

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON.

SUNDAY JAN. 23 1881

D. C. IRELAND Editor.

English farmers are beginning to find that they must fatten their beef cattle while the animals are young if they would make money.

Raritan bay is frozen solid from South Amboy to Perth Amboy, N. J., and as far out as Staten island sound.

The Argentine Republic of South America offers to the poor of Ireland a large tract of good and fertile land for a colony, without money and without price.

The First Baptist church of Providence broke away this year from the Christmas precedents. Instead of having a festival for the Sunday-school children, the officers collected the money for the entertainment, as usual, then apportioned it among the classes, and each class carried a supply of Christmas stores to some suffering family.

A dispatch from Carson, Nev., says that Rockhill's resolution, offered in the senate, instructing members of congress to vote against the ratification of the Chinese treaty, was tabled by republicans.

The Atlanta Constitution says Georgia wants shops, schools and small farms. The same want is felt by some of the other states—particularly in the south.

We are in receipt of "An Open Letter from John H. Mitchell to Harvey W. Scott," in answer to his editorial in the Daily Oregonian of December 1st, 1880.

—Ex-Gov. Woods in an address recently made at Reno, stated positively that the narrow gauge railroad would have its terminal point at the Columbia.

Madame De Stael's Conversation.

When Madame de Stael entered a full room, says a writer in Lippincott's, and the eyes of all were instantly turned on her, she suffered a momentary timidity, and needed a strong effort to collect herself; but as soon as the ball was set in motion, self-oblivion came to the rescue, and the magic power had full control.

A notion exists that Madame de Stael was a declaimer; that she indulged in monologue; that she talked for display. But this is not, I think, asserted by any who knew her personally, and it is expressly denied by those who knew her best.

As to trivial gossip, she was apt to interrupt it with remarks that acted like a bombshell. There were times, though they were rare, when her vehemence brooked no contradiction, and others, more frequently, when it hurried her into exaggeration; but in general her utterances were marked by the greatest candor and simplicity, and, were, like her nature, intensely sympathetic, appealing to the knowledge, the intelligence, the feelings of her listeners, exciting them to reply, arousing all their powers.

The witty Lord Dudley, who was much given to abstractedness in company, called her "a bad neighbor; you would have no chance to slumber; she would have detected you instantly."

—The proposition to make real estate pay all the taxes in California seems to be popular with a portion of the people. Really, why not make the men who own land pay all the taxes? If but one-fourth, or one-third of the voters of the state, for instance, should own real estate, possibly the proposition would carry.
