SUNDAY DOINGS AMONG HORSES

[From the New York Spirit of the Times.]

Our parson is one of the kind who gives the people the worth of the money, so he gets up pretty extensive sermons for such hot days. Last Sunday I sat until he got to 11thly, and by that time, I got as dry as a contribution box; so I stepped out to get a drink at the pump. The meeting is on the corner, and the horses were hitched along on both sides, a lot of them together. As I went out I saw something was on foot among the nags; most of them had their ears back, and were showing their teeth, and stamping in anything but a religious mood. When I got my fluid down I stopped to investigate the disturbance among the horses, and as I knew horse Latin, sat down on the steps to take notes. All were outside the rails and hitching-posts in a paved gutter, each beating a tattoo with a quartet of iron hoofs, which I thought would be more profitable for the blacksmith and farrier than for the owner; but as the owners were mostly rich, it was none of my business.

The little Black reached his head over to the little Chestnut and whispered something when the Chestnut moved the meeting be organized, by calling the Big Bay to the chair. This motion was carried, and the chairman proceeded to state the object of the meeting as follows:

Yellow-Horses: We have now organized ourselves into a convention for the purpose of peaceably discussing our grievances, in accordance with the republican character of our inalienable rights. We are brought from our stables and pastures every Sunday to be tied up here, in this hot weather, upon a pavement of villainous boulders, exposed to the heat of mid-summer sun and the bites of merciful flies. Many of us have not a stitch of fly net to our backs and all of us have been more or less incapacitated from protecting ourselves by having our tails clipped to gratify an unseemly fashion, which neither our masters nor mistresses seemed disposed to honor at this time in their outward continuations. Besides, our check-reins are left tied so tight that we cannot fight a fly from our shoulders or ease our aching muscles a single minute. In view of these abuses, we feel that our condition calls loudly for redress, and hope this convention will devise some means of relief. The Black then nominated the Chestnut as Secretary, which was agreed on.

The Cream Color moved a committee of three to present a platform for the consideration of the meeting. Carried; and the chair appointed the Cream, the Black, and the Roan said committee.

While this committee was consulting together, the Chair called for an expression of opinion from the different members of the convention, and requested that each one bring in a resolution embodying his sentiments, whereupon the following were offered.

By the Deacon's Yellow Mare. Resolved, That the merciful man is merciful to his beast. Adopted.

Resolved, That every horse should be provided with a fly net. This was amended by the Sorrel, so as to read; "and that the said fly nets should be so constructed so as to protect the flanks and legs, as well as the back and ears," and in this form the resolution was adopted.

By the Bobtail Black. Resolved, That it is an abridgement of our own natural rights to curtail us at one end and tie the other, while the flies are suffered to suck our blood. Carried with much unanimity.

Resolved, That these flies bite like h—l! Objected by the Deacon's Yellow Mare. (The Pony had been brought up in a lively stable where his morals had been sadly neglected.) The little Sorrel said the Pony was right. The old Dun thought the language too strong for the place, but would vote for it any other day but Sunday. The Big Gray moved to strike out all after Resolved, and insert "that these flies have the faculty of causing the members of this convention, and our race generally, much pain and annoyance."

At this the Pony fairly kicked one leg over the shaft, and bit a splinter from a rail. He said:

Mr. Chairman, the horse just up is an old fogey; I go for calling things by their right names. This standing up here in such weather is an outrage which no Christian horse could endure. Master is in there on his soft cushions, hearing Shadrach, etc, in the fiery furnace, that did not burn them a whit, while we stand here in a fiery furnace that does nearly take the hair off, and are tormented by flies to boot! I protest, against Dun's milk-and-water substitute, and call for the previous question on my resolution. This was seconded by the Bobtail

Black, Little Sorrel, and Dapple Gray, and the resolution was carried by a large majority.

The Cream announced that the Committee on a platform was ready to report, and presented the following:

1. Since the horses are deprived of their natural defenses, they should be effectually secured against flies, etc, while confined in harness.

2d. No good Christian will leave his horse tied in the sun, upon paving-stones, when there is a shade and soft ground within fifty yards.

3d. No city lout should harness his horse to ride half a mile to church, because his wife's petticoats are so long that she can not keep them out of the dirt.

4th. The man who keeps a check-rein hitched up, while the horse is waiting by the hour, ought to go to the place the minister in the church sends the wicked.

5th. The provisions of the Golden Rule should be construed so as to apply to horses as well as men.

This platform was adopted by a unanimous neigh, and the Secretary was ordered to furnish a copy to every horse-congregation in the city and country for ratification, with a request that the subject be acted upon next Sunday.

Just then the people began to come out of the church. The little Black tossed his head and gave the Chestnut a wicked leer. The Yellow mare whinned for her colt, the Pony champed his bit sulkily, but all were so glad to get away that they moved off at the word, and I guess this convention, like many others, will end only in a talk. However, if no reform is effected in a short time, I shall look for further action.

SMALL-POX CURE.

Dr. Borzeau's Small Pox Cure.

As this most loathsome of all diseases is liable to break out among us at any time, it is well to be prepared for it at all times. Dr. Borzeau's Small-Pox Cure and Preventive, now prepared and kept on hand at my office, corner first and Main streets, one door from First, is a sure cure or preventive for that disease. The history of this medicine can not better be explained by me than by inserting the following somewhat condensed letters. SAMUEL CORWIN, PROPRIETOR.

SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 2, 1872.

My dear old friend, Samuel Corwin—I have no doubt but you will be much surprised on receiving this letter, but perhaps, not more so, or more gratified, than I was to hear from you. The manner in which I heard from you, and learned of your whereabouts, is this: I happened to be looking over an Oregon newspaper and noticed your name, as Representative elect, from Tillamook county. The thrill of pleasure which I experienced on reading, is indescribable. The many acts of kindness which I received at your hands long years ago have never been forgotten, notwithstanding our correspondence has been broken for 17 years. Well, Sam, I won't attempt to give you more than the outlines of what has transpired with me since we last corresponded. So many incidents of the past, in which you and I were connected, crowd upon my mind that I cannot think or write of myself. Does your mind ever revert to the past, when we first met—how you took me in as a partner, when those who ought to have been my best friends threw off on me—how we got snowed in and had to live on potatoes straight for six weeks—how good that grizzly meat tasted—what a disgraceful retreat we made from our poor innocent Jack, when we thought we were besieged by a grizzly. Well, Sam, those events of 1852 frequently furnish subject matter for my thoughts, and as I am writing to you, crowd upon my mind, but I will dismiss them for the present to give place to that which will, perhaps, be of greater interest to you.

I pocketed eleven thousand dollars out of the "Deep Claim" you gave me in Mariposa, and started for home in June, 1855. I invested four thousand dollars in real estate in this city, and left it in care of McLane, our old cabin mate. My property here has yielded me a handsome income, and quadrupled in value. I went into business in New York city, in which I was very successful—sold out two years ago, since which time I have been traveling through the European countries. You knew I used to have a weakness for traveling; well, it has been gratified to my heart's content. While in France I was taken with the small-pox. The lady of the inn told me that I was fortunate to take the disease at that place, as there was an old small-pox doctor near by who never failed to cure, no matter how bad the disease; and sure enough, it began to recover within four hours after commencing to take the medicine, and in twenty-four hours I felt quite well. I was so much elated with the magical effects of the medicine that I was determined, if possible, to obtain the formula, in which I succeeded, by paying handsomely and promising not to divulge it in France. I see from Oregon papers that you have the disease among you. The enclosed package contains the formula and sufficient material for family use. I have cured all the cases that I have come in contact with, and find it an infallible cure and preventive. When you answer this, I will forward sufficient of the material to make you a fortune, as I have ample, and rest assured I reciprocate past favors. I will close for the present and await anxiously your answer. Direct to San Francisco, as I will remain here about two months. Yours etc., ISAAC RICHARDSON.

When I received this medicine, there being no small-pox in the State of Oregon, I sent packages to a number of places in California and other States, to be properly tested, although my own confidence in its virtue was completely established by the source from which I obtained it. The following letters were duly received from the parties to whom I sent test packages of the medicine:

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 27, 1872. Samuel Corwin, Nehalem, Oregon—Dear Sir: I have the pleasure of communicating to you the fact I had an opportunity at last of testing the efficiency of your preparation for the cure of small-pox. Mr. A. Keyser, a friend of mine, was taken with the small-pox December 18th. I learned the fact about six o'clock on the evening of the 19th, and started immediately for the residence of Mr. K., situated about fourteen miles from here, towards Cache Creek, Yolo county. I got to K's place just twenty minutes before twelve o'clock, and commenced giving the medicine precisely at twelve o'clock. Continued to give the medicine every hour until twelve o'clock next evening, having given twenty-nine doses; and, without farther aid, K. recovered, and is now as well as ever, without any visible signs of ever having had the disease. All of us who were exposed, took of the medicine as a preventive, and I have no doubt, by so doing, were kept from getting the disease. Yours etc., JAMES HASBEN.

FERNDALE, Humboldt Co. Cal., Feb. 1 1873. Friend Corwin—Your small-pox cure proved quite a God-send to this community lately. I had the satisfaction of curing three of our townsmen of the small-pox lately. Now, I am out of medicine, and I want you to send me about a thousand bottles, or send an agent down here. You would do well to have an agent in every town in California. I am getting up a statement, with the signature of the parties knowing the facts, and will send it soon. Accept our thanks, etc., C. E. CHURCH.

No person should be without this medicine, as the disease is now in various parts of the country, and may be among us any day. It is an old and true adage, that "An ounce of preventive is worth a pound of cure." 'Tis a wise man that carries his coat on a fair day, etc. SAMUEL CORWIN, Proprietor, Nehalem, Oregon.
