Vol. XIV.

Astoria, Oregon, Sunday Morning, March 27, 1881.

No. 73.

Washington Notes.

WASHINGTON, March 26th.
Kirkwood comes near being an Ohio man. He lived in the state twenty years.
Colonel McClure calls Wayne McVeagh the beacon-light of the administration.

It was George Elliot—poor woman—who wrote, "Nothing is so good as it seems beforehand."

General Grant has arranged to remove to his Long Branch cottage June 1st and remain there during the summer.

Ex-President Hayes and the members of his late cabinet have been invited to participate in the Schurz dinner at Boston.

Mr. Charles A. Dana says the new administration is already a failure, and then puts his words into Senator Cameron's mouth.

Secretary Robert T. Lincoln was born in Springfield, Illinois, August 1, 1843. He is married and has three children, the oldest a daughter, being twelve years of age.

Tilden is again in bad luck. He no sooner lays aside the cares of office than he is sued heavily for alleged crooked transactions in connection with the Marquette iron company.

Mary Anderson has been appointed light-house keeper at Round island. This, of course, is not Mary the tragic actress, for she knows nothing about light-houses.

General Phil Sheridan arrived in Philadelphia last evening from Washington and will remain a few days as the guest of his father-in-law, General D. H. Rucker, of 2220 Spruce street.

Ex-Speaker Randall arrived in Philadelphia yesterday and intends resuming his legal practice, which has been interrupted to some extent by his close attention to the nation's business.

When the late Senator Matt H. Carpenter was a boy he did not like to work on the farm. One day his father left home, telling him to hoe a patch of potatoes and bring him two shillings with which to hire his help. He bought a shilling's worth of whisky and secured an Irishman to help him. He would stand at the end of a row and give the man a drink as fast as he got round to him. The potatoes were soon hoed, and Matt saved a shilling. Paul Carpenter, son of the late senator, is mentioned as a child of generous and sensitive nature. Last winter he was returning home from a short walk through the snow, having his overshoes on. He met a barefooted colored boy whom he knew, and Paul asked where his shoes were. The boy replied that he had none. Paul at once sat down upon the curbstone, took off his overshoes and gave them to the colored boy, and then went home.

One Jerome J. Hinds, who has for some time been unsuccessfully engaged in trying to be silenced, furnished to the press of the country last night a false and injurious statement against the Post-office department. He has simply revamped some old matter which was thoroughly exploded in the congressional investigation of winter before last, and has given them out at this time for the purpose of injuring a certain officer of the department just at the time the new administration is about to act on the subject of the selection of assistants to the new Postmaster-general. Hinds was indicted for frauds on the department some years ago upon a charge of stealing a die, of forging bids, and corrupting clerks. He was acquitted on the ground that the witnesses were all particeps criminis with him. He has no basis of truth for his malicious statement, and has been in the market some time for its suppression, with no buyers.

The Gold-Brick Swindle.

New York Tribune.
A letter recently discovered throws light upon the methods of the gang who played the famous "gold-brick racket" in Colorado a year or two ago. Their plan was to sell what was to all appearances a brick of solid gold to some green purchaser for far less than its apparent value, pretending that they were agents for some murderer, thief or adventurer who was obliged to sell at a sacrifice to keep out of the hands of the law. Thus, an Ohio man, wanting, contrary to all the precedents of his state, a good deal more than he was entitled to, bought a bogus brick for $14,000 from a murderer hiding in the mountains near Leadville. He thought he was sure to make $40,000 at least, for he was allowed to eat of the corner of the brick, and it assayed pure gold. A man who has lost at what he knows to be a sharp game seldom cares to figure in the courts, and so this company of swindlers for a considerable time escaped recognition. Four of its members, Lewis, Creek, Lavin and Curtis, are now known, but hitherto they have avoided arrest.

A Fast of Forty-three Days.

Pittsburg Miners' Journal.
A correspondent from North Union township writes to the Journal to the following effect: "As the following incident is known to few people perhaps readers of the Journal will find it interesting, as it is out of the usual run, and is true in every particular: Jacob Lindemuth, while threshing in the summer of 1878, covered one of his turkeys with straw while the bird was setting on a nest of eggs in the barnyard. Forty-three days afterward one of the family found the turkey, which was still living, where she had been covered over and forgotten. She was so weak as to be unable to walk. She was carefully fed and in time recovered her pristine vigor. While covered up she could get no food or drink and lived on nothing but air. How long she had been on the nest when covered is not known.

The only officer of the army in the cabinet is Secretary Lincoln, who, for a period, was on Grant's staff.

The Commercial Bulletin says: It is understood that legal proceedings will be begun by the chief owners of the Oregon Railway and Navigation company, and also by heavy holders of the Northern Pacific railway shares, to restrain the latter company from issuing $18,000,000 common stock, which the executive committee of the Northern Pacific board recently authorized.

By a recent postal decision men can actually make money by getting their bills and statements of accounts printed. Statements of accounts and bills of sale when made out on paper having printed headings, can be sent by mail for one cent, if the envelope is left unsealed; whereas, if it is made out on unprinted paper, it will cost three cents. Thus by patronizing THE ASTORIAN two cents can be saved on every bill or statement that is sent out through the mail.
Never go shopping without consulting the advertising columns of THE ASTORIAN. They will tell you where the best bargains are to be had, and just what merchants are alive and doing business.
For a cough or cold there is no remedy equal to Anmen's Cough Syrup.

GEMS OF THOUGHT.

A Prelude.
I spread a smelly board too late!
The old-time guests for whom I wait
Come less and show, incline to-day,
Ah! I who could hear my messages
Across the air, unheeded seas
On which so many have sailed away.

Come, then, old friends, who linger yet
And let us meet, as we have met,
Close more beneath this low sunshine;
And, grateful for the good we've known,
The golden sunset, the fire of youth,
Strike hands upon the border line.

The labor, indeed, has left behind
From your halcyon days, more more
I grieve, and if I could lay
To slumber, feebler appears my soul,
Than that of my old-time friends,
To such a dearer home than mine.

And yet, my old-time friends, for whom
I wait, and heart-keenly I wait,
Come smiling through the shadows here,
Do with me while the sun goes down,
And sit your cheerful voices down
The golden sunset, the fire of youth,
Strike hands upon the border line.

Far, equal through the day and night,
The snow-blanketed avalanche
And love and power and riddles will
Break in the law of death;
The best for each and all must be,
And life its promise shall fulfill.

The Year.
O, dear ones, dear ones! you in whose right
I sit, my heart is glad; whose faithful hearts
All day
Wide open wait, till back from distant lands Thought, the tired traveler, wends his homeward way!

Happiness and heartiness, gladness of your years,
Tender remembrance of our serious days,
Who color with your kisses, smiles and tears
Life's warm web woven over woe's way.

O shut the world out from the heart you love!
Though small the circle of your smiles may be,
The world is distant but your smiles are near,
Which makes you more than all the world to me.

A Morning Dream.
Above the brackish shallows of the shore
My thoughts, like sea-birds, hover. The low sea
Of the unretired breakers I can hear,
And when their surf with inward eye and ear,
Fate drew me inland from the mighty sea;
But dreams have power to cheat necessity.
Behold! I spread the ocean on the land,
I shut my eyes and gaze a lovely strand,
See yonder emerald chaos in the west—
Mark how each billow rears its radiant crest!
And lo! the sun's rays, a heaven's glass,
Of saffron floods the blue etheral air. Gads.

Amid the noon stillness on the dim sea-line,
Shedding a ray like light through amber
air,
The sea-wind strengthens as the dark grows
strong,
And lo! a ring the sea's triumphant song,
If sweet is ocean, sweet the lonely shore;
Lays adds its sign of sweetness to their store,
My loved one comes to meet me, her bright hair
Flung over her shoulders by the freshening
air,
Though sweet the sea, and sweet the lonely
shore,
O, loved one, add thy sweetness to their store!
Alas! my dream! The ocean is withdrawn,
My evening shows the first faint light of dawn.
—Ingliside.

PUZZLEDOM.
Although I am a little word,
Of meanings I have many;
If you will place in front of me
A letter or two, if any,
My little word gets all the news
In every land and clime.
With B, I am an animal,
Or help you through in time;
With D, you like me very much;
With F, I begin human ill;
With G, I am on ships and boats;
With H, your knowledge fill;
With I, I am a poet's king;
With N, I am around you;
With P, I am a summer fruit;
With R, I am always after you;
With S, I oft destroy or pain;
With T, I am sad and mourn;
With St, I am ships and boats;
With Sh, you get ears or shorn;
With Sp, I am a weapon old;
With Sn, you rub a region;
With W, you use me rough;
With Y, ends many a legion work;

Following are answers to puzzles in last week's ASTORIAN.

1. Horse, mule, stove, clock, hound.
2. Prosperity.
3. Beam, dream, cream, team, seam, team, steam, stream.

Some say that it is no use for them to advertise, that they have been in the place in business all their lives, and everybody knows them. Such people seem to forget to take in consideration that our country is increasing in population nearly 40 per cent every ten years, and no matter how old the place may be, there are constant changes taking place; some move to other parts, and strangers fill their places. In this age of the world, unless the name of a business firm is kept constantly before the public, some new firm may start up, and by liberal advertising, in a very short time take the place of the older ones, and the latter rust out, as it were, and be forgotten. No man ever lost money by judicious advertising.

Marvel not that I say unto you, ye must pay the printer. Whoever neglects to pay the printer, hath not eternal life abiding in him. Who hath sorrow, who hath woe, who hath the nightmare! They who forget to render unto the printer his just dues. If a man live many years and payeth not for THE ASTORIAN, behold he shall not die in peace till he hath rendered to the printer that which he hath withheld.
