Music and the Band.

On Saturday last referring to the matter of music at Astoria, the following paragraph occurs

ABOUT THE BAND.-Last evening just as the Ajax landed at the Astoria steamship dock from points above, the public school bell was ringing to call a meeting of the voters of the district, a bonfire was lighted on the plaza, and a boy sent out with a dinner bell to whoop and halloa, "Independent mass meeting at the Court-house !" etc. The risibilities of passengers were hightened by the scene, and a prominent gentleman connected with the press of Pennsylvania, on a fraternál visit to our sanctum inquired: "Have you no Brass Band here?" On being enterprises most calculated to result informed affirmatively he expressed surprise that a boy should be sent out to ring in a crowd, when it could be done so much more elegantly and with such eclat by musicians, closing with the remark "that a band of musicians was indispensable to success in this campaign is over, and the people a growing city, and he hoped to learn from our columns hereafter that the services of the Astoria Brass Band would be substituted for the boy and the bell, on public occasions. It is true that the Astoria Brass Band is not appreciated, and we trust that the suggestions of our visitor will hereafter be heeded.

Inasmuch as numerous members of the no party movement in this city have taken decided exceptions to the remark expressive of the surprise of our visitor "that a boy should be sent out" with a bell we should have stated, "to ring in a crowd," and the intention and application of our meaning has both been misunderstood, and the item greatly perverted, it is due to ourself, and no more than justice to the Independent voters of this county, to say that we had no design whatever to belittle their actions with the remark above quoted. Our sole aim and purpose was to make a point for the Astoria Brass Band, and if we have set people to thinking as to their duty with respect to employment of the band, "on all public occasions hereafter." Our aim has been gratified. With regard to "a boy ringing in a a crowd," our words have been grossly ness men refuse to advertise in Orcmisconstrued. It has been charged gon journals. They don't realize what that we there refer in personal terms Oregon is, and as a result some of to Capt. J. H. D. Gray-which is a them have confounded the State with most absurd construction to put upon orfyild believing that on goods sent the remark. Capt. Gray has the here there is no restitution, but we right, as well as any other citizen, will wager a counterfeit five dollar bill to take initiatory steps in what he may that San Francisco has no better payconsider to be reforms in politics or ing customers than those from Oreother matters for the improvement gon. She floods our State with drumof the town and the development of mers and bummers, hunting trade to FOR KNAPPTON AND RETURN the country, and in view of his past services in behalf of Astoria, it would Oregon merchants, too; which is adseem ridiculous in us to class him as ding insult to injury. The next As-"a boy ringing in a crowd." We respect Capt. Gray for what he has done in aid of the development of such important works as the building of the Astoria Farmers wharf, the organization of the barge system of transportation on the rivers, the reduction of freights and fares, and the moulding of a sentiment which will lead to the eventual construction of the Cascade Canal and Locks, and the opening of Eastern Oregon to the sea,-hence we can in no way be characterized as ridiculing him, in his present political operations, as " a | saidboy ringing in a crowd." Now, while on this subject, we want to say a few words in a general sense. These are party times, and politicians are decidedly too sensitive her one, to-day. (sometimes). We are in no sense of the term a politican. Having passed that we are very wealthy has gone abroad through the ordeal of politics, and paid dearly for our schooling in that | ing, doubtless, we do not want the money, respect,-graduating in 1873 with we hasten to say the report of our wealth no higher henor than empty pockets, and a badly damaged reputation, but we could not make the first payment on with a knowledge which will serve a canoe. The lightning of poverty has through life to inform us that politics an armful of hay which our devil manis a dangerous business, - we "swore aged to steal from a blind mule, our off" politics when we were kicked tamily would be without a mouthful to est at the present moment. Is out of the office of the now defunct not this a sad picture, and can you de-Bulletin in Portland. We have since Inquent sub-cribers look upon it without s for high offices, very much in same light as we regard the jurywith keen lawyers, and a thy client. Both need rerating. For the time we have at Astoria we have filled the tion we hold amply to our own faction, and judging from the ral support which has been extended to us, the public generally has also become satisfied that our course as editor is at one and the same time just and proper. We hold that no man should claim special praise for doing what he may consider to be right, and if every man in the community, everywhere, will act in accordance with the dictations of a clear sense of his duty, he is bound to do right. We have not been actuated with any purpose to reward friends or punish enemies since we came to Astoria, on the contrary we have striven, to the utmost of our ability, to keep foremost in view, publicly and privately, those in the advancement of the country, and we admire all men actuated with similar purpeses, whether in private life they be friendly to us individually or sternly opposed to us; and when again settle down to their usual avocations without the gusts of political strife to ruffle their usually mild temperaments, we feel confident they will accord to us the principles of fairness, on all subjects, which we claim for the THE ASTORIAN, and will forget some very sidiculous motives attributed to us in our capacity as an honest, fair-minded, independent journalist. We have claimed independence in our expressions upon all topics, since the beginning of our enterprise here, and shall still continue to claim it. When people can no longer sustain us, in a living manner, with the principles which now control us, we shall modestly surrender to the more retired walks of life, and when we cannot accord to every other man the same principles of honor, we hope that public sentiment will set us afloat. If this is free America, let all men be freemen, in every laudable action in life.
