A Negro Riot in Georgia.

SAVANNAH, June 9.—A riot took place this afternoon at McIntosh, on the Atlantic and Gulf railroad, between a party of negro excursionists from Bryan county and those belonging to the place. It began in a fight between two negroes, whereupon John Randall, captain of a negro militia company from Bryan county, on the part of excursionists, ordered his company to charge, which they did, bayoneting everybody within reach. The captain himself killed one man by running him through with a sword. There was intense excitement at this outrage. Liberty county negroes rallied and drove the military company into the cars and opened fire on them, killing four and wounding many more, only stopped shooting when the train got out of the way, which they tried to prevent by tearing up the track. All parties engaged were negroes.

A METAMORPHOSIS.

Oh! the sea—the beautiful sea
Sad thoughts arise as I gaze upon thee, Dashing and foaming, oft swallowing in The pure ones of earth with those mired in sin.

Then back goest thou to thy far resting place Aton, to return, with a bright smiling face:
Tiptoeing and dancing—full laden with glee
Who would dare accuse thee of such arch treachery?

Oh! beautiful sea—as, with wonder we gaze
On thy bosom so fair, and give unto thee praise
Who? ah, who would now think that thy deep, lovely bed
Is strewn with the precious, unseparated dead?

Ah! countless the numbers that therein repose.
More sunk there to rest than the wide world e'er knows:
Way down in the depths of a mystical bed Midst corals and pearls—there thou hidest thy dead:
Thou'st stolen them all and they'll ne'er come again
To remove, from our hearts, this sad burden of pain.

The mother and babe—the maiden so fair,
The young man, and sire with silvery hair Who embarked on thy bosom with purposes true Thou'st folded them all 'neath thy mantle of blue.

Oh! sea! sea! cruel hungry sea
I pray thee give back these—my loved ones to me,
Or else with the dash of a dark angry wave
Oh! bury me deep in a like watery grave?

How oft, when a child, I have rambled with glee
On the glittering sands by the side of the sea
With never a thought, as I watched its bright wave,
That this beautiful sea was but one mighty grave.

Father Time's restless hand long has passed o'er my brow
And with vision much changed, do I gaze on it now:
I behold all its beauty and power with pride,
And my heart, with emotion, doth swell with its tide
Yet receding it bears from my heart a deep sigh
And many the tear drops that fall from my eye.

Tears are said to be only offspring of the sea
And all would, I know, dash them back cheerfully:
But chide me not, friends, for my deep grief and pain, Tears alone can bring peace to my sad heart again.
When the kind reaper—Death, shall, at last cut me down,
And my spirit, in bliss, has its harp and crown,
Oh! bury me close by the deep murmuring
sea
Where I'll ever be lulled by its soft minstrelsy:
Oh! sweet is the requiem it sings o'er the dead
Who sleep—side by side—in its fair pearly bed.
But sweeter by far to my spirit 'twill be When it floats o'er the graves of my loved ones and me.
