The council has been made aware of the proposed increase by many Dunes City residents who found the letter both unexpected and alarming.

The example provided by SCWC in its letter to the utilities commission used the figure $47.54 as the average customer bill and suggested the proposed increase would result in a bill of $121.02.

Ron Stanley is a customer of SCWC and he contacted the Siuslaw News and his neighbors with his concerns.

"I don't want to sound conspiratorial in these times, but I just think something smells fishy," he said. "This is big increase and for a lot folks I have talked to, $900 is a lot of money. We have people living on fixed incomes and this was a shock, no question about it. I'd rather give it to charity than some big company buying out a smaller company and have us pay for it."

The evening's discussion of the increase was facilitated by City Administrator Jamie Mills, who briefly reviewed the transfer of ownership of the water rights to SCWC from Dunes City and touched on some of the infrastructure changes needed to accompany that decision.

During this, Forsythe stated that he felt there was a need for representatives from SCWC to provide the council with additional information, preferably in person.

He recounted a discussion he had with Mills regarding the rate increase and shared a letter Mills had written to the PUC detailing Dunes City Council's disappointment with the manner customers were notified of the increase and the amount of that increase.

"I think it outrageous, this kind of increase, with little notice," Forsythe said. "I would think a company wanting to do this would have a public meeting."

The other councilors agreed with the mayor. The council gave direction to Mills to send the letter to the PUC and to coordinate a conversation and perhaps a public meeting with the management from SCWC.

SCWC is owned and operated by Puttman Infrastructure Inc. and the water delivered to Dunes City residents comes from Woahink Lake.

Thomas Puttman is the president and CEO of Puttman Infrastructure Incorporated, which invests, manages, operates and maintains a number of other public utilities across the country.

In a conversation with the Siuslaw News on Thursday regarding the situation, he seemed surprised by the confusion regarding the rate increase and wanted to assure Dunes City customers of his company's desire to work with both the city and its customers to improve communication.

Consequently, Puttman sent out a letter to SCWC customers to respond to what he views as an error in communication.

In it, Puttman recounted the decision made by city officials to change the source of drinking water for residents and his understanding of the information provided to consumers.

"I wanted first to apologize for the miscommunication surrounding the recent rate increase notice. We were following Oregon PUC guidelines for the notice. What we missed was the context — the 'why' the increase is being proposed," Puttman's letter stated. "For years, SCWC sourced its water directly from Siltcoos Lake. Over the years, Siltcoos Lake water quality degraded enough to not be a safe or reliable water source as determined by the State of Oregon. To resolve this water quality risk, the decision was made to change the source of water from Siltcoos Lake to Woahink Lake. Woahink Lake is an excellent source of drinking water."

He further explained the rate increase is primarily related to the capital improvements required to make the change to Woahink Lake. These improvements include a new treatment plant, decommissioning the old treatment plant and a new supply main and pump station to convey water from Woahink Lake to the new treatment plant.

"As the new owner of the system, it was our understanding that the customer base understood these improvements had been made and the rate increase was forthcoming. These improvements were made prior to our ownership of the system and the proposed rate increase is necessary to pay for these improvements," Puttman stated.

The second point Puttman wanted to make was related to the lack of notification to all customers served by SCWC, which was not intentional but more of a technical issue.

"My second apology is to customers that did not receive the notice. For customers with online bill pay, paper invoices are not sent. When we mailed the notice for the potential rate increase, it only went to customers who request paper bills. Those that do not receive paper bills did not receive the notice. We did not know of the mistake until we heard from a few customers that they had not received the notice. When checking our customer account system, we realized notices were not sent to customers with online bill pay," He said.

This issue has been addressed with SCWC staff and all future communications will be included in digital notifications.

Puttman also expressed his willingness to respond directly to the Dunes City Council and will work with city staff to answer any and all questions related to the requested increase, and encouraged anyone with questions to contact SCWC at customerservice@puttman.com

For the remainder of the July 28 meeting, Mills gave her monthly report. This included a pending grant application and information on road repairs.

Mills also announced a "Ceremony of Life" on Saturday, Aug. 21, from noon to 3 p.m. to recognize the efforts of the many volunteers who have worked to advance the city. There will be a barbecue and socializing will be encouraged, COVID restrictions permitting.

The July 28 Dunes City Council meeting is available at for viewing at dunescityhall.com.
