after he began speaking, I wanted to attend Pacific University and if possible play football for this man. As it turned out Coach Buckiewicz, hereafter only being referred to as Coach, became my seventh football coach in seven years.

He would also be my last football coach.

Coach demonstrated the personality and character traits important for us to have.

As I lined up to catch passes on my first day of practice, Coach
