

Tri-Weekly Astorian

SATURDAY.....OCT. 25, 1873

Practical Advice to Fishermen.

- 1. Find out if there is any fish in the river to which you are going: if so, get some one who knows the water to show you where the fish lie, and when he shows them to you don't you show yourself to them.
2. Don't imagine, if the fish does not dart away, that he has not seen you; on the contrary, he is very likely devoting his whole attention to you, and preparing to start the moment danger is imminent.
3. If you are fishing with a fly, and you pass it nearly three times over him, and he refuses it, you need not wait any longer; he has seen your line of invitation, and does not intend to come.
4. If you are above a fish when you hook him, get below him as soon as you can; for if you pull him one instant against the stream, and he is a heavy fish, he will break his hold.
5. Never throw a long line when a short one will answer.
6. Never mind what is said about "laying your fish till he is tired;" put him into your basket as soon as you can.
7. Remember that everything depends upon the way you begin your acquaintance. If you can prevail on a fish to go down the stream a little way with you, you will afterward have no difficulty in persuading him to let you have the pleasure of seeing him to dinner.

To these excellent maxims I beg leave to add one of Mr. Stoddart's, especially intended for bachelors, young and old: Never fall in love with a woman by the water side: there are situations in which every woman looks an angel.
