Read J. STRAUSS' new "ad."

The bark Mattie Macleny, Captain Pope, arrived yesterday in tow of the Edith, laden from Portland by Messrs. Corbett & Macleny, for Honolulu.

Everybody is rushing to J. STRAUSS' new grocery store.

During Mr. John Hobson's absence from the city he erected a large corral at The Dalles for the reception of beef cattle for Kinney's Astoria packing establishment, and brought with him a fine band of fat ones, through to Astoria from The Dalles in one day.

J. STRAUSS sells the nicest, best, and cheapest goods in town.

Col. Miller left the Elder in a small boat at Fort Stevens yesterday, and thus deprived us of a reception. But we done the best we could. Gen. O. O. Howard returned by the same steamer, and their march "double discounts" the march through Georgia.

Fully 25 per cent. saved by buying at J. STRAUSS' new grocery store.

If you want a good kroat cutter go to Henry Gallon's wagon shop and have one made to order.

J. STRAUSS will pay the highest cash prices for fresh eggs and butter.

Lambert, the band master, tells us "there will be music in the air," Thanksgiving evening.

$2.40. You can buy the best coal oil in patent faucet cans, at J. STRAUSS'.

We do not indorse the advertisement of the Steiman jewelry company found in another column. If you pay your money on such promises you must take your chances.

Something for laundries to look at. Chemical Olive soap, 80 cents a box, at J. STRAUSS'.

More amusement. Now we hear of a club to be started soon under the auspices of the Good Templars. There is to be a library, chess room, and billiard table, and other attractions.

Just received fresh Berlin, Wisconsin, cultivated cranberries, at J. STRAUSS'.

Some of our young men are determined to get their muscle up we judge from the zeal they display in forming a gymnasium club. There are enough of them to make it a success and we have no doubt they will do so.

Sugar cured bacon at prices that defy competition; also, Chicago sugar cured hams and breakfast bacon, the best in the world, at J. STRAUSS'.

The young ladies of Astoria will give a splendid entertainment at Liberty hall on next Thursday evening, for the benefit of the Congregational church. A fine programme of select vocal and instrumental music will be given.

STRAUSS will give half a pound more sugar for one dollar than any other store in the city. All the same in coffee, beans, peas, and rice as with sugar, at J. STRAUSS'.

Our local has examined the list of names that have agreed to patronize Worsley—in his rival dancing school business and confesses he is astonished at the number of popular signatures he witnessed there. It is evident from these names that Worsley is a popular honoree of the day among the young folk, but time will tell.

Salem patent baker's flour, Imperial, Magnolia and Albany flour, very cheap for cash, at J. STRAUSS'.

REMARKS:

—Rev. G. H. Atkinson will officiate at the Congregational church to-day, as previously announced.

—The Rev. T. A. Hyland will preach a 11th annual sermon before the parish guild of Grace church to-day, at 11 a. m. Holy Communion will be administered after the sermon.

—The subject of Rev. Mr. Burchett's discourse this (Sunday) a. m., at the Baptist church will be: "God has spoken to us." And in the evening: "Reason and Revelation."

—The First Baptist church sociable, held at Mr. Broadus', proved a success, for the rooms were crowded with pleasant friends and company. Conversation, excellent vocal music, and refreshing edibles bountifully supplied, entertained the caller until a reasonably late hour. All aided to make the evening a pleasant one and we can vouch for its being one of the most sociable sociables we ever attended. The other churches would do well to follow the example set, and provide for the social enjoyment of its members, especially the strangers who are not blessed with home comforts.

—The ladies' entertainment at Liberty hall will undoubtedly be successful as it deserves to be. We are informed by "one who has been there," that all the tableaux are excellent and the singing of the highest order. The ladies are rehearsing with the intention of having a first class entertainment, and when a party of ladies make up their minds to succeed in anything, it is advisable to place no impediment in their path, but rather encourage them, especially in such a commendable undertaking as the one for the benefit of the Congregational church, next Thursday evening at Liberty hall.

—The barge Monarch last trip brought the champion load of wheat of the season. 640 tons is a pretty large load for a boat of that size. Capt. Geo. Smith brought her down and as usual, did his business thoroughly.

—During the month intervening from October 7th to November 8th, 1877, Capt. W. H. Whitcomb, with the tug Rip Van Winkle, has towed nearly 2,000,000 feet of logs for the Knappton mills, from various points below Cathlamet, Westport, and in all these operations has lost but one log. This is certainly an achievement to be proud of.

—We present to-day nearly 20 columns of solid and entertaining reading matter, extra from the usual amount, for which no extra charge is made to our daily patrons. We take subscriptions to the SUNDAY ASTORIAN at $2.50 per annum—or will deliver it weekly by carriers, regularly, at 25 cents per month.

—The recent conflagration at Portland will necessitate the immediate return of some of our young folk. So far as we have learned they have not lost much personal property with the exception of the son of Mr. Geo. Hillman who lost everything but what he stood in. The many friends of Mr. Hillman in this place will sympathize with him and offer friendly condolence, and he is worthy of it.

—That cornucopia which adorns the office of the Occident attracts much attention. Its a veritable horn, from which ivy grows in great profusion, and Charlie is very proud of it. Gossips say he purchased it from a fair lady friend who is now in great distress as she intended to have it hung in the parlor window of the new cottage. We presume some legal friend will interest himself in her behalf and proceed to recover the property. We are always ready to assist the afflicted and expose,—but we have said enough.

The Bachelor's Home.

[WRITTEN FOR THE ASTORIAN.]

"Though my shanty is built of materials so coarse,

That you'd question its fitness to shelter a horse,

And stands in the forest so lowly and lone,

It still bears a trifling resemblance to home.

"Though few are the comforts its ragged walls hold,

I've no children to bawl, and no wife to scold,

Which is some consolation, the why I'll explain:

If I'm minus a pleasure, I'm rid of a pain.

If happiness should be our chief aim in life,

And God's richest gift a true virtuous wife,

When I weigh the chances and risks to be run,

I have half-way concluded I'm better with none.

I enjoy healthful labor of body and mind

And the social communion of fellows in kind,

And obey the great mandate, more blissful than true,

Thou shalt pay for thy bread by the sweat of thy brow.

I pluck my own fig tree and bask in its shade,

With none to molest me or make me afraid,

And no one to boss me or mark off my stint,

Or landlord to sue for his quarterly rent.

"Though far from being rich, I can't call myself poor,

I've enough to subsist on, why should I crave more?

With health to enjoy it and sweet peace of mind,

In my cozy old shanty I sing to the wind.

With a book to instruct me when night ends my toil,

Shut in from the world, with its endless turmoil.

Serene flows the moments as noiseless they pass,

Without jar or confusion, like sand through the glass.

And I hope ere old age shall unnerve my hard hand

By death's friendly stroke, to be laid by the land,

And on its kind bosom I'll make my last bed,

And sleep my last slumber in peace with the dead.

THE RAGGED BARD.

CLATSOP, October 16, 1877.

The Fish Subject.

ASTORIA, Nov. 10, 1877.

ED. ASTORIAN:—DEAR SIR: The article on the first page of the Astorian of to-day, headed "The Fish Subject," and signed "J. C. T.," has so many incongruities and absurdities in it, to call its statements by no harsher terms, that its reading, by any one near Astoria, will be its confutation.

But I beg to notice just two items of it. It says that all the "mills, woolen factories, and tanneries" "never killed a salmon in Oregon."

I wish to ask "J. C. T." if he thinks a school of say 100,000 small salmon, from one to two inches long, could pass down the Clackamas or Tualatin river, from their birth place, near the head waters of the stream, through a reach of two or three miles in the river below the sawmills, taking two or three days to make it, when the water of the river in that reach is milky white with sawdust, fine and coarse, and arrive in the Wallamet and Columbia in a healthy condition?

If he thinks the tiny, tender young salmon could live through such treatment and thrive afterwards, with their breathing and food taking apparatus in good condition for a long life, then I must say that he and I differ in that.

As to how the sawdust can be kept out of the water, I suppose "J. C. T." knows that steam mills in the country, away from streams of water, take their sawdust away from the mill by hand or with a long screw in a box, or with an endless revolving apron or belt, and then burn it or fill some swamp or mud hole with it. The same can be done at mills run by water.

By similar or other easy methods, the waste matter of all manufactories can be disposed of without detriment to the running streams of water, or without detriment to the air of the country, cities or towns, even if they have to burn them, cremate them.

As ever for the fishing interest.
