THE CITY.

THE DAILY ASTORIAN will be sent by mail at 75 cents a month, freight postage. Readers who contemplate absence from the city can have THE ASTORIAN follow them, DAILY or WEEKLY without any post-office without additional expense. Addresses may be changed as often as desired. Leave orders at the counting room.

—Steamer day.
 —Idaho due from Frisco.
 —Are you an Old Fellow? Be up to-night.
 —The Board of delegates A. F. D., meet this evening.
 —August Adolph was hurt by the fall of Dr. O'Brien's wood pile.
 —No more bodies of the lost but gallant men from the Republic, have been found.
 —Buy a copy of THE WEEKLY ASTORIAN—full particulars, and all facts about the wreck.
 —THE WEEKLY ASTORIAN printed to-day will contain all the news of the Great Republic disaster.
 —No more whisky will be sold from bars up on the Oregon Steam Navigation company's boats after this month. Good resolve; stick to it.
 —Councilman Peter Runey's seat will perhaps be vacant in the board for some time. He is very sick, and is confined to his room, and requires constant attention.
 —Why truth travels so much slower than error is explained by the size of the (cylinder) head. A great empty space makes a capital shop for the work of the devil.
 —Twenty-five dollars reward will be paid by J. W. Jackson, steward of the steamer Shubrick, for recovery of the body of Thos. McEvoy, one of the men lost from the Great Republic.
 —The schooner Trustee, Capt. McAllep, Simpson Bro.'s last new vessel, arrived yesterday. She has a general cargo for Astoria and Portland. She is discharging at G. W. Hume's dock.
 —Pendleton girls chewed up tons of gun last year. One-fourth of it can be found to-day sticking under mantle shelves. The other half was carried away by young men who go a courting.
 —The G. F. Manson arrived at Liverpool on the 21st, from Astoria. The R. B. Fuller arrived at Queenstown on the same day. The Manson sailed on the 12th, and the Fuller on the 13th of December.
 —There are sick sailors in this port, who have to be kept at private houses, at ship expense; for want of a marine hospital. How high is that for a first class port. We shall ventilate this business in a few days.
 —It is said that the cannerymen on this river have finally agreed solid upon one thing; and that is this: That they cannot agree upon anything they could agree upon. It is not necessary to say anything further upon the subject.
 —Messrs. A. Van Dusen, F. J. Taylor, and other citizens visited the wreck yesterday, and collected some relics of the disaster. Mr. Taylor left at this office an upper-case showing that that great civilization, metallic type, forms part of the lost cargo.
 —The Walla Walla Watchman makes a good suggestion to the Oregon Steam Navigation company on the recent naming of the steamer D. S. Baker. It says: "Let them name their next new boat in honor of Wm. Stevens Esq., for he stood by Dr. Baker to the last and never flinched."
 —We have always felt that a person would be justified in killing a burglar caught in the act of burglarizing his or her premises, for the reason that the burglar is generally an assassin, prepared to murder, rather than be captured. The dispatches from Stockton confirm this view.
 —Yesterday about noon some unknown scoundrels stole a pair of rubber boots from Mr. Aug. Smith's house on Court street, where he was working. If they will come back at noon to-day, Mrs. Smith will give them a new pair of stockings she has just finished. People should be on guard for rascals. Some of the lowest curs in God's whole creation hover about Astoria.
 —A stranger committed suicide yesterday afternoon by jumping from the roadway. He passed Mrs. Twombly and Mrs. Withers a moment before, saying, "they're going to hang me to-night, but I'll put a stop to that," and suiting the action to the word jumped overboard and was drowned. The body was recovered very quickly, but life could not be restored. The poor fellows reason was dethroned, and he crossed over the valley of death into the mystery beyond very deliberate and coolly. Let us hope that he is happier in that world than he has been in this. We understand that his name is Conway, and that he leaves a family in San Francisco. He has been in this vicinity but a short time.

Saved From Destruction.

The British Bark Stagbound Rescued by the Thomas Corwin.

Private dispatches from Port Townsend, by the grape vine line, which is opposed to the red tape line, informs us that on the morning of the 17th inst., while the United States revenue cutter Thomas Corwin was steaming up the coast, she sighted a vessel at day-light, with

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS FLYING
 And their anchors down, close on to a reef of rocks about ten miles below Cape Flattery light. A hawser was passed to the ship immediately and she was towed to the west-ward about fifteen miles. Upon boarding her it was found that every preparation was made for leaving her, as she was at every swell

REDGING ON TO THE REEF.
 She proved to be the British bark Stagbound, Capt. Fawcett, from Burrard Inlet, for Cape Town, with spars for a navy yard. She had two passengers, and a crew of twenty-three persons including officers, who were thus providentially

SAVED FROM DEATH.
 The Stagbound was towed to sea on the 16th. The tug let go of her off the Cape light at 2 o'clock P. M., after which there being a strong current and tide, and only light winds, she was set in to the shore, and let go anchors at 6 o'clock P. M. If it had not been for the accidental presence of the cutter no power could have prevented the ship from going ashore on the rocks and she would perhaps have been a complete wreck.

NEWS OF THE RESCUE
 Was sent to Port Townsend and Victoria papers, and the people up this way feel under very great obligations to Capt. Brain. We are greatly in favor of his being stationed up here somewhere, say at Neah bay, with cruising grounds from Port Townsend to the Columbia river.

MICA CURTIS.
 Port Townsend, April 22d 1879.

Latest Reports From the Wreck.

At noon yesterday we met Capt. Carroll just from the wreck. He has turned matters over to the agent of the board of underwriters, Capt. George Flavel, and as will be seen by advertisement this morning, the ship and cargo will be sold so far as the board have authority to dispose of the same. There remains on board the wreck yet, about from eight hundred to one thousand tons of cargo. We have not been to the ship, and cannot therefore describe the condition of this freight, but in all probability the whiskeys, wines, gin, and other cordials are in better condition than the cigars, silks, sugars, crackers etc. There is an everlasting stock of it all together. Capt. Carroll was on board of the ship yesterday in company with some gentlemen interested as consignees. They found one horse still alive, and when the poor brute discovered that there were human beings near him his plaintive whinnys were touching to all who heard them. The faithful beast was in the engineers room, deck after deck of the vessel having broken away from under him, and washed off with the wreck. As it was utterly impossible to save the animal, and its pitiful appeals indicated its sad condition, it was shot by the owner.

Several more of the passengers left by the Oregon for San Francisco, terminating a pleasure trip with sadness. Notably was this the case with Miss Kennedy, one of the ladies who remained on the wreck until the very last with several others. It is said that during all that furious Saturday night, when the ship was actually going to pieces, and when surrounding scenes were enough "to try men's souls," Miss Kennedy never for one moment lost her presence of mind, and by every possible way endeavored to render the cheerless prospect less awful, by administering to the wants of her fellow passengers, and as state room after state room disappeared by the surging seas which washed the ship from stem to stern, Miss Kennedy was searching for more comfortable quarters for the distressed. It was distressing such as none but those who experienced it can form any correct ideas, perhaps, but to this lady we are requested to return the heartfelt thanks of many who remained by the ship that night.

A Live Horse Picked up.

Yesterday morning as the steam bar tug C. J. Brenham was approaching the dock with the schooner Trustee in tow from sea, the usual crowd gathered around to hear the news from the wreck. A live horse was observed on the forward deck of the tug eating straw like an ox, and appeared otherwise to be hungry. It was not long until the singular story got afloat that as Capt. George was passing the automatic buoy, fully eight miles off the coast, something was sighted bobbing up and down off the starboard bow, and the tug headed for it. Lo! and behold! it was a live horse! evidently from the wreck, and must have been in the water at least four days. The horse was hoisted on board and brought to the city with the return of the tug-boat, landed at Flavel's wharf, and afterwards anchored on the dock. Thousands of people flocked to see him; as the marvelous story was spreading like wild fire throughout the city, and just as somebody started after the band to give the poor dumb brute a reception Mr. M. P. Callender happened to discover mud in the hair of the fetlocks, and he was "so curious" that it finally revealed the fact that Capt. Flavel had bought the horse at Fort Canby; Capt. Spurgeon had rode him all through the last Indian campaign; it had never been to sea, etc., etc., and then the crowd got mad and wanted the animal lynched! but they didn't do anything; as this lie was only skin milk when compared to other stories which have grown out of this wreck. The aligator of this last allegation was not to be found,—as usual. The honk never had any start, it was full fledged and spontaneous.

AMUSEMENTS.

What on earth they've went and changed Maud Miller's name for, surprises us. Payne; Miss Payne; now that is n't half so pretty as Maud; why couldn't they say "Maud Miller" was her stage name; and the painful portion stand as a reality? But we really do hope the young lady may meet with success in her new career. Maud has talent which will advance her, under Miss Eytting's instruction, no doubt.

To-night, at Metropolitan hall, will appear for the first time in Astoria "Mad. Rentz's original female Minstrels and Mable Santley's London burlesque company," as the combination is termed. The Call says they certainly deserve some public recognition as the best show of the kind we have had in the city for years. It is very chaste, nice and proper. There are some twelve ladies in the first part and three male performers—an interlocutor and two end men. These make the fun, and a good deal of it entirely new, while the singing of the ladies is worthy of commendation. There are some excellent soprano and contralto voices in the company. Their costume is quiet and elegant. If we may make a selection, the ballads by Miss Rosa Lee, May Ten Broeck and Lulu Mortimore are the features of the programme of the first part. The specialties that intervene between this and the burlesque of "Paris" are varied, a clever costume change scene by Florrie Plim-soll, and acts, songs and scenes, all neat and admirable in their way. The musical burlesque of "Paris" rises to the grade of opera bouffe—as the singing is of a very good class. Miss Mable Santley, who assumes the character of "Gaucem," was formerly a member of Miss Lydia Thompson's troupe, and this is her second visit to the United States.

Meeting To-Night.

HALL OF BEAVER LODGE No. 35, I. O. O. F., ASTORIA, OREGON, April 16, 1879. To the Officers and Members of Beaver Lodge No. 35, I. O. O. F.:

Special invitations will be issued to friends of the order only by the committee. Tickets of admission will be One Dollar. T. S. JEWETT, Chairman of the Committee.

Court Proceedings.

POLICE COURT—H. B. PARKER—J.
 Astoria, April 23, 1879.

Ah Tan, a celestial from the flowery Kingdom was arranged for use of "profane and abusive language." It is said that this "knight of the queue" (no reflection), was very abusive, and the words, as they fell from his lips, made a bigger racket than the "broke-a-china" which was pitched under the tables at the la-bon-ton reception at the mansion of the Mexican minister in Washington city. Ah Tan paid a forfeit of $5 00. James Martin, an unfortunate drunk paid a fine of $2 00.

—Sheep are being shipped on sailing vessels to Peru from Puget-sound. Whether there is a seal law in that South American republic or not, we've not heard. The people of that section have resolved to breed no more mutton from hydraulic rams, and will plant their lamb crops in drills, avoiding irrigation during the summer months. Thus the spirit of Yankee progress is spreading the genius of American intelligence everywhere. Angora goats are to be summer-fallowed in Brazil, after the manner of the fallow deer in England.

—Dr. Foote's Health Monthly has been published for three years, and has established a reputation as a health journal. Thousands of papers quote, and their readers appreciate its articles. And yet the Health Monthly with its sixteen royal octavo pages is offered at fifty cents per year. Send for sample copy. It will be mailed free. Dr. E. B. Foote, author of Medical Common Sense, etc., is its senior editor, assisted by E. B. Foote, Jr., who is also in practice with his father. All the readers of Dr. Foote's publications can consult the Doctor free upon any subject relating to health or disease. A cheap popular edition of Plain Home Talk embracing Medical Common Sense, is sent by mail, postage prepaid, for $1 50. You better enclose a $2 00 postal order for both the book and the Health Monthly. Address Murray Hill Publishing Company, 129 East 28th street, New York City.
