COLONIZING IMMIGRANTS.

Some time since we learned of the Northern Pacific Railroad—about 100,000 for the West.

From the New York Weekly Item.

This is the result of an experiment that was undertaken by several English immi-ners, with the intention of settling in Missouri. They arrived in St. Louis a few weeks before the arrival of this correspondent, and as far as we have been able to learn, are getting along well.

At all events, all the passengers were well treated, and all the children and women doing well. We understand that the railroad company is making every effort to aid the immigrants, and that they are doing all in their power to assist them.

The Washington Post.

A considerable number of immigrants are now on the way to the Pacific Cost by railway. They are expected to arrive in a few weeks, and it is hoped that they will be able to make a comfortable journey.

A large number of immigrants are now on the way to the Pacific Coast by railway.

They are expected to arrive in a few weeks, and it is hoped that they will be able to make a comfortable journey.
