On Friday, June 7, brokers from Windermere Real Estate/Lane County took the day off from showing houses to spend the day volunteering at the Florence Food Share and Garden where they harvested produce. The day was part of Windermere Real Estate's 35th annual Community Service Day, which involves Real Estate brokers, managers, owners and staff from 300 offices across the Western United States gathering to devote a workday to making positive changes in the neighborhoods they serve. Windermere's annual Community Service

Day has been recognized nationally as a model hands-on volunteer program and has been adopted by other real estate companies and businesses around the country.

Learn, share pro-life information at Florence-4-Life event June 22

Florence-4-Life will present pro-life residents in Florence with an opportunity to speak together with a common voice during an event on Saturday, June 22, beginning at 11 a.m. at the Florence Events Center.

It will be an opportunity to listen, learn, share and demonstrate pro-life support. The event will have two speakers, a movie and refreshments.

In recent years, scientific advances have reaffirmed that an embryo in the womb is a distinct human life with unique DNA markers.

"I love the fact that I can join people that share the same passion for women and their right to choose life for their babies," said Pam Henry, one of the event organizers. "We don't yell, we aren't angry, and we value the woman and her baby from the very beginning."

The film "I Lived on Parker Avenue" will be shown. For those who can't attend the event, "there are still ways to make a difference for life — through prayer, through involvement with local pregnancy care centers and through supporting pro-life organizations," said Henry.
