BRIEF ANNOUNCEMENT.

Hamburger has just opened a lot of new five cent cigars from Chicago. Call and try them.

A stunningly beautiful selection of valentines were opened at the City Book store yesterday. Call around and see them.

One more opportunity will be afforded our citizens to hear the justly celebrated professors. Mr. Worsley having prevailed on them at a large expense to himself to remain in the city until next Friday evening, when they will play for his popular soiree, giving the choicest musical selections during the intermission.

No vessel passed in or out of the river yesterday.

Get shaved and have your boots blacked at Backensto's.

The barometer last night was favorable to fair weather.

Capt. Flavel returned from his visit to Portland last evening.

A large and beautiful stock of Valentines, will be opened at Adler's book store this week.

Mr. C. F. Plympton of Westport, paid us a very pleasant call last evening. Mr. C. B. Spear, of Clifton, is also sojourning in the city.

Mr. John Fry, jr., of Grays river, mourns the loss of his little two-year old daughter, whose death occurred about three weeks ago.

Mr. Sidney Dell, one of the leading members of the Portland bar, arrived in the city last evening, to join the ranks of the profession at present making headquarters at the Occident.

Cannermen and business men in general will do well to examine Adler's new stock of Blank-books and Stationery which he bought in the East and offers at less than Portland prices.

Bright and balmy was the weather yesterday. It indicates that soon the "beautiful snow" will vanish from the surrounding hill tops, and spring be prepared for its mantle of green once more.

Mr. J. O. Spenser, the popular clerk of the Oregon Packing company, at Clifton, called upon us last evening. Mr. S. has been spending the winter in Yamhill county, but expects soon to report for duty on the Columbia river.

A private dispatch from Mr. Mulkey to Hon J. F. Caples, last evening informs us that the Supreme court has sustained the judgment of the court below in the case of the State v. Brown and Johnson, and these two O'Shea murderers will be hung.

Farmer W. H. Gray of Klaskan farm surprised his friends by appearing in the city yesterday. Recently he was very badly hurt by a log rolling upon him. The log was hauled by a team of cattle and the teamster did not dare to stop the team, but pulled the log over Mr. Gray's leg. Strange to say not a bone was broken.

At the Congregational church, on Friday evening, Prof. L. J. Powell, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, will deliver a lecture on educational topics, and the practical workings of our school system, etc. He will leave the city to-day for Clatsop. Prof. Powell is favorable to the matter of holding a state institute at Astoria some time during the coming summer.

Was not Crazy.

He took a seat in our large arm chair, rested his face in his hands, and plaintively inquired for Doc. Hicks. We pointed the way, when he struck the attitude of a disciple of Shakespeare, thanked us for our kindness, and belched forth after Hamlet in the following style:

To have it out or not, that is the question. Whether 'tis better for the jaw to suffer The pangs and torments of an aching tooth Or to take steel against a host of troubles. And, by extracting, end them? To pull, to tug. No more; and by a tug to say we end The toothache, and a thousand natural ills The jaw is heir to—'tis consumption Devoutly to be wished. To pull—to tug—to tug, perchance to break—aye, there's the rub; For in that wrench what agonies may come. When we have half dislocated the stubborn foe, Must give us pause; there's a life; That makes an aching tooth of so long a life; For who would bear the whips and stings of pain? The pangs of hope deferred, kind sleep delayed, While he himself might his quietus make For one poor dollar? Who would fardels bear, To groan and sink beneath a load of pain. But that the dread of something lodged within, The linen and twisted forceps from whose fangs No jaws at ease returns, puzzles the will. And makes it rather bear the ills it has Than fly to others it knows not of. Thus dentists do make cowards of us all; And thus the native hue of pale cast or fear; Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of fear; And many a one whose courage seeks the door With this regard, her footsteps turn away, Scared at the name of dentist.

When he found out that Hicks done the job so nicely he came back and wanted to pay for a pull for the artist. He wasn't crazy; he only had the tooth-ache—a thing which he will know here no more forever. So mote it be.

Denies the Soft Impeachment.

Purser W. T. Stephens, of the upper Columbia, returned to Oregon by the last steamship, and he denies the soft impeachment charging him with having committed matrimony during his absence. It looked a little suspicious, to say the least, Steve, to see your name telegraphed up in the connection in which it appeared in THE ASTORIAN the morning following the departure of the steamship from San Francisco: "W. T. Stephens and wife." Of course nobody here could but suppose that to be the fact. It is well understood that you are deserving of all the blessings of this life, and nothing would please your friends better than to extend their hearty congratulations. Time, the great revealer of all things, will eventually set this matter at rest, and if you are deceiving us we have charity to believe that your motives are prompted by a sense of duty to yourself.

Good Templars Election.

At the regular meeting of the Winifred lodge, No. 328, the following persons were elected:

Lottie Spear.....W. C. T.
Phebe F. Knapp.....W. V. T.
Ernest L. Mitchell.....W. S.

Mary A. Van Dusen.....W. C.
W. T. Ross.....W. M.
Charles B. Spear Jr.....W. I. G.
J. W. Crow.....W. O. G.
Daniel Sutherland.....W. R. H. S.
Sarah J. Davison.....W. L. H. S.
E. Vandermaas.....W. D. M.
W. A. S.

Grand Jurors.

The grand jury impaneled for the present term of the Circuit court consist of J. C. Trullinger, foreman, P. Matteson, B. A. Seaborg, E. H. Welch, A. J. Megler, J. H. DeForce and Ira A. Young. The jury returned one true bill of indictment yesterday. John Badollet and J. O. Bozorth were sworn as bailiffs.

The city is at present enlivened by the presence of a large number of citizens of the county whose faces are seldom met with upon our streets. They are mostly called hither in consequence of the sitting of the Circuit court, in various capacities, as jurors, witnesses, litigants, etc. We shall be happy to receive the calls of friends at THE ASTORIAN office.

We are informed from reliable sources that there are yet thousands of cases of salmon in the hands of agents which cannot be disposed of at any price. This is certainly an indication of another dull season in the cannery line. We regret it; but, regret it as much as one likes, the stern reality appears that something besides fish must be canned to make this a profitable business in the future.

An advertisement in a newspaper is worth forty "directory" cards and other foolish imitations. The paper is seen every day by hundreds, while the book is noticed by only a very few.

We desire it to be distinctly understood that those who send us advertisements from abroad, must send the cash with the advertisements, if they would have them appear. We have numbers of advertisements sent us from strangers saying, "Please insert and send bill." This we cannot do; the cash must accompany any theory and the order.

A new pope always selects the name by which he is to be called. The present pope, on being asked for his choice, asked the name of the patron saint of the day. On being told it was that of St. Leo, he replied: "Then announce me as Leo XII."

WHAT WE LIKE.—To hear a man try to borrow his neighbors paper. And the neighbor have courage enough to reply: "I would as soon lose you my tooth brush." To have a party imagine that he can do as much business without advertising as he can with it; to look at the blank astonishment that settles down on that man's face when, after trying a month, he finds that it cannot be done; to see a man refuse to take his local paper and all the time sponge on his neighbor for the use of his; to hear a man complain when we ask him to subscribe for his home paper, that he takes more papers now than he can read, and then go around and borrow his neighbor's or loaf about him until he gets the news from it; to see a man run down his home paper as not worth taking, and every now and then beg the editor for a favor in the editorial line; to see a man refuse to advertise in a home paper, and then try and get a share of trade that the paper is instrumental in bringing to his door; to see a man who is able to pay for his local paper, always manage to be around in time to read it at the expense of a friend not worth the tenth part of what he himself is, it looks so economical, thrifty, and progressive, you know.

"Goods speak for themselves," but it is only after they are bought that they can do so. An object in advertising is to induce people to buy them and test them. If goods speak for themselves, a good advertisement may also speak for the goods.

Why are advertisers able to sell at the lowest prices? Is it not because they obtain the largest custom, by the most reasonable expenditure, and are really able to buy lower than their neighbors. Many people imagine that the effect of advertising is only to enable a merchant to sell. The reactive effect on his power to buy well is often lost sight of.

A newspaper is a window through which men look out upon the world. Without a newspaper a man is shut up in a small room, and knows little or nothing of what is happening outside of himself. In our day the newspaper will keep a sensible man in sympathy with the world's current history. It is an unfolding encyclopedia and handbook, forever issuing and never finished.

There is a quiet courtesy and modest unobtrusiveness about a wise advertisement that create a certain responsive feeling of sympathy in the reader. We all like to be solicited, and it is natural to suppose that he who most politely, clearly and persistently solicits us, stands the better chance for our trade. The familiar advertisements of local papers often cover these points with great tact and ingenuity.
