Fire restrictions now in effect

CORVALLIS—Even with the recent moisture, the trend of increasingly hot and dry weather has resulted in hazardous fire conditions on the Siuslaw National Forest.

In an effort to prevent human-caused wildland fires and to promote fire awareness, US Forest Service officials have instituted some public use fire restrictions across all areas of the Siuslaw National Forest. Prohibitions include:

- Campfires not contained within a pre-installed fire enclosure at an official developed campsite. This excludes campfires within designated sand camping areas on the Oregon Dunes National Recreation Area and dispersed camping within the Sand Lake Recreation Area.
- Welding or operating a torch with an open flame.
- Operating generators in areas of vegetation.
- Using a vehicle off US Forest Service roads, except when parking in an area devoid of vegetation for 10 feet. This excludes recreation on the Oregon Dunes National Recreation Area and the Sand Lake Recreation Area.

• Smoking outdoors in close proximity to flammable materials or vegetation. Visitors may use portable cooking stoves and fuel lanterns with off switches when recreating outside of developed camping areas. Fires in permitted areas should always be attended. For more information, go to www.fs.usda.gov.

This is to acknowledge with appreciation all those who have provided care and support for Marie Mouchett during her battle with Alzheimer’s Disease. We wish to thank PeaceHealth’s Palliative Care Services, PeaceHealth Ambulance and ER workers, and especially the warm hearts and hands of all staff at Spruce Point Memory Care and Bristol Hospice.
