

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:

F. C. IRELAND EDITOR

FRIDAY, JUNE 2, 1876.

The New York Central Railroad on Wednesday put fare from Boston to all points in the West down one dollar, when the Erie line and connecting routes went below that.

Senator Conkling cannot be accused of bidding for votes from the Pacific coast when he introduced that petition or memorial, a few days ago, from the New York Transportation Company Association, remonstrating against any further gifts or benefits being conferred upon Pacific railroads.

Among the arrivals, last week says a Philadelphia correspondent, was published that "Commodore Connor of San Francisco." We wouldn't have known it was the blunt and grizzly old Captain of the John L. Stephens if we hadn't seen him up on Ninth street ordering a Philadelphia land lubber to leave to and tell him how many knots it was down to Walnut street.

Peter Cooper has finally accepted the nomination for President at the hands of the Indianapolis convention, but in doing so he expressed as a condition that in case the party which have nominated him may attain its exalted aims of affording needed relief from the blighting effect of past unwise legislation relative to finances, through either the Republican or Democratic party, both of them meeting in national convention at an early day, he shall be permitted to step aside and remain in that quiet which is most congenial to his nature and time of life.

As we write we fancy we hear the wheels of locomotive No. 100, and the cars composing the Jarnet & Palmer train speeding its way from New York to San Francisco in four at days. They expect to take dinner the Palace Hotel on Sunday. There are sixteen persons in the company. The fare for the round trip, including one week's board at the Palace Hotel, is $500. The tickets for the guests are of beautiful workmanship, in book form, the cover being solid silver, and enclosed in white satin caskets. The cost of each ticket and casket will be $40. The New York Herald, commenting on the matter says: "It is a commendable evidence of private enterprise, and is an event which possesses national importance. What these bold managers do now as a wonderful feat, will be done twenty years from now every day."

A Washington dispatch of the 29th says: "Representative Lane has submitted to the House Pacific railroad committee and is urging the adoption of an amendment to the pending bill for the extension of the time for the completion of the N. P. R. R., providing that, as a condition of the extension, the company shall construct and equip its road between Kalama W. T., and Portland, Oregon within two years from the enactment of the bill." This appears to us to be in accordance with the previously arranged programme of the Portland Board of Trade, to divert the trade of the Willanette valley to Puget Sound. The people of Astoria seem to be asleep and do not realize what is going on about Washington. Oregonians may awaken themselves at the crack of doomsday.

When will the road leading to the cemetery grounds be made passable?

"Who is Herbert Spencer, Pap?" asked an inquisitive Brooklyn boy of his father the other morning. "He's a famous English philosopher my son." "And what's a philosopher?" continued the lad, with the business air of a person who could keep right on asking questions until doomsday. "A philosopher," returned the father gravely, "is a man who never marries."

ON JOURNALISM.—One of the most frequent and sweeping accusations made by the mass of the public against the journalists is that they have no principles, that they are trimmers, defending one thing to-day and another to-morrow. This accusation is unjust. Taken as a whole, journalists are much less guided by personal considerations in the matters of public interest than any other body of men. Life is not stationary, and they have naturally to alter their opinions now and then, under the influence of changing circumstances. But these changes are seldom the result of anticipated personal advantages. A free thinker becoming orthodox, a republican becoming a monarchist or a liberal becoming a conservative, are things by no means as frequently to be met with among journalists as they are among people at large. On the continent of Europe such a change of principles on the part of any newspaper or literary man is utterly impossible without his incurring the penalty of moral death. Most newspaper articles being signed there, the writers may in the course of time change the shade of their colors, but never the colors themselves. Political and philosophical inconsistency in journalism is the product of the anonymous press, and it is in England that it is at its highest.
