Yachats to host extreme photography of Altiplano

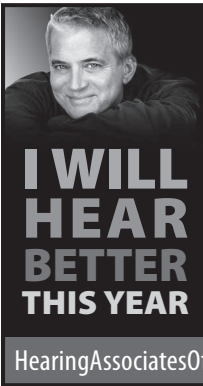

Yachats photographer Greg Scott will present a talk on extreme photography this Saturday, March 23, at the Yachats Community Presbyterian Church, located at 360 West Seventh St.

Scott will take audiences to northern Argentina's Altiplano desert to experience the beauty of salt flats, volcanoes, folded mountains and wind-sculpted rock.

While these features exist in other places, the concentration and diversity found in the Altiplano desert makes the area a unique and largely undiscovered place to visit.

The lecture, which is presented by the Yachats Academy of Arts and Sciences, is free to all, though a $5 donation is suggested.

The event begins at 2 p.m.

School district conducting public survey on facilities

A special advisory committee of the Siuslaw School District is asking for citizen input on several key issues regarding education in the district.

Residents of the Siuslaw School District are being asked to complete a short questionnaire online at <https://bit.ly/SiuslawSurvey>.

The Facilities Advisory Committee is seeking to learn how residents feel about educational opportunities in the area, what involvement they have with local educational organizations, and what improvements they suggest.

While the committee is specifically seeking input about Siuslaw schools (elementary, middle, high school and Lane Community College), respondents are being asked to also view local education in a broader context.

There are more than 75 local organizations that provide educational opportunities, and respondents are asked to consider all educational resources that are available when answering certain questions.

The committee is also asking respondents to answer a few questions about last November's ballot measure that proposed funding for new school facilities.

Answers to those questions will help the Siuslaw

School Board to better understand the perspectives of school district residents in order to engage in effective planning.

The Facilities Advisory Committee will be holding a series of meetings around the district in the coming weeks to gain further input from residents on their views about education in the area.

Dates and times of these meetings will be announced.
