Two Chinamen left Jacksonville for Ashland last week for the purpose of starting a wash house. They did not succeed, however, but returned, followed by a yelling crowd of men and boys who had heard that they had come to break ground for a Josh Temple in that pious city.

It is stated that the Olympia and Tenino narrow gauge railroad company would send out surveyors as soon as the weather permitted, to locate an extension of their route from Tenino to some point on the Chehalis river. As soon as this extension is completed, they will put on a light draught steamboat and thus have through connection from Chehalis point to Olympia, a distance of 108 miles.

The body of a man was found on Clatsop beach, one mile south of the wreck of the City of Dublin, on Wednesday evening last. The justice of the peace of Clatsop precinct was notified, but our informant states that he refused to take any action. A suitable box was made and the body buried the next day. The hair had all gone from his head, and his face was beyond recognition, and nothing was found in his pockets by which he could be recognized. He was dressed in red flannel undershirt, heavy blue overshirt, blue drawers and light pantaloons, and wore light boots with heavy soles.

Massachusetts Widows Marrying Tramps.

Springfield Republican.

Within a few months and in a radius of nine miles from here I can call to mind three or four widows, comfortably well off, who have married chaps that came tramping along. A while ago you noticed the case of a Southwick woman who committed this folly, and whose husband is now in jail for abusing and threatening the lives of his wife and mother-in-law. His favorite form of amusement was to place the "woman folks" in chairs side by side, and after poking a loaded gun in their faces, to fire it off at a target just above their heads. Five weeks ago a respectable and well connected woman of this town, whose husband died less than two years ago, leaving her a nice little home and some $2,000 in cash, "got struck" on a tramp who came to her door, and though twenty years his senior she married him. Since then her home has been a rendezvous for about all the tramps who come along, and apparently the good news is being widely spread among the fraternity. A few days ago the woman appeared with a badly bruised face and damaged eyes, and her friends had her husband arrested for assault. The trial was a most ludicrous affair, for the wife admitted that "Johnnie" not only was the cause of her present disfigurement, but had soundly thrashed her at least twice a week during their brief honeymoon, she declared that she loved him dearly and that he only whipped her when he was mad, because she wouldn't at first asking give him money or buy him a horse and carriage. The man said that he didn't think that he had thrashed her above once a week, and that he, too, loved her dearly. Upon this followed a very romantic scene, the woman rushing into his arms and mingling her tears and kisses with his ditto, and both fairly fell on their knees before Judge Lewis to beg his mercy. Judge Lewis told them: "I want no such nonsense here," and fined the man $5 85, which the woman paid, and a few minutes later they were seen lovingly riding towards their peaceful home.

A Compliment to American School-ma'ms

The London correspondent of the Chicago journal writes: Curiously enough the female school teachers of the United States were a subject of discussion in the house of commons one night last week. Mr. Mundella had referred favorable to them, when Mr. Mills indulged in a sneer and doubted that the custom was one that could be profitably followed in this country. Then up rose Mr. Plunkett, a gallant Irishman, who said he had been in the United States and there studied the subject, and expressed the opinion that "it would be a grand benefit to this country if we could import 200 or 300 of those American women teachers." Mr. Maclaren, also quoted the bishop of Manchester, who has declared, also from personal experience, that their teaching is generally "much better than that given in this country." Your lady teachers were thus eloquently and successfully defended, but it was surely an odd subject for discussion in the British house of commons.

Many farmers around the country who have been hoarding up their stock of potatoes, are now selling them for a lower price than they might have realized in the winter. To be fully satisfied with what is enough, is always a safe rule of action.
