CROW kids create magic at 'Wizard Camp'

CROW School of Wizardry Mysticism and Theatrical Arts students are preparing for a special showcase, open and free to the public, set for this Friday at the CROW Center for the Performing Arts.

It's day seven of CROW's second summer camp, entitled The C.R.O.W. School of Wizardry, Mysticism, and Theatrical Arts, and participants can feel the excitement in the air. As the title of the camp suggests, campers have been immersed in a fun and imaginative curriculum centering around the theme of magic, spells, potions and creativity. But it's not all fun and frivolity. Campers have been learning about the craft of theater through a variety of carefully selected games and exercises. On this morning, for example, students worked on pantomime actions, character development, body positioning, improvisation and realistic reactions to a situation. They have created a "good wizard" and an "evil wizard," and are becoming experts at physicality and vocalization. They are also pros at a made-up game called "Elephant Quid-ditch." "CROW summer camps are definitely a lot of fun, but they teach much more than how to play make-believe," says CROW Artistic Director Melanie Heard, who also happens to be a credentialed teacher with a master's degree in education. "Our kids learn teamwork, commitment, self-confidence and dedi-

on many of the large scale events at the Hult Center in Eugene, and David is from Southern California, where she works in the professional theater scene. Students will be working on paper marbling their own "Wizard Scrolls" with David later this week. The Free End of Camp Showcase will take place Friday, Aug. 2, at 3 p.m. at The CROW Center for the Performing Arts — 3120 Hwy 101 in Florence. Doors will open at 2:30 PM and seating is limited to first come, first served. The general public is welcome to attend. For more information, program, please visit www.crowkids.com.

ation. They get to use their minds in new and exciting ways and this is one of the few places where being 'weird' is not only allowed, but celebrated!" The summer camp directorial team is made up of Heard and her "awesome partner in crime," Genevieve Meltzer. The duo works hard to create an environment where the kids are actively engaged and their unique talents are respected. Special Guest Wizards have visited to share tips and tricks about the arts world, including Jason Wood, Maree Beers, Tamara Szalewski and, later this week, Misti Soper and Diane David. Mural dedication ceremony to be held next week

The Public Arts Committee of the City of Florence, in conjunction with the Florence Urban Renewal Agency, is inviting the community to the Mural Dedication Ceremony on Wednesday, Aug. 7, at 11 a.m. at the site of the Central Lincoln PUD shop building on Quince Street, between Highway 126 and 10th Street. Parking at the mural site is limited, so attendees are asked to park at the Florence Events Center, located at 715 Quince St., and walk to the location. This large, bold mural is the most ambitious project to-date from the City's public arts program. The artist team, Marino-Heidel Studios, has completed the artwork depicting iconic Florence images like the Siuslaw River Bridge, wildlife, local plants and flowers, and images of Native Americans. The mural represents the cooperation of several groups working with the City's Public Arts Committee; including the Florence Urban Renewal Agency, Central Lincoln Public Utility District, the Confederated Tribes of the Coos, Lower Umpqua and Siuslaw Indians, and the Oregon Community Foundation. The Public Arts Committee is comprised of eight volunteers from the Florence area, including business owners and artists. This is the ninth project of the Public Arts Committee, but the first mural that will be installed under the guidance of the Committee. The Public Arts Committee's mission is to "integrate art into the daily life of our community and inspire extraordinary creative expression that will enrich public awareness, enhancing the vitality, economy and diversity of Florence through the arts."
