

The Daily Astorian. ASTORIA, OREGON: SATURDAY APRIL 9, 1881. D. C. IRELAND Editor.

Idle Talk.

The transportation of grain by water to New Orleans and thence to Europe is assuming important proportions, and evidences are not wanting that the barge line is already having a marked effect upon the grain trade of the Mississippi valley.

The eastern papers have had a good deal to say about the transportation of California wheat by rail, and telegraphic reports of negotiations between parties in San Francisco and Mississippi barge lines, have not been wanting.

Edmund Yate's new paper repeats a story about the late Thomas Carlyle, which seems to explain why the latter should have attempted to apotheosize Mrs. Carlyle as the model good wife.

Postmaster-General James denies the report that there was a conference about Judge Robertson's nomination, in New York, between Vice-President Arthur and Senator Platt, Governor Cornell and himself.

Colombia has arranged with Central and South American Cable company for a cable north and south from the Isthmus of Panama to connect with the United States and Europe, via Mexico and Central America.

A contemporary says there is one French custom we should like to see introduced into the United States and become universal. In France, when a funeral passes, every man raises his hat to salute it.

Pretty much all of this talk about differences and trouble between the president and Senator Conkling is the merest nonsense—literally amounts to nothing at all; and was only got up in the first place to permit the vials of wrath that had been stored away after the Chicago convention to fuzze without fury, and moderately relapse into a condition of mitigated quiescence.
