Astoria, Oregon, Wednesday Morning, January 19, 1881.

No. 15.

GENERAL EASTERN NEWS.

BY MAIL AND TELEGRAPH.

Plaised Declared Governor.

AUGUSTA (Me.), January 12.—The house without debate, accepted the report of the majority committee on the gubernatorial vote, declaring Plaised elected governor.

A Sworn of Candidates.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 12.—In the house of representatives to-day thirty-eight names were put in nomination for the office of United States senator.

A Play Enjoined.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—In court to-day Judge Trux ordered Theodore Moss and Lester Wallack to withdraw the play of Forget-Me-Not from the stage of Wallack's theatre after Friday evening.

An Incorrect Report.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 12.—The report that James N. Ray, formerly district attorney, was killed in Scott county, is incorrect.

WASHINGTON CITY NEWS.

BY MAIL AND TELEGRAPH.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—In the house to-day Sanford offered an amendment to Woods refunding bill, providing that before any of the bonds or notes authorized by this act are issued it shall be the duty of the secretary of the treasury to pay on bonds accruing during the year of 1881, all silver dollars of 412½ grains, and all gold over and above the fifty millions now held in the treasury for redemption purposes was adopted, yeas 83, nays 23.

The republicans refused to vote, desiring to so load down the bill that a substitute offered by them would be adopted.

Randall offered an amendment, making the substantial part of the section read as follows: The secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized to issue bonds in an amount not exceeding $650,000,000, which shall bear interest at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum, redeemable at the pleasure of the United States after—years. Randall stated that his intention was to make a bond loan exclusively. He would at the proper time move to fill up the blank so as to make the bonds redeemable in two years. He would also offer an amendment providing that interest on the 6 per cent. bonds shall cease at the expiration of thirty days after notice that the same have been designated for redemption.

Calkins wished to amend Randall's amendment by fixing the rate of interest at 3½ per cent. but the chair ruled that it was not in order.

F. Wood then moved that the committee rise in order to carefully examine Randall's amendment, which motion was agreed to, and the house adjourned.

Various Notes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12th.—The house committee on agriculture have unanimously agreed (Chairman Covert, who made the minority report, being absent) to ask a suspension of the rules to take from the calendar and put upon its passage the bill to make the agricultural department an independent department and its head a cabinet officer.

THE COMMITTEE ON GRANT.

The sub-committee of the house committee on military affairs, to whom was referred the bill proposing to make General Grant Captain-General, met this morning and decided to make a verbal report to the full committee to-morrow. Two of the sub-committee oppose and one is in favor of the bill.

LANDS FOR INDIANS.

A communication was presented to the senate to-day from the secretary of the interior, recommending an appropriation of $50,000, to become immediately available for the survey and subdivision of Indian reservations, with a view to the allotment of lands in severalty to Indians.

COLORING SUGAR.

Judge French, from personal observation, says he is convinced that sugar cannot be colored in the course of its manufacture, and consequently discoloration is effected thereafter. There are several important cases now pending, involving attempts to defraud the government of revenue of high grades of sugar by discoloring it and classing it as low grade.

THE NEW YORK SENATORSHIP.

ALBANY, Jan. 12.—There is a rumor that the democrats will vote for Chauncey M. Depew for United States senator, and it is claimed if they do he will be elected. Another report is to the effect that both Crowley and Morton will withdraw in favor of Platt, but both these gentlemen's friends insist they are in the fight until the first ballot in caucus is taken.

WITH ONE EXCEPTION

A Lie from Beginning to End.

Boston Transcript.

There is a three-months-old baby living with its parents on Blank street, who was recently thrown into the society of three married and two single ladies. The conversation was conducted chiefly by the ladies and proceeded in this wise: "Oh, de little darling!" "Did 'e want to tizz iz muzzer?" "Will 'e s'ake 'ittle han'y?" "Oh, no 'ittle p'ecious!" "Why don't 'e tizz 'e lady?" "Where 'iz 'iz tootsies?" "Oh, doney c'y!" "What 'e matter wir um lammy?" The infant at last looked up and with an expression of ineffable disgust remarked, "What a plaguey set of fools you are! Why in time don't you talk sense and talk English?" This is a lie from one end to the other. With that exception, it is all true.

Horse Education.

In something written we have an indistinct recollection of having made reference to a general disposition among boys in their teens, as well as boys of maturer years, to enlighten and bless the world with their professional knowledge of the horse and his history. Our books and newspapers are full of this kind of literature, and it varies in style from the production of the child at school, commencing with: The horse has four legs and a tail; up to the eloquent tribute of the scholar when he quotes from Job: That his neck is clothed with thunder and the glory of his nostrils is terrible. He smelleth the battle afar off, the thunder of the captains and the shouting. Between these two extremes of the child at his first school composition, and the professional literature, we have every grade of pretension, and each professing to have mastered the whole subject. As we approach the close of this nineteenth century, we begin to look for something better in this department of knowledge from those who assume to instruct. And it is to be found in Kendall's Treatise on the horse, sent by mail to any person for twenty-five cents, postage paid. Apply to THE ASTORIAN office, or address D. C. Ireland, Astoria, Oregon.

—Buy THE WEEKLY ASTORIAN in post-paid wrapper for ten cents, and send it to some friend in the east. It is better than a letter.

Marvel not that I say unto you, ye must pay the printer. Whoever neglecteth to pay the printer, hath not eternal life abiding in him. Who hath sorrow, who hath woe, who hath the nightmare! They who forget to render unto the printer his just dues. If a man live many years and payeth not for THE ASTORIAN, behold he shall not die in peace till he hath rendered to the printer that which he hath withheld.

—All citizens of Oregon who desire to inform their friends in the states of the condition and progress of this state, can have no more complete and comprehensive volume of facts to send them than by subscribing for this journal, and having us mail it weekly to their friends. We mail it as directed. For $5.00 in advance, we mail three copies of THE WEEKLY ASTORIAN office.

TIDAL PHENOMENON.

High Water Outside and Low Inside at the Same Time.

Victoria Chronicle.

On Sunday a tidal eccentricity was noticed in this vicinity. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the flood tide began to run at Race rock, distant about ten miles from Victoria. At eight o'clock the flood reached the red buoy and Brothchie's ledge, about a mile and a half from the entrance to this harbor; but, strange to relate, the stage of water in the harbor continued "dead low" until midnight when the flood tide came in with a rush and quickly covered the bare spots. The tides in this locality are so very erratic that they cannot be timed; but this is the first instance in an experience of twenty-two years, that we have heard of high water outside and low water inside the harbor at the same time.

—How can I tell whether my advertisement will attract or not? Try it.

—Any person who takes a paper regularly from a postoffice—whether directed to his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for the pay.

—An advertisement in a newspaper is worth forty "directors" cards and other foolish imitations. The paper is seen every day by hundreds, while the book is noticed by only a very few.

—The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from a postoffice, or removing, and leaving them uncollected for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

—If you are suddenly asked, "who among merchants have made the largest fortunes in the shortest time in legitimate business," will not your reply naturally be, "judicious advertisers?"

—If a person orders his paper discontinued, he must first pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until it is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

—A good point about advertising, in general, is that such announcements never offend. We never dislike that which appeals to us for our good opinion, for the very act seems to say to us that our good opinion is valued.

—It is a fact long since established, says the Helena Herald, that the merchant who liberally patronizes the advertising columns of the press, sells his wares cheaper than the one whose name is seldom or ever seen. The reason is patent, for by thus advertising, his sales are tripled and a less proportionate profit makes him the greatest gainer.

—A newspaper is a window through which men look out upon the world. Without a newspaper a man is shut up in a small room, and knows little or nothing of what is happening outside of himself. In our day the newspaper will keep a sensible man in syn with the world's current history. It is an unfolding encyclopedia and handbook, forever issuing and never finished.

—There is a quiet courtesy and modest modestness about a wise advertisement that create a certain respect and feeling of sympathy in the reader. We all like to be sold, and it is natural to suppose that he who most politely, clearly and persistently sells us, stands the better chance for our trade. The familiar advertisements of meat purveyors often convey these points with great tact and ingenuity.

—Skilled mechanical and professional labor is in abundance in this state. We can spare a whole army of clerks, salesmen and mechanics, who are starving because they are not hired, or will not labor in the field that offers them a living. Now is the time to invest in lands and to settle on them. Railroads are opening all over the state, and there is a fair showing of an increase in the value of land, no matter where located. Farmers are what we want, and not more tradesmen; agriculturists, not additional professors; tillers of the soil, and not an increased army of clerks. The country is healthy, both morally and physically, and there is value in land that is not affected by the rise and fall of stocks.

—Whenever you want to buy an article, purchase it from a store-keeper in town. You know them, they are identified with you in the interest of keeping up the city, which is an organization for mutual protection, and if you are cheated you know where to apply for redress. When you buy of an itinerant pedlar, whom you may never see again, if you are cheated you must pocket your own losses.

—The time has long since passed when mechanical trades provided our sons with a living. Labor-saving machinery, patent tools and steam have robbed the trade of the future it offered to our boys in the days of the indentured apprentice system. The cities and townships of our metropolitan cities are composed largely of tradesmen and professional men, and merchandising is a failure, if the number of bankrupt merchants who had to succumb to the pressure of the times can be taken as a criterion. What the country needs is producers and the waste fields of uncultivated land offers an opportunity to place the rising generation in the way of making homes for themselves and better times for posterity.

HE LEADETH ME.

In pasture-green? Not always; sometimes he Who knowest best, in kindness leadeth me In wery ways, where heavy shadows be.

Out of the sunshine, warm and soft and bright, Out of the sunshine into darkest night, I oft would faint with sorrow and afflict.

Only for this—I know He holds my hand, So whether in green or desert land I tread, although I may not understand.

And by still waters? No, not always so; Beyond the heavy tempests round me blow, And o'er my soul the waves and billows go.

But when the storme's best loud, and I cry Aloud for help, the Master standeth by, And whisper to my soul, "Let it be I."

Above the tempest wild I hear him say, "Beyond this darkness lies the perfect day, In every path of thine I lead the way."

So, whether on the hill tops high and fair I dwell, or in the smoggy valleys where The shadows lie—what matter? He is there.

And more than this; where'er the pathway dwells, He gives to me no helpless, broken reed, But his own hand, sufficient for my need.

So where He leadeh me I can safely go; And in the best heretofore I shall know Why, in His wisdom, He hath led me so.

—THE WEEKLY ASTORIAN is an independent newspaper, devoted wholly and solely to the commercial and material interests of Oregon, and will be sent on trial four months to any address in the United States on receipt of $1.00.

—What pleasure it is to pay one's debts! In the first place, it removes that uneasiness which a person feels from dependence and obligation. It affords pleasure to the creditor, and therefore gratifies our social affection. It promises that at future confidence which is so interesting to an honest mind. It opens a prospect of being readily supplied with what you want on future occasions. It leaves a consciousness of our virtue; and it is a measure we know to be right, both in point of justice and sound economy. Finally, it is the main support of simple reputation. Pay us, that we may pay others.

To the Public.

ASTORIA, JANUARY 18th, 1881.—In answer to a card appearing in the ASTORIAN, signed Gust Smith and others, I desire to say that I was deceived into signing on Water street, in this city, on last Saturday night by one of the men whose name appears signed to the card referred to above. After I went into the saloon the doors, both front and back, were closed and I was locked up. I was compelled by physical force and through fear of personal violence, to leave the door and remain there while this Gust Anderson and a number of his so-called friends entered. It may have been a very brave and manly thing in their estimation to get a single and defenseless man into a saloon, and to lock the doors for the purpose of abusing and insulting him, or to beat and maltreat him if he resisted, and all for the sake of a drunken brute of a man, who was furnishing them free whiskey for their assistance; but I think it was a contemptible, cowardly action of which any respectable man would be ashamed. As to the charge which they say Anderson made against me, it is false in every particular. I never ruined his family, nor interfered with it in any manner whatever; and I shall live in Astoria as long as I read an honest, industrious life in spite of door-keepers, deacons, ruffians and bunies. Honest men, with honest hearts don't have to resort to speaking in this manner to prove the truth of their case. Oregonian please copy.
