To City Subscribers.

There are such frequent changes in the residence of our city patrons that we shall feel obliged to any who make such changes if they will report the same to this office. Otherwise we shall not be responsible for failures of the carrier to deliver the paper promptly and regularly to them.

ARRIVED.—The Ajax arrived from San Francisco last evening with the usual lot of passengers and freight.

THE OUTSIDE FISHERIES.—The Canby returned last evening from Tillamook county and will go to Gray's harbor to-day.

MARRIED.—At the residence of the bride's father in this city, on Monday evening, Sept. 17th, Miss Ellen Rogers, and Mr. P. Cherry.

TEMPERANCE ADDRESSES.—W. R. Duubar, G. W. C. T. is coming on the Orizaba. He intends to remain awhile in Astoria, and during his stay will deliver one or two lectures on temperance.

HOLD HER.—The Bee says: Mr. John Burk, formerly assistant foreman of No. 1, of this city, and a No. 1 fireman, has been elected foreman of the Astoria company which is to have the steamer "Hold her nozzle to the bank," Johnny.

STILL OUT.—The bark Alumina, 182 days out from Astoria to-day, and the Dovenby, 114 days out to-day, are anxiously looked for to arrive. The Dovenby has been reported as arrived out once, and so also was the Alumina, but neither have done so yet.

SINGLE MEN AND WOMEN.—A Kentucky newspaper says that an investigation of the records of that state shows that not a single man or woman within its borders has been legally married. There are hundreds of single men and women in Oregon who would like to be legally married.

THE HOP YIELD.—The Albany Register says: "Hop growers talk largely of the extent of business on this coast. It is claimed that Oregon alone this year will ship a million bales of hops. The business was an experiment ten short years ago and now is in its infancy. The crop this year is very heavy and of good quality."

THE SEA WAIF.—This vessel which left Astoria at an early hour on Sunday for Umpqua, arrived there that same day before noon, discharged her cargo and passengers and started back yesterday. This is pretty quick work. The Sea Waif had a cargo of cannery stock on board for her owner, Mr. G. W. Hume of this city.

TIDAL OBSERVATIONS.—Capt. J. J. Gilbert, of the U. S. Coast Survey service, with headquarters now at Kalama, is going to take a series of tidal observations during the low water season this fall. For this purpose he will establish tidal stations at five points on the river. At Oak Point, Rainier, St. Helens, Vancouver and the Cascades. Capt. Gilbert was in Vancouver Tuesday morning.

HOOK AND LADDER COMPANY.—The following is the list of officers of Alert Hook and Ladder company No. 1, for the ensuing year, as elected at the regular meeting Sept. 10th: President, F. J. Taylor; Secretary, J. O. Bozarth; Treasurer, B. Van Dusen; Foreman, M. Anderson; 1st assistant, E. D. Curtis; 2d assistant, J. W. Gearhart; Delegates, F. J. Taylor, B. Van Dusen C. W. Fulton.

EXCHANGING SIGNALS.—It appears that on the morning of September 5th, the German bark Almy from Hamburg for San Francisco, was off false Tillamook Head, where she exchanged signals with the steamship Geo. W. Elder. The Elder reported her bound for Astoria, but the master of the Almy knew better, and putting about, followed the Elder and ran into San Francisco with the steamer, on the same day, arriving there on the 7th, 156 days from Hamburg. If there are tricks in all trades, this must be a trick of the sea.

OUTWARD BOUND.—By the Elder to-day Senator Grover and Congressman Williams take their departure for Washington. Capt. J. C. Ainsworth is also a passenger, going east to attend a meeting of the directors of the Northern Pacific railroad. Col. John M. Wilson is also a passenger, going to attend a meeting of the Board of Engineers, U. S. A., at San Francisco.

NO JAMAICA YET.—The British bark Jamaica, 700 tons register, which left here last November for Dunkirk with a cargo of wheat valued at $57,172, is to-day 281 days out, and not heard from. The Jamaica was loaded by Messrs. Corbitt & Macleay, but as her cargo was sold on bills of lading their interest in her was transferred, hence none in Oregon will lose should it turn out that the ship is added to the long list of those gone down at sea with nobody left to tell the story.

A CORRECT CONCLUSION.—Here is a warning for men too mean to advertise: One of this description wanted to sell some land, and so he put a written notice in one of the hotels the other day. A man who was inquiring for a small farm was referred to the written notice, when he replied: "I can't buy land at a fair price of any man who does his advertising in this way. He'd steal the fence, the pump-handle and the barn doors before he'd give up possession."

MUCKILTEO AFFAIRS.—Our man about town got on board the Zephyr yesterday, says the Seattle Intelligencer and in company with jolly Capt. Wright and the affable Barlow, three hours passed off very pleasantly till he landed at Muckilteo. Here he found the cannery closed down for the day, but Mr. Myers said, "wait till to-night and you will see some boats come in with some fish worth having." So he strolled about the beach for an hour and went up on the hill to look over the broad and glassy Sound dotted with trolling canoes in every direction. About four o'clock in the afternoon, the canoes began to flock towards the cannery. One canoe had 43, another 48, a third had 32 and a fourth 46, all caught by trolling. But at last came in a large whaling canoe with six Indians from Port Madison, where they had been hauling a seine. This boat had 408 fine large salmon, all "liver sides," making altogether a total of 527 for the day.

THE CAN CAN AND THE JUBILEE SINGERS.—We are sorry to see two respectable citizens like the Advocate and the Bee, step aside to throw mud at each other because of strangers such as the Can Can and the Tennessee Jubilee Singers. It seems that the Bee is favorable to the Can Can, and from one of the "gobs" which it flung at the Advocate came words like these: "In the first place the Turner's did not know the nature of the performance until after they had let the hall under written contract, and, in the second place, the letting of a public hall for a 'can can' performance (which more than one leading church member attended) is not more inappropriate than having a lot of minstrels sing sacrilegious songs in the very pulpit—altar—of the costliest church in the city." This whole difficulty has arisen from a weakness in human nature, "the love of the glittering generalities" and it may be "a dollar or so," which sometimes take the place of common sense in secular as well as in other places, and admits the "strangest kind" of strangers taking in and doing the most sensible metropolitan writers. Perhaps if our brother of the Advocate had known the nature of the Jubilee Singers as well before, as after the performance in "the costliest church in the city," they would not have been allowed to do so. But the Bee ought to be ashamed of itself for making any such comparisons.

Newspaper advertising is a permanent addition to the reputation of the goods advertised, because it is a permanent influence always at work in their interest.

The Salem Statesman expresses our views "to the point" in the following extract: "We have published birth, marriage and death notices, free of charge, and shall continue to do so, provided they are furnished us for publication. When such notices are not furnished, we take it for granted that their publication is not desired. It seems enough for us to give the space in our columns without being compelled to wear out boot leather in search of the items. We frequently hear of marriages, deaths, etc., but as the particulars are not furnished us, we cannot publish the same, and in some instances articles take offence because of their non-appearance."

News and Notes.

According to recent statistics the inhabitants on the earth number 28 persons to every square mile of surface. London is the most densely packed spot containing 3,489,428 souls—more than some continental kingdoms.

Richmond, Virginia, is highly amused over the appearance of the Henry Clay statue, a work of art frightfully begrimed with dirt, which has just received a pair of hands of snow white Italian marble, ordered by the general assembly to replace the mutilated ones.

The great coal mine of Los Cristales, at Cauquenes, in Chili, which has been lost for forty years, has been found and will in future be worked by English capital. It was abandoned at a time when the Chilians were in insurrection. It then filled up with water and an avalanche slid into and over it, and for forty years its whereabouts could not be ascertained.

The London correspondent of the Liverpool daily Post states that the homeopaths have discovered a certain remedy for seasickness. It is apomorpha. A very small dose of it taken once an hour in water will remove the qualms. They are so certain of its success that they are going to procure a gratuitous circulation of it among vessels that carry passengers. It is also useful for beasts whose sufferings are often extreme.

A stove dealer in Hartford has died of a slight cut made in one of his fingers by a piece of ordinary oxidized sheet zinc. The zinc inflicted a poisonous wound that in a few hours affected the whole circulation and baffled the efforts of physicians who were then summoned. Oxidized zinc, which is found in numberless houses, should therefore be handled as carefully as Woorara arrows or poisoned Chinese daggers.

Count Moltke was recently asked by a German nobleman of high rank what course he thought the war would take, and if he did not predict the early and complete subjugation of Turkey. "Certainly," replied the field marshal, "the Russians will be victorious, only their leader must not lack the four G's which every general requires." "What four G's?" "Gold, gettel, genic und gluck," replied Von Moltke. (Money, patience, genius and good luck.)

Salt Lake Tribune: The other day, while one of the late Brigham Young's numerous concubines was returning to Provo from the funeral, she was comforted by a big Scandinavian saintess who was very much troubled over the prophet's sudden taking off. She thus consolingly addressed the widow: "Vell, Bro. Brickham ish tead. I youst dink dat ish de pest dings he can do." The widow looked sad and stuck her head out of the window, exclaiming "O, pshaw!"

Newark Courier: For two or three years past the bronze statue of General Phil Kearney has been standing in an out of the way niche in the state house at Trenton. What its ultimate destination is to be none of our state officials seem to know or care. It was ordered by the state at a cost of $10,000, and intended to be placed in the rotunda of the national capitol at Washington, but one of the high art critics who occasionally find their way into our state legislature thought he discovered a defect in the work of the artist and objected to the state paying for it. It was paid for, however, when delivered, and remains just where it was dumped.

Austin Reveille: In sporting parlance a "chubber" is a player at a game who bets small stakes and is satisfied with small winnings; one who, when he gets a few dollars ahead, passes in his checks to be cashed and "jumps the game." A gentleman recently from San Francisco says that the stock market in that city is overrun with "chubbers," who, as soon as a little rise in prices leaves them a small margin of profit, dump their stocks into the market and realize. The aggregate of stocks thus offered is large, and in the present sensitive state of the stock market the stocks thus thrown upon it break it like the last feather broke the back of the fabled camel. It is to this cause that the gentleman attributes the sudden drops in the market immediately following a general rise in prices.

Hale's Piano Factory.

Referring to the terrible and fatal fire at Hale's piano factory, New York, recently the Sun says: "Whether the value of the property destroyed by the burning was a million dollars, or more or less, is a matter of small account; but the loss of life is deplorable, and the circumstances under which that loss occurred were such as to establish the certainty of guilty negligence in some quarter. The huge piano factory, eight stories high, in which the distressing scenes took place, and in which hundreds of workmen were employed, was a mere shell, a mere rickety sham of a building, put up in such a way as to invite sudden destruction by fire, or by a squall; it might, indeed, have been expected to tumble to the ground at any time through its own weakness. A similar building, owned by the same proprietor, and standing on the same spot, actually tumbled some years ago, killing eight people; and the poor bricks gathered up in that wreck, bricks which had been run up with mud instead of mortar between them, were again used in the construction of the concern which is now destroyed. This concern, moreover, was everywhere full of the most combustible material, dry lumber, shavings, varnish, pianos, and so forth. What might have been expected? In a few moments the small blaze burst into a blinding, roaring, uncontrollable sea of flame, sweeping in all directions, before which the building appeared to melt away, and from which many of the panic struck workmen were unable to escape. Such a building should never have been allowed to be put up, or to stand, or to be used as a factory, or in any other way. There are scores and hundreds of other sham buildings in other cities that perpetually threaten the lives of those who occupy them."

Local and Domestic.

The Seattle Intelligencer is informed that an expedition is about to explore the streams flowing from Mount Rainier. It has very often been thought that gold could be found on the headwaters of the Puyallup or some of its tributaries, but no explorations have as yet been made. We shall look with some anxiety for the result of their researches. It has always been our idea that this country has never been half prospected and that when experienced miners give the Olympic range a good overhauling, they will find good recompense for their toil. That argentiferous galena exists in the Cascade mountains, is already beyond dispute.

H. L. Sutton of Port Townsend has been found guilty of murder in the first degree. He has been taking some desperate chances to escape from jail but is still secure. Whisky and politics have brought him to ruin.

The Ashland Tidings, in speaking of the rapid progress of the different sections of our state, takes a hopeful view of the future of southern Oregon. It says:

Many of us who remember as but yesterday, the—
Day of the trail and the foot-log,
And the flying pony express,
When the antler'd pride of the forest,
Yielded his skin for a dress,
When blankets were parted for leggings,
Tied with a buckskin thong;
While over the mantle the rite
Hung from an antler's prong.

May yet see developments which we even now little dream of. "Time keeps ringing its changes," and we may yet ride the iron horse over ringing tracks of steel with more confidence than we did in early times our cayuse ponies over the mountain trails of southern Oregon.

SHIP-MASTER'S READING ROOM.—Mr Peter Wilhelm has permanently fitted up a ship-master's reading room in connection with the Gem saloon in Astoria. The latest shipping papers and home-ward and outward bound shipping lists are kept on file. Call and see him.
