When Will Congress Acjourn.

On the 21st of last month 1,400 bills were introduced in the lower house of congress. They were referred to various committees. Such a day's work was never done in the National legislature before. Not only was the number of bills enormous, but the titles thereof, showed an amount of misdirected ingenuity in attempting what is either silly, vicious or impossible, which should not exist outside of a lunatic asylum. The measures which are thus characterized did not originate with any particular party. Some were by democrats, some by republicans and others of the worst by the greenbackers. Some of them involve such large interests that they promise to bring on a long session and general legislation. Measures affecting railways either favorably or unfavorably; for distributing the Geneva | bid the highest took the whole lot award fund; for revising the tariff and at $1,015. The trapping party internal revenue laws-these may get under such headway that an early adjournment will be impossible.

A Just Compliment.

The Oregon City Enterprise of last week pays the following merited tribute to our whilom associate on the Democrat, Hon. C. B. Bellinger, who now wears the ermine in the fourth judicial district:

We have attended court regularly during the present term, and feel greatly pleased in adding our humble quota of admiration to the many encomiums that have already been passed upon the eminent that country. A more hardy set gentleman who fills the onerous position of judge of this court. His charge to the jury, at all times delivered in the most admirable manner, one that cannot fail to draw the closest and most interesting attention; calm, clear, and in language that the most unfamiliar with legal phrases and expressions cannot misconstrue a single sentence. Our readers will remember his masterly charge to the jury in that import case of Johnson and Brown; to every mind that read it, and bore

'air and impartial judgment, a porough familiarity with the law, and possessing the power of defining to the jury the most obtuse theories. Since his elevation to the bench Judge Bellinger has been confronted with some of the heaviest calendars on record, and so far his opinions and decisions have met with an undivided approval from all classes of the community. During the present term of court the honorable gentleman has endeared himself both in and out of court to many who hitherto only knew him by an irreproachable reputation. Though politically opposed to the learned judge, we extend to him our kind wishes for his future welfare, believing that at all times sterling worth, independent of creed or faction, is deserving of a fair and just appreciation.

-We doubt if there is an honest man in the country who will say that, in his opinion, the cause of religion has been advanced by the Talmage trial. The scenes enacted in court have unavoidedly impaired that respect which is very generally felt for It is a sad disappointment to the inthe reverend clergy. The littleness of ordinary human nature, unaided by divine grace, has been painfully apterest of religion, morality and good ciation to render the occasion makes even saints appear exceedingly hotel, and an address by a distinguish-

Large Sale of Furs.

Albany Democrat.

Our readers will remember of reading in our paper from time to time articles in regard to the labors of a party which has been trap- State ping up in the Cascades during the past season, and it will probawhat success the party has met.

The pelts were brought down from the mountain last Monday, and a more beautiful lot we have never the newspaper printed in the county where the land in contest lies; and if m. newspaper printed in such county, then in the newspaper printed in the county where the land in contest lies; and if m. newspaper printed in the county where the land in contest lies; and if m. newspaper printed in the county then in the newspaper printed in the county nearest such land. bly interest them to know with more beautiful lot we have never nearest such land. seen. Nineteen varieties of furs were represented, and following will be found the names and number of each:

Marten. Fox-red. Wildeat ... Otter..... 14 Ermine Muskrat. Bear-brown black. grey..... S0 Ths

Before the pelts arrived here the fur dealers had heard of them, and five different men were here to bid for their purchase-San Francisco, Salem and this city being represented. On Tuesday afternoon the furs were examined and Portland sealed bids were made, and Mr. N. Solomon, of Portland, having consists of Mr. Hensley, well kidney and bladder remedy before the known to persons who have traveled the Lebanon mountain road, Al. Swartz, formely of Junction, and Chas. Willert, of this city. Their line of traps through the past winter has extended entirely over the Cascades and reached down on Cache creek and the Mitalus, and through the coldest weather they have tramped it along these lines, baiting their traps and carrying in their pelts. In a few weeks they expect to go up the Columbia to see what prospect there is up there for trapping, and if they find the indications good to the indications good A. E. Mintie, M. D., No. 11 Kearny street, they will pass the next season in of fellows than these three men we have never seen. It takes the true grit to enable a man to do the work they have during the past winter.

Will Take an Appeal.

The Call says Capt. Carroll intends to appeal from the findings already announced in his case. Basing his reasons for such appeal on the grounds that if he erred at all it was in not displacing the pilot and assuming command of the ship when, in his opinion, it was one that carried conviction she had approached too near Sand island. He does not claim to be the unmistakable evidence of a thoroughly familiar, however, with the tides of the Columbia river, and deferred to the judgment of the pilot, who was supposed to be perfectly conversant with the tides and currents, as well as the sands and shoals of the river. The Call surprises us very greatly by saving that "Captain Carroll speaks in anything but complimentary terms of the Webfooted denizens of the locality near where the Great Republic was lost. In fact their wrecking proclivities appear to have led them to perform acts which are supposed to pertain only to a people upon whom the light of civilization has never shed its redeeming light.' We think this expression should not be made by Capt. Carroll, nor anybody else, with some qualifying re-
