Letter from Washington.

[Correspondence of THE ASTORIAN.]

WASHINGTON, June 18th, 1879.

Who loves not more the night of June, Than cold December's gloomy morn? Marmion saith, wisely. Washington at the present moment is at the hight of her wonderful summer beauty, the late spring culminates in an outburst of glorious splendor; nature seems rampant with life and joy. The parks, those "breathing places" of the city, 9 00 their sparkling fountains, grand old trees, singing birds, well-kept lawns, provided for-"his sisters, and his consins, and his aunts!" Vera la hardly ever" see anything like the success of this charming little "operatta,"

"H. M. S. PINAFORE."

After a winter of Dear little Buttercup by sundry companies, good, bad, and indifferent, white and colored; the season closed on Saturday evening, with a very fine performance, given entirely by a company of children, none of the performers being over fourteen years of age, Buttercup was well rendered by a neice of Mrs. Major M'Cumber, a lady whom some -The Knappton mills are again in Oregonians may remember. OUR PRESIDENTAL STAR Is in the ascendant. His vetoing, and dignified reasoning for so doing, has made him many friends; one hears his name mentioned for a second term in the White house; "bad beginning makes a good ending" is a trite but true maxim. Adjournment seems near. "I do wish congress would adjourn," remarked a youngster of seven summers who is to go north under the escort of a member from New York. I cannot close this mention of Oregonians in Washington more fitly than with the name of Rev. Dr. McCarty, whose unselfish pious life, and work as a minister of the Protestant Episcopal church in Oregon, both in the army and civil life, is affectionately and respectfully remembered by the people of Oregon and Washington territory. Space will not allow the telling of how energetically he set about and did his Masters business. He used to preach in the morning in Portland and then walk over to Vancouver to officiate there in the afternoon. Never told of it, but patiently and sweetly accepted all the inconveniences of frontier life, devoted his entire time and strength to his work, as God's minister. The doctor is a little changed, looking much as he did twenty years ago, but has grown quite deaf. He has lost the use of one eye from cataract, but his old restless manner and energy have not abated one particle. He lives with a son in a lovely part of the city, on New Jersey avenue. As you perhaps know, his wife died in December last I believe. I had a letter from the doctor yesterday; the matter showed no abatement of mental power, but the trembling chirography told of physical infirmity; he is several years past eighty. He speaks cheerfully of his approaching end, as a matter of only a short time and no doubt would say with Simeon: "Lord now lettest thou thy Master may be continued to the venerable servant of God is the prayer of his loving western friends, as well M.
