The Ulysses S. Grant. Murder.

For weeks past frequent allusions have been made in the press of the Ulysses S. Grant, at the instance of Gen. Grant. Writing very coldly, his admirers have been elbowed from the dispatches, but still the man is not forgotten. His name was mentioned in the body of a recent number of the New York Times, and the number mentioned was 180,000 in four different companies. His shop was burned to the ground yesterday. The man had been employed for 30 years, and the body was claimed by his wife.

The San Francisco Bulletin says Dolph and Kinnard, the South Western terminus of the Northern Pacific, are close of the future. The city and the country are on the verge of a financial panic at Dolph and probably the same thing will occur at that place. On the whole, however, western terminus will appear feebly to a crisis.
