How Do We Know LASIK Is Safe?

(NAPSA)—For those thinking about their vision correction options, the question "Is LASIK safe?" is likely top of mind. To answer, ophthalmologist and chair of the Refractive Surgery Clinical Committee for the American Society of Cataract and Refractive Surgery, John Vukich, M.D., provides hard data:

Your ophthalmologist is the expert on your eye health and vision correction options.

LASIK has been around for a long time, 20 years, with 19.1 million procedures in the U.S. alone. An enormous amount of research has been conducted. There are more than 7,000 peer-reviewed clinical studies on LASIK performance, safety and outcomes. Based on that science, we know LASIK is very safe and has a less than 1 percent risk of sight-threatening complications. In fact, studies show LASIK is safer than long-term contact lens wear, where the risk of infection is actually pretty high.

The patient satisfaction rate with LASIK is more than 96 percent, the highest of any elective medical procedure available today. However, LASIK isn't for everyone. The only way to know for certain is to have a thorough eye exam with a highly qualified refractive surgeon to find out if you are a good candidate and then decide if it is right for you and your vision.

Did You Know?

(NAPSA)—Here's news to help people with chronic respiratory diseases such as COPD breathe easier: Pulmonary rehabilitation is a proven treatment that improves quality of life, reports the American Thoracic Society. Talk to your doctor about pulmonary rehabilitation. Learn more and find a nearby program at livebetter.org.

Carbon monoxide gas can cause dizziness, unconsciousness and possibly death if undetected. To protect your family, you can install at least one carbon monoxide detector, connected to an ADT monitoring center that operates 24/7, on every level of your home.
