A Remarkable Discovery

On Thursday last Messrs, Tolman and Walkley discovered a singular phenomenon while engaged in running the line from Walkley's to Foss' place in the John Day settlement. It was necessary that the corner marks made during the survey of 1858 should be found, which were placed on small spruce trees the diameter of one being three inches and of the other twelve inches, which grew close together. Mr. Tolman soon found two trees standing close together corresponding are: Vine, erin, nero, inheritor, conin several ways but not in size, measof Advertisements inserted by the year at uring respectively one and three feet in diameter, with an indentation in each several inches in length.
