

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: TUESDAY, JUNE 14, 1887.

D. C. IRELAND, Editor. Fort Washakie.

One hundred and fifty miles from Green river is the government post of fort Washakie. The post is situated on the right bank of the little Wind river. It is named after the noble red man Washakie, chief of the Shoshone Indians, upon which circumstance the Boomerang discourses thus:

The name is a sweet perfumed, poetical thing, and reflects great credit upon the fertility of the brain that conceived the idea of calling a military post after a chivalrous Indian belonging to the knighthood of the Shoshones. As we viewed the handsome buildings and grounds surrounding the fort, our feelings were touched by sympathy and we gave way to tears. Our sobs were interrupted by a gentle pressure upon the shoulder, and upon looking up we beheld an aboriginal species of man, who had not arranged his afternoon toilet, and who was not dressed to see company. He confronted us with a ugh and an irregular looking mug, draped with gray hairs and a roosters feather. This personage was no less than Washakie, the name of which had caused us to shed copious volumes of tears.

There is still no change in the New York senatorial contest.

Another American horse, Foxhall, owned by Mr. James R. Keene, has won a big race and lots of money in Paris.

Disastrous storms are reported in the Northwest; also in Kansas, in southwestern Missouri, and in Pennsylvania and the east.

Jay Gould says he intends now to push his Granger branch of the Union Pacific through to Portland. When he gets to Portland he will assuredly find it essential to push on the coast of the Pacific.

Sitting Bulls Sioux having starved nearly to death, now intend to send several of their chiefs to Washington to apply for a stated reservation where they may live and die in peace, and without hardship.

Father Larocco, general of the dominican order of the entire world, accompanied by Lieutenant-General Carbery, arrived in New York on Saturday from Europe. Gen. Longstreet has also arrived in New York.

Billy the Kid, the famous desperado, has killed three herdsmen of Chesien, and sent word to the sheriff at Santa Fe that he was getting even. Patrick Garrett, sheriff of Lincoln county, has been on the kids trail since April 27th.

Mr. Depew, mentioned for the senatorship in New York, and for whom Senator Sessions tried to bribe votes, is said to be the best after dinner speaker in his circle. It was he who remarked, during the last campaign, that "some men are born great, and others are born in Ohio."

A postmaster whose name well accords with his steadfast career, is Edward Stable, of Sandy Springs, Maryland. He has held the office fifty-one years, under eighteen successive postmaster generals, and is still living in the house in which he was born, eighty-seven years ago.

The American mission is regarded as a post of exile and degradation, by English diplomatists. Sir Austen Layard having, in years gone by, offended Mr. Gladstone, is to be "punished by being sent to Washington." This is a curious state of affairs. We send to Great Britain our Motleys and our Lovells. In return we receive men who consider it a promotion to move hence to St. Petersburg, and a disgrace to move here from Madrid. In so far as it is one of personal prejudice and opinion the matter is trivial. Sir Edward Thornton has been kindly treated among us, and Sir Austen Layard would probably be kindly treated, too; but the one wants to go and the other objects to coming. The salary attached to the American ministership is small, too, so the usual financial object affected by Englishmen in the United States is wanting also. It seems to us that this sort of proceeding partakes more or less of the nature of an international insult. A little self-assertion for America—how would that do in the premises?

How can I tell whether my advertisement will attract or not? Try it.

Any person who takes a paper regularly from a postoffice, whether directed to his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for the pay.

An advertisement in a newspaper is worth forty "directors" cards and other foolish imitations. The paper is seen every day by hundreds, while the book is noticed by only a very few.

The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from a postoffice, or removing, and leaving them uncollected, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

If you are suddenly asked, "who among merchants have made the largest fortunes in the shortest time in legitimate business," will not your reply naturally be, "judicious advertisers?"

If a person orders his paper discontinued, he must first pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until it is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

A good point about advertising, in general, is that such announcements never offend. We never dislike that which appears to us for our good opinion, for the very act seems to say to us that our good opinion is valued.

It is a fact long since established, says the Helena Herald, that the merchant who liberally patronizes the advertising columns of the press, sets his wares cheaper than the one whose name is seldom or never seen. The reason is patent, for by thus advertising, his sales are trippled and a less proportionate profit makes him the greatest gainer.

A newspaper is a window through which men look out upon the world. Without a newspaper a man is shut up in a small room, and knows little or nothing of what is happening outside of himself. In our day the newspaper will keep a sensible man in sympathy with the world's current history. It is an up-to-date encyclopedia and handbook, forever issuing and never finished.

There is a quiet courtesy and modest modestness about a wise advertisement that create a certain responsive feeling of sympathy in the reader. We all like to be solicited, and it is natural to suppose that he who is not a dealer in anything, but who is a dealer in the hearts of his customers, stands the better chance for our trade. The familiar advertisements of local papers, often cover those points with great fact and ingenuity.

Skilled mechanical and professional labor is in abundance in this state. We can spare a whole army of clerks, salesmen, and mechanics, who are starting because they are not fitted, or will not labor in the field that offers them a living. Now is the time to invest in lands and to settle on them. Railroads are opening all over the state, and there is a fair showing of an increase in the value of land, no matter where located. Farmers are what we want, and not more tradesmen; agriculturists, not additional professors; tillers of the soil, and not an increased army of clerks. The country is healthy, both morally and physically, and there is value in land that is not affected by the rise and fall of stocks.
