DAILY ASTORIAN EXTRA

Attempt to Assassinate the President as he was Leaving the Cars in Washington

First Dispatch Reported Dying.

Second Dispatch not Necessarily Fatal.

ASTORIAN OFFICE,
Astoria, Oregon,
July 2d, 1881.

This (Saturday) morning at two o'clock, July 2d, 1881, as President Garfield was leaving the cars at the Baltimore and Ohio depot in Washington city, an unknown assassin fired two shots at him which took effect. The first dispatch says the President is dying.

The last dispatch states that Dr. Bliss, his physician, says that the wounds are not necessarily fatal.

There are all sorts of ugly rumors afloat in Washington, and elsewhere, as to the cause of this attempt to take the life of the President,—but at this writing (9 a.m.) it is impossible to obtain any definite information.

The country is wild with excitement over the unexpected and horrible event.

Afternoon Dispatch.

Full Particulars of the Attempted Assassination.

The Assassin Arrested, an Obscure Young Man, or an Ex-Minister.

Impossible to Predict the Result.

SPECIAL TO THE ASTORIAN.

PORTLAND, July 2.—President Garfield was walking arm in arm with Secretary Blaine, in the ladies waiting room of the depot, when two shots were fired. The first taking effect in the right arm, the second in the right hip near the kidneys, prostrating the President. The assassin's name is Dooty, an obscure young man, who was immediately arrested.

Dr. Bliss, surgeon-general of the army, and other physicians are in attendance.

President Garfield is lying in officers quarters at the depot.

LATER.

The wounds have been unsuccessfully probed. The President has been conveyed to the Whitehouse, under strong guard. Physicians are now holding a consultation. It is rumored that the assassin is the ex-consul to Marcellus, Gotta, who was recently removed. The weapon is a California bull-dog, of large calibre.

There is tremendous excitement all over the country.

LATEST.

The President is conscious, and does not complain of great suffering. He has just directed a telegram to his wife. It is impossible yet to predict the result, but it is thought the wound will not necessarily prove fatal.

LATEST DISPATCH.

The President Sinking.

Cannot Live More Than Twelve Hours.

(Special to ASTORIAN.)

WASHINGTON, July 2.—At 2:40 p. m.—The President is sinking. His physician thinks he cannot live more than twelve hours.

News—With Editorial Notes.

Mrs. Conkling is said to be a half breed. She does not want her husband to go back to Washington.

Mr. Blaine's health seems to be a great source of solicitude in certain quarters. But the secretary himself is not alarmingly concerned about it. He contemplates neither death nor resignation just at present.

Captain Payne, the chronic invader of Oklahoma, has a new organization on his hands, ready to move into the territory next fall. He is accommodating to inform the government of his movements beforehand, so that it may have no excuse for not arresting him when he gets down to the line.

It is a singular coincidence that all the candidates of the United States senate in Iowa, so far as heard from, are enthusiastically devoted to agricultural pursuits. There is Farmer Jim Wilson, for instance, and Farmer John Geer, and Farmer Kasson, who, at the call of his country, left his plow in the farrow at Vienna and came home. So many farmer-candidates were never known at the Grange before.

If the European powers are really negotiating a scheme to secure the neutrality of the Panama canal, as late advices from Vienna indicate, there will, sooner or later, arise an occasion for serious protest on the part of the United States. Such a piece of arrogant impudence ought, by good rights, to be rebuked before it comes to a head. In the meantime it would be well for Secretary Hunt to be taking stock of his naval resources.

There has been a general advance during the past year in the government securities of nearly all nations that have securities on the market, a special improvement being noted in those of the United States, Mexico, Costa Rica and several of the South American states. In railway stocks, the percentage of gain from May, 1879, to May, 1881, has also increased everywhere except in poor Ireland, the average value of American stocks having risen from 56 1/2 to 93 1/2.

There is another curious senatorial muddle in New Hampshire. Senator Rollins term expires in March, 1883. The legislature which should elect his successor is chosen in November, 1882, but does not meet until June, 1883—too late by three months. Question: Shall the legislature elected in 1880, and now in session, anticipate the vacancy and elect the senator? Or shall the state be left in a position to be deprived of one half its representation in the senate for three months? Senator Rollins, controlling the legislature of 1880-81, says: Elect now; Mr. William E. Chandler, expecting to control the legislature of 1882-83, says: Wait. The Supreme-court of the state decides with Rollins; Chandler appeals to the legislature; the legislature falls back upon the republican caucus. There the odds are on the side of Rollins.

While the poor Russian Empress sits frozen with fear in the winter palace at St. Petersburg, and all the monarchs of Europe are shivering, more or less, with apprehension, the happy Mikado of Japan has had his body-guard reduced to a mere fraction of its former strength. Probably no living monarch has shown such superlative good sense, tact, and power of adaptation to changing conditions as the Japanese Emperor. Fourteen years ago he abandoned the seclusion which custom had granted to royalty for twenty cycles, and came out into the light of day, a living reality to his subjects. Up to that time he was a divinity; his face was the Dragons visage, a sight of which was accounted fatal to human vision. Doors were kept closed while royalty went by; he was an influence rather than a visible presence. But being wise enough to perceive the growing necessities of the time, he materialized, and now goes to reviews, receptions, and inaugurations of public enterprises, like any other monarch, and apparently much more pleasantly than most other monarchs. Alexander could well learn of Mutsu Hito.

Fire Cracker Nuisance.

Last Fourth of July, one Moore, an American citizen, wanting to teach them blasted Englishmen a lesson in American courtesy and good manners let off a lot of sky-rockets at midnight. They sounded like the explosion of cannon, and so alarmed a nervous lady in the vicinity as to affect her health. She therefore brought suit for damages. The jury, doubtless having the good sense to believe that a serious verdict in her favor would be misinterpreted as a relic of international hostility, returned one for only a farthing damages. Her counsel moved for a new trial, said the verdict was against evidence, and the damages so utterly inadequate that the verdict was perverse, and amounted in a legal sense to misconduct. Chief-justice Coleridge refused to consider the motion, saying that it was for the jury to determine the damages, and the jury meant by its verdict that the case deserved dismissal. The lady's counsel continued to argue that letting off rockets at midnight was an unlawful act, causing annoyance to neighbors, and that the damages ought not to be ridiculous. He said he was afraid his Lordship was fond of rockets, but he was sure that if the shade of Washington had caught his enthusiastic countryman in the act of disturbing his neighbors peace, he would have sternly rebuked him. But the judge continued to think that the verdict expressed the sense of the jury that the damage was not serious, and with the concurrence of the rest of the bench declined to entertain the motion. We suppose that a similar verdict would be rendered on this side of the water, and yet we believe a jury could be packed, even in Oregon, that would agree to swinging damages against the firer-off of unconsidered rockets and crackers, even on the midnight of the Third of July.

Lieutenant Ray, of the Eighth Infantry, has been appointed by General Hazen, to establish a signal service station at Point-Barrow, the extreme northern point of Alaska. The only station now in Alaska is at Ounalska. The party will be composed of four signal service observers, a scientific observer, and five other persons, to be employed in various capacities. They will be absent five years. The Point-Barrow signal station is intended to be the counterpart of that of Lieut. Greeley at Lady Franklin bay, to the north of Greenland. The object of both is to make observations which may lead to the location of the north pole, to keep a record of the tides and winds, and at the Point-Barrow station, to settle, if possible, the question of the Japanese current, that those interested in Arctic exploration may use the data.

Peruviana Bitters.

—The Count Cincelona was the Spanish Viceroy in Peru in 1620. The Countess, his wife, was prostrated by an intermittent fever, from which she was freed by the use of the active remedy, the Peruviana Bitters, or, as it was called in the language of the country, "Quinquina." Grateful for her recovery, on her return to Europe in 1622, she introduced the remedy in Spain, where it was known under various names, and famous as called it Cincelona, in honor of the lady who had brought them that which was more prevalent than the cold of the times. To this day, after a lapse of two hundred and fifty years, science has given us nothing to take its place. It effectually cures a morbid appetite for stimulants, by restoring the natural tone of the stomach. It attacks excessive liver of liquor as it does a fever, and restores both alike. The powerful tonic virtue of the Cincelona is preserved in the Peruviana Bitters, which are an effective remedy for all diseases of the stomach and bowels, and for all ailments of the system. We guarantee the ingredients of these bitters to be absolutely pure, and of the best known quality. A trial will satisfy you that this is the best bitter in the world. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," and will willingly abide the test. For sale by all druggists, grocers and liquor dealers. Order it.

In the Whole History of Medicine

No preparation has ever performed such marvellous cures as maintained so wide a reputation, as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long-continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent in every case. Against ordinary colds, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in throat and chest disorders, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every household. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. From their kindly remarks, it is evident that effects, physicians use the Cherry Pectoral exclusively in their practice, and elegantly recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

A cough, cold or sore throat should be stopped. Suffering frequently results in an incurable lung disease or consumption. Brown's Bronchial Troches do not disorder the stomach like cough syrups and remedies, but act directly on the inflamed parts, allaying irritation, giving relief in asthma, bronchitis, coughs, croup, and the throat troubles which singers and public speakers are subjected to. For forty years Brown's bronchial troches have been recommended by physicians, and always give perfect satisfaction. Having been tested by wide and constant use for nearly an entire generation, they have attained well-deserved fame, and are the few staple remedies of the age. Sold at 25 cents a box everywhere.

The Peruvian syrup has cured those who were suffering from dyspepsia, indigestion, liver complaint, biliousness, female complaints, etc. Pamphlets free to any address. Seth W. Fowler & Sons, Boston.

—Mr. Davidson is displaying samples of some of the cabinet photographs which his branch gallery has already sold in Astoria. It is even better than the samples shown when he first opened here. Each original has received a double exposure, and every person who favors him with an order, Mr. D. advertises in the first place that he would send only in good work at reduced prices. He is a member of the Astoria people can testify that he has kept his word, and hundreds more will be able to say the same thing if present appearances signify anything.

Song of the Albany Beer!
Respectfully Dedicated to and Sent by CHAS. GRATKE, - - - - ASTORIA.

Good evening kind friends, just listen to me, And this is the advice he gave unto me, I will give you a story, and sing it out clear And the name of my song is the ALBANY BEER. You can find it all round in this city of gold, And the way that they make it has never been told. That's a secret they keep and hold very dear, For the whole country is drinking that ALBANY BEER.

The brewery is large and the machinery is fine, And this is the advice he gave unto me, They get all kinds of orders from far and near, And every one's healthy that drinks ALBANY BEER. For every thing there looks so clean and so neat, And their beer is so sparkling, it cannot be beat. If you are feeling bad or the blues do appear, You can drive them away by drinking ALBANY BEER.

I have an old father, who's now eighty-three, And this is the advice he gave unto me, "If you want to be healthy, drink ALBANY BEER." Since then I have done so, and I'm hearty and sound. At the round age of fifty I can always be found. At my daily labor before the sun does appear And each day and night I drink ALBANY BEER.

Also on draught, THE CELEBRATED BOCK BEER.
