

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: TUESDAY, APRIL 26, 1881. ISSUED EVERY MORNING. (Monday Excepted). D. C. Ireland, Editor and Proprietor.

Terms of Subscription: Sent by mail, four months, $3.00; sent by mail, one year, $5.00. Free of Postage to Subscribers.

Advertisements inserted by the year at the rate of $1.50 per square per month. Transient advertising, by the day or week, fifty cents per square for each insertion.

The Weekly Astorian. Is a mammoth sheet, exactly double the size of the Daily. It is just the paper for the seaside, containing in addition to all the current news, choice miscellany, agricultural matter, market reports, etc.

THE CITY. THE DAILY ASTORIAN will be sent by mail at 10 cents a month, free of postage. Readers who contemplate absence from the city can use THE ASTORIAN during their absence.

Old Fellows anniversary. Be at the lodge room early to secure your seat. Capt. DeLa, river pilot, boarded the Selkirkshire at sea.

The church bells were wringing wet on Sunday in Astoria. Mrs. George H. Williams and Miss Williams passed Oxnarda on Sunday for Oregon.

The close law on fishing, from Saturday night till Sunday night, will be strictly enforced. The British bark Barksfield sailed from Liverpool on the 9th for this port and Portland.

The Courier informs us that Mr. J. O. Spencer, of Clifton, has been on a trip to his Yamhill home. Travel is picking up very lively, and Astoria is quite cosmopolitan in appearance on steamer days.

Chief Barry Saturday night rescued a portion of a net stolen from Booth and company. The thief did not show up. The Oeklahama took the County of Ayr and Portland in tow for Portland yesterday, Capt. Ferchen and Pease piloting.

The steamer Willamet reported as sailed from Rio on the 23d, left New York on that day for this port and Portland. Mr. Taylor, manager of the Astoria Fishery reports that boat No. 13, Mr. Garton, came in with seventy-three fish yesterday morning.

The steamer Rip Van Winkle, it will be seen by advertisement, will leave for the cape daily at 4 p. m. during the season. She is open for all towing. PARTICULAR NOTICE.—The steamer Gen. Canby will leave, on her regular trip this morning, at eight o'clock sharp. Don't forget it, or you will be left.

There is now iron enough in sight with the cargoes of the County of Ayr and Selkirkshire just arrived to complete the Oregon Railway and Navigation company line to the Cascades from Portland. The funeral notice of the time of the funeral of Mr. Robb, will be given in THE ASTORIAN Wednesday. Friends are expected from Halsey and Forest Grove. He was a member of the Ancient Order of United Workmen.

Mr. A. T. Miller returns the compliment of praises in his behalf for assistance rendered to the ladies at the entertainment. He felt it to be a duty to lend a helping hand as he has done on former occasions in other places. Cutting and company did not go chasing after their net racks when they were sent adrift from the mouth of Skipanon creek by the wind, but went to the mill immediately for more lumber, and were all ready for the nets again next day. That's business.

The Albany Democrat greeting: THE DAILY ASTORIAN has enlarged, and we cordially congratulate it on this evidence of prosperity. Ireland says THE ASTORIAN has laid aside all petty jealousies and is for Oregon—Portland included. Don't you forget it. The finest writing we have ever seen was that of Mr. Brennan Van Dusen of this city, who yesterday gave us a copy of the Lords prayer, written in the space of a circle formed by the liner of a gold dollar. It is handsomely, lightly done, but requires a powerful magnifying glass to read it. Whether or not Robeson is the man who did the murderous deed in Warren & Eaton's building yesterday he has certainly made some foolish threats, on account of a law suit he had in which Mr. Robb was counsel on the other side. He is generally regarded as a dangerous, bad man; who should be placed beyond the possibility of doing harm.

MURDERED.

J. W. ROBB, ESQ., KILLED IN HIS OFFICE BY AN ASSASSIN.

J. G. ROBESON ARRESTED UNDER SUSPICION.

The last man in the world that we would ever expect to hear of being assassinated was J. W. Robb—kind, obliging, respected and loved by everybody, the perfect type of a true citizen; yet he is killed without a moment's warning by a desperado. The circumstances, as near as can be ascertained, are that the assassin entered Mr. Robb's office yesterday afternoon between the hours of three and four o'clock, and deliberately shot his victim. Two gentlemen in the adjoining room heard the report of the pistol, heard the thud when Mr. Robb fell, and immediately entered his office, finding him dead. The assassin had then escaped. There is a train of circumstances connecting J. G. Robeson with the murder, and he was promptly arrested and placed in jail. The coroner, Mr. Benj. R. Franklin, summoned a jury, and the findings of the inquest are as follows: We, the undersigned jurors, summoned before B. R. Franklin, Coroner of Clatsop county, Oregon, at the office of J. W. Robb, met at said office on the 25th day of April, in Clatsop county, Oregon, to inquire into the cause of the death of said J. W. Robb, whose body lay therein. After being first duly sworn as jurors, according to law, we examined the body, heard the evidence of the attending physician and the witnesses produced, and find that the body is that of J. W. Robb, lawyer, and resident of Astoria, Oregon; that he came to his death by a pistol-shot wound in the breast, inflicted about 3 o'clock p. m. of said day, and we believe one J. G. Robeson to have inflicted said wound, and to have committed an act of murder therein.

F. C. HOLDEN, Foreman. CHAS. N. WRIGHT, JURORS. J. H. STRAUS, W. E. DEMENT, R. N. CARLHAN, WM. E. JOPLIN, JURORS.

Mr. Robb was a most exemplary citizen, and his untimely fate has produced a shock upon this community not easily described. If an earthquake or a tidal wave had rolled in upon us the effects could scarcely have been more startling, and that such an act could be perpetrated in one of the most central localities, in business hours, in a quiet city like this, is a striking commentary upon the fact that no man knows when his life is in jeopardy. It shakes the confidence of man in man and produces impressive feelings of unrest in the whole community. Mr. Robb will be almost universally mourned, and to his family and friends, he leaves a wife, and a son and a daughter in this city; we extend our sincere sympathies.

What Might Have Been. Only a short time before his tragic death yesterday Mr. J. W. Robb left our sanctum to go to his office on Chenamus street, and prepare for moving into THE ASTORIAN building to-day. His assassin probably realized that it would be a difficult job to get out of THE ASTORIAN building after committing such a bloody deed, and if it be true that he laid down the cards where he was engaged in a social game, about that hour, with the remark that he had a job to perform, that he was going to kill a man before night, he had perhaps noticed that the painters had just finished lettering the windows for Mr. Robb in this building, and if he did his villainous work he "must do it now,"—when he did. There is no doubt in the minds of most people but that the fellow ought to be hung, but whether he will or not is another question. Had he waited until Mr. Robb moved before doing his bloody work he might have been killed himself before leaving the building, as the tools to fix such as him were not very far away.

It seems that there will be plenty of evidence to convict Robeson of the murder, but it is all circumstantial. He borrowed the pistol, or bought it, of A. G. Spexarth, and walked deliberately back to Spexarth's place and returned the deadly weapon after committing the deed. Upon examination one chamber of the pistol was empty, but one shot was fired.

The word boom is now incorporated in the English language, and those who have a horror of slang can use the word without fear. Among the 11,000 new words added to the last edition of Worcester's dictionary is boom, which is defined as follows: Boom.—In business, a sudden and rapidly increasing demand for a commodity, with consequent rise in price; hence, generally, an enthusiastic and spontaneous popular movement in favor of a person, thing or cause.

A Portland paper purporting to be Oregon's representative Commercial Reporter says: "Capt. Hubbard, of the Jane A. Falkinburg, was compelled to remain over one trip at Honolulu on account of his wife's illness." With a few trifling errors the paragraph is, in the main correct: 1. Mrs. Hubbard is not now, nor has not been in Honolulu; 2. Capt. Hubbard never remained over a trip at Honolulu; 3. He was not compelled to remain over anywhere on account of Mrs. Hubbard's illness. If the Reporter intended to state that Capt. Hubbard is in command of the barkentine Jane A. Falkinburg, it stated a fact. That and nothing more.

Perils of Fishing.

The following account of the capsizing of John Bergman's fishing-boat, and drowning of George Miller, the boat puller, was told our reporter by Henry Warmholt, the survivor.

Left Elmore's wharf, after reefing sail, at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon; drifted a short distance with the tide, in a perfect calm; noticed small conning round Smith point; then I told Miller to take in the sprit, which he did, the remaining sail being very small. Just then a fearful squall struck the boat. I let go the sheet, on account of her having no headway, to lift her up to the wind. As soon as the squall struck the boat, she bent over slowly until the boom struck the water, when she went over altogether, myself and Miller going under the water. When I got my head above water, I was about two fathoms from the boat. I swam to the stern of her. When I got there I saw Miller struggling in the water. A sea came and knocked me off the boat. I then swam to her again and put my two fingers in the centre-board hole, and with the other hand I got hold of Miller, who had almost succeeded in reaching the boat. He was very much excited, and scratched me on the hand. He kept hollering: "Harry, save me." I told him to keep quiet or I could not hold him. He paid no attention to me. A big sea then came and washed us both off the boat. I then lost my grip of Miller, and swam back to the boat, when I saw Miller drifting away. That was the last I saw of him. I then called for help, when Marshall Kinney's boat No. 14, manned by Mr. Stone and Nicadoni Nelson, and two others came up. They had been pulling for dear life. They told me to get in their boat. I said never mind me, go and get Miller, pointing in the direction I saw him last. They compelled me to get in their boat, which was my only chance for life, as my boat was totally underneath the water, the anchor holding it. We then searched for Miller for about an hour, but could not see anything of him. Another boat then came up, and with their assistance, we succeeded in saving my boat and net.

Astoria Iron Works.

The first meeting of the stockholders of the Astoria Iron Works was held at the office of J. G. Hustler, on Saturday, April 23d, 1881. The following named persons were elected directors for one year: A. D. Waas, John Fox and J. G. Hustler, and at the first meeting of the directors held on the same day and at the same place A. D. Waas was elected president, John Fox superintendent, J. G. Hustler secretary, and I. W. Case treasurer. It was ordered that the stock be collected, and that the necessary tools and materials be bought so as to commence work immediately.

Portland Union Depot.

The Standard informs us that "it is rumored that after the new Oregon and Central railroad owners obtain possession there will be great changes made in the operation of the road in Portland. Within a few years a large depot and shops will be erected on the company's land south of the city. The west side depot will be removed to the common depot buildings, and the Fourth street track will be abandoned. Such a change as this will be a decided advantage, for it is a nuisance to the company to have trains watched by policemen with a view of nipping any unclucky engineer who could not keep her back to the ordinance rate of speed.

Tin, Silver and Lead Find.

An Ilwaco gentleman informs us that a party over there have discovered tin silver and lead in paying quantities. He says: "They have hit just the thing, directly on the river bank, where a vessel may lay and load. These gentlemen, are anxious to buy the land on which the precious metal is to be found, but are short of means. They offer to mortgage for the purchase price $6,000, and give a third interest in the mine to the man or men who will furnish the money. The material is very easily worked and can be smelted in a common blacksmith's forge. Arnold and Ferchen have tested it. Two pounds of rock will produce four ounces of silver, tin and lead. A furnace costing $500 would make a lucrative business. The three claims can be purchased for six thousand dollars and can be worked immediately, being sufficient rock on surface for months to come. When I speak of claims I mean to infer they are fully 160 acres claims with one-third rock, and bottom land available for dairy purposes. Provided you should see or hear of any persons inclined to invest, through the request of these gentlemen please notify me."

W. D. Ogden has been appointed post-master at Yakima.

The Oregonian informs us that the remains of Capt. J. A. Pennell, who was drowned two weeks ago at Yaquina bay, will be brought around to Astoria and shipped to San Francisco for interment. The body will be brought to Astoria on the steamer Wright, now under command of Capt. Denney.

By a recent postal decision men can actually make money by getting their bills and statements of accounts printed. Statements of accounts and bills of sale when made out on paper having printed headings, can be sent by mail for one cent, if the envelope is left unsealed; whereas, if it is made out on unprinted paper, it will cost three cents. Thus by patronizing THE ASTORIAN two cents can be saved on every bill or statement that is sent out through the mail.

The Railroad to Astoria.

A Portland evening paper says that the labor of making a road bed for the Oregon Railway and Navigation company's track at certain points between the Cascades and The Dalles will be very great. In some places it will be necessary to blast out galleries in the face of solid mountains of rock, similar to Capehorn on the Central Pacific road. About two thousand men are employed at present, and one thousand more are wanted. The road from the Cascades to The Dalles will be completed by October, and if a sufficient number of men can be obtained, the road between Portland and The Dalles will be completed by the end of 1881." To which we will add, that the connection with the Union Pacific railroad division, from Grainger to Baker city, will then be so far advanced that the line to Astoria may be begun; but not till the main overland line is completed, or nearly so, do we expect to see any work done in this direction, and that will be plenty soon enough for all practical purposes.

Major Adams of the Columbian, St. Helens, has gone into the stock business. Recently he rescued a sheep of his, and twin lambs, that were where they were entirely surrounded by water. And he offers that: "If any one will get up our heifers so we can get them into our pasture, we will make them a present of a calf. We understand one of them has come in, perhaps both have. They have an underbit on the right ear and an overbit on the left, made when they were calves. They are two-year olds, but as large as the generality of three year olds."

Respectfully yours, Carl Adler, dealer in books and stationery.

Reward Offered. A liberal reward will be paid for the finding of the body of DAVID BURNSIDE, aged 70 years, who is supposed to be drowned between Tongue point and Knappa on the 6th of April, 1881. His boat was found partially anchored opposite Mr. Minaker's, about 2 1/2 miles out in the bay. When last seen he was dressed in a white shirt, dark coat, velvet hat, dark checkered pantaloons. Information may be left at Wilson & Fisher's store in Astoria, or addressed to D. W. Burnside, Knappa, Oregon.

Champion Bed. Everybody in Oregon who has used the woven wire beds and lounges, manufactured in Salem by Edes & Durkee, pronounce them the most perfect bed or lounge ever manufactured, elastic, clean and durable. Each and every one warranted, and competition defied. Among those who recommend them we notice the names of Rev. P. S. Knight, Dr. Aug. C. Kinney, Col. I. R. Moore, B. F. Harding, Drs. McAfee, Chase, Belt, Wade, and Adams, Rev. Isaac Dillon and a host of others. Mr. N. Newton of this city has taken the agency for the sale of these beds and lounges in Astoria, and will be pleased to have all call and see them at the store of Mr. E. C. Holden for a few days.

Central Hotel. The Central hotel, near the steamship dock is now open for the reception of guests, where the well known caterer, Mr. Anton Behl, will always be found ready to wait on his patrons. He has had the above named house thoroughly refitted by Messrs. Pike and Stockton, our well known artists. Call and see him, as he has the finest brands of liquors and cigars to be had in the city.

To Let. Several furnished or unfurnished rooms at Mrs. Munson's lodging house. Also, a few persons can have board if required, either ladies or gentlemen.

Notice to the Public. The poor, unfortunate young man that lost his leg last summer in the Fishermen's cannery has now, with the help of friends, started a small store, where he keeps tobacco, cigars, pipes, cutlery, etc. He is unable to do hard work, and must make out the best he can. Give him a call, boys, he keeps the best brands of tobacco and cigars. Water street, opposite O. R. & N. Co.'s Dock.
