vendettas they couldn't out-run. Cara's life has been cut short on 372 worlds in total.

On this Earth, however, Cara has survived. Identified as an outlier and therefore a perfect candidate for multi-verse travel, Cara is plucked from the dirt of the wastelands. Now she has a nice apartment on the lower levels of the wealthy and walled-off Wiley City. She works — and shamelessly flirts — with her enticing yet aloof handler, Dell, as the two women collect off-world data for the Eldridge Institute. She even occasionally leaves the city to visit her family in the wastes, though she struggles to feel at home in either place. So long as she can keep her head down and avoid trouble. Cara is on a sure path to citizenship and security.

But trouble finds Cara when one of her eight remaining doppelgangers dies under mysterious circumstances, plunging her into a new world with an old secret. What she discovers will connect her past and her future in ways she could have never imagined — and reveal her own role in a plot that endangers not just her world but the entire multiverse.

Book Review: "The Space Between Worlds" by Micaiah Johnson

An outsider who can travel between worlds discovers a secret that threatens her new home and her fragile place in it, in a stunning sci-fi debut that's both a cross-dimensional adventure and a powerful examination of identity, privilege and belonging.

Multiverse travel is finally possible, but there's just one catch: No one can visit a world where their counterpart is still alive. Enter Cara, whose parallel selves happen to be exceptionally good at dying — from disease, turf wars or coverage, they can sign up for help to get health insurance for 2021.

"The pandemic has made life uncertain for many Oregonians. We want to help you find a way to control your finances," said Chiqui Flowers, administrator of the Oregon Health Insurance Marketplace. "Quality health coverage protects your financial future in the event that you get sick, injured, or something else unforeseen happens."

"It is true. The pandemic has proven that life is unpredictable. That can be scary when it comes to the health and financial security of your family," said Amy Coven, communications strategist for the Oregon Health Insurance Marketplace. "Health coverage brings predictability to health needs that may arise, as well as a wealth of benefits to keep you healthy."

Individuals making $51,040 or less per year, and families of four making $104,800 or less, may get help paying for coverage. In 2020, more than seven in 10 Oregonians who chose plans through HealthCare.gov got financial help for monthly premiums and out-of-pocket costs. These savings lowered the average premium to just $145 per month.

To apply, go to OregonHealthCare.gov until May 15 and answer a few Oregon-specific questions to get to the right application. You can also search the "get help" directory on OregonHealthCare.gov to find an insurance agent or community partner organization to help complete the application and enroll.

Insurance agents and community partners provide local, one-on-one assistance at no charge to the client. This help is available virtually and over the phone, as well as in person following safety protocols.

The Oregon Health Insurance Marketplace, a part of state government, helps people get health insurance when they do not have job-based coverage, and do not qualify for the Oregon Health Plan or another program. The Marketplace is the state-level partner to HealthCare.gov, and a division of the Department of Consumer and Business Services (DCBS). For more information, go to OregonHealthCare.gov.
