Local USCG keeps heritage with traditional inspection

Florence, an Official Coast Guard City, has several military veterans' groups in town and only one active military base, United States Coast Guard Station Siuslaw River. With the presence of veterans and active-duty alike comes military heritage and ceremony.

The Coast Guard considers the uniform a symbol of this heritage, and it reflects the pride shared by Team Coast Guard members. Common uniformity is core to maintaining a professional military appearance both individually and as an organization. Coinciding with an all-hands Morning Quarters last Wednesday, Nov. 20, Station Siuslaw River command performed a uniform inspection on crew members.

BMCS Jay Nilles, Officer-in-Charge, was assisted by BMC Kevin Smith and BM1 Zachary Rowan. This dress uniform inspection imparted a formal note of ceremony after the raising of the American flag during the Call to Colors on base.

The Coast Guard motto to Semper Paratus means "Always Ready," which includes wearing the right uniform and equipment at the right time. The men and women at Station Siuslaw River embrace this legacy and are always ready to serve the members and mariners of the community.
