Steamer goes. Oregon day to sea. Front seats are in demand at Metropolitan hall for Thursday night. Rev. Mr. Parker will be absent from the city for a few days, and there will be no services in Grace church on Sunday next. The steamer Magnet has been chartered to assist the engineers in the annual survey of Sand Island and Point Adams. She will take the party to the island on Thursday.

M. R. A. Habersham, one of the most experienced assistant engineers in the corps, went to Fort Stevens yesterday preparing for a survey of Sand Island. He expects to complete his work this week.

Part of the wharf gave way near Dr. O'Brien's hotel yesterday and injured one man, besides scaring two others badly. It was not the fault of the wood pile, but was owing to a weakness of the piles below it.

Mr. Cramer Joslin called upon us night before last. Mr. Joslin is a resident of Freeport, and one of the leading nursery men of Clatsop county—at least he produces a fine quality of potatoes, in large quantities.

A splendid game of base ball was played on Court-house square yesterday between picked nine of Barlow, Primrose, West and Wilson's minstrels, and picked nine of Astoria. The result was the same as usual. One of the Astoria boys caught a fly in his eye.

We are under obligations to Capt. Rees Williams for remembering THE ASTORIAN on his flying trip to Europe. He sent us, from Ogden on Easter Sunday, a fine photographic copy of "Utah's best crops," sixty-eight little jokers all in a group—babes of the household of one saint.

A private letter from Mr. W. J. Denver informs us that the Nehalem settlers at a recent meeting resolved to put that road through this summer, if a little more aid is rendered by the city. We hope that there will be concert of action, and push ahead, if it should be dropped now the road is a gone goose.

Parents would do well to read the following, from a late Sacramento paper, to their little girls: "About two weeks ago a number of little girls in this city entered into a skipping-rope contest, to see who could make the greatest number of jumps without missing. One of them, aged about eight years, succeeded in making 208 skips without missing, and was declared the champion. An hour or so after her victory, however, she was taken ill, had to be put to bed and the doctor was summoned. Fever set in, and on Thursday last the little girl died, and her funeral took place this afternoon."

Squivalence has got a fearful head on him. O, mercy, you ought to see it, how it must hurt; but he came honestly by it, he didn't steal it nor nothing of that sort, but when the band went up to Portland with the Hyers Sisters combination, and escorted the minstrels from Tacoma via Kalama by the Ordway, one of the hand boys turned a summersault, and just then Squiv, turned his head to see it, but he didn't see it; because the fellow's heels lit right in his eyes, and Squivalence has not seen it yet. His head was dressed in honey yesterday, and our fellow citizen says that is all the sweetness there is about it. It was really a pity that he could not see the summersault, turned after taking so many pains; but he could not, and that's no joke, neither is this item, but Squiv will enjoy it as soon as he can get his eyes open wide enough to read it.

The Scientific American supplement of the 3d ult., contains an illustration of the steamship Hudson, 1783 tons, built on the same plan exactly as the Knickerbocker, 1642 tons, and gives the time made by both the Hudson and the Knickerbocker and the New Orleans, 1440 tons, between New York and New Orleans, which shows that the Knickerbocker is the fastest one of the three, all built alike. The distance from New York to New Orleans (wharf to wharf), is 1800 sea knots. The line has been run for some years, and is known as the Cronwell line. The Knickerbocker's average trip out against the current was 6 days 7 hours, beating the Hudson, and beating the New Orleans 3 hours. Her average trip back, with the current, was 5 days and 14 hours, beating the Hudson, beating the New Orleans three hours. Her shortest trip out was 5 days and 20 hours, one hour less than the Hudson's shortest, and twelve hours less than the shortest by the New Orleans. Her shortest trip back was 5 days and 6 hours, four hours less than the Hudson, and six hours less than the New Orleans. Her greatest run in one day was 330 knots; she consumes but 17 tons of anthracite coal per day.

Birth-day Offering—April 21, 1879.

[Written for THE ASTORIAN.] Many the long years that now have swept o'er thee Silvery white is their touch on thy hair, Sorrows and cares ah! how oft they have bore thee— Deep as the scars they have left thee to wear.

Manys the storms thou hast passed on life's ocean Yet hast thou kept the "Fair Haven" in view; Safely thou'st steered through the waves and commotion Guided afar by the "Beacon-light true." Oft times the winds have been adverse and chilling, Tempting—the shores that allured thee to rest— Still onward thou'st sailed, ne'er o'er come or unwilling 'Cause nearer each day to the port of the best.

Experience like thine, we might all of us covert As also the faith which has grown with thy years; Thou'rt rich in the love that springs from and above it, Soothing earth's sorrows, and quelling its fears.

How many the burdens of woe thou hast lightened! How ready and willing thy hand to relieve! How many the faces thy kind words have brightened! 'Tis truly more blessed to give than receive.

And now, on thy birthday, ascendeth a prayer From hearts, all as earnest and loving as ours, That God, in his goodness, will see fit to spare Long, long to his friends, such a True-man as Powers.

Latest From the Wreck.

There was but very little came ashore yesterday from the wreck that was valuable. The vessel is gradually breaking to pieces. They succeeded in getting two of Wm. Hume's boats off yesterday. There are six dead horses on the island.

Card of Thanks.

Shortly after the California steamed out of Astoria on Monday, the following card of thanks was circulated among the passengers of the ill-fated steamer and received the signatures of all to whom it was presented: We, the undersigned passengers by the steamer Great Republic hereby tender our sincere thanks to Capt. James Carroll, the officers and crew of the steamship Great Republic, and also the officers and crew of the steamer Shubrick, and the tug Canby, Brennan and Columbia, for their untiring energy in rescuing the passengers from the wrecked steamship Great Republic. We especially desire to express our indignant denial of any scandalous and scurrilous reports, which have been, or may be, circulated upon the conduct of Captain Carroll, his officers and crew.

Fix the Door.

A few days since, says the Salem Statesman, as Mr. George Herren was attempting to close the door on the Farmer's warehouse it fell from its hinges and catching him in its descent felled him to the floor. The door is a large one, weighing in the neighborhood of 750 pounds, and had there not been a pile of sand on the floor upon which the door fell it would most likely have killed Mr. Herren outright. As it was, he only received a few bruises and a good scare. It was some fifteen minutes before he was able to extricate himself from under the door. Just one year ago, to a day, and about the same hour, his brother was caught in the same manner, by the same door and knocked senseless, where he lay for some time before being restored to consciousness. Rather a curious coincidence. And to save the repetition of it next year at that date it should be fixed, or else another load of sand ought to be hauled in for the door to come down soft upon.

The chart exhibits the channels and shoals, and soundings are given at all points. With this chart the reader will be able to see precisely how the disaster occurred.
