THE RICH MAN IN POLITICS.

A representative of the Astor family is a Senator in the New York Legislature. Mr. Astor comes of what may be called a hereditary millionaire family. The original Astor emigrated from Germany to New York in 1783 and engaged in the fur trade, becoming ultimately the richest man in America. For a long time he was the sole millionaire of the country. He stood clearly against the horizon as a financial Colossus. He was surrounded by the most part by pecuniary pignions, who had no more at the outside than $100,000 to their names.

The Astors are now overtopped by many men who had little or nothing twenty or thirty years ago. But whether they will hold to their possessions with the same tenacity is another thing. The Astors have evidently been actuated by the ambition to found a family. Their wealth, constantly increasing, has been handed down from father to son. But the recent election of one of them to the New York Senate is the first political distinction won by a member of the family. Small as the political development may be, it is above that usually achieved by the scion of the millionaire house. Our institutions are not favorable to the elevation of rich men to high places in the state. This tendency is the result of a variety of causes. There is a sort of moral communism which operates as a bar to the advancement of the man, notorious, principally, for his wealth. He is envied by so many people, perhaps, of small minds, who are not quite so well off, that he rarely can be popular in a political sense. Besides, for him, politics would be a costly affair. The rapacity of political "strickers" knows no bounds. They require ten or twenty times as much from the millionaire as they would expect from the ordinary run of candidates.

It is because of these facts that so few rich men act directly on our politics. There is not much danger to be apprehended to republican institutions from a plutocracy. The man of wealth can scarcely be said to have any retainers, but those who are moved by the most selfish motives. The aristocracies of the Old World had largely command of men. It is for this reason that without them the monarchical form cannot be maintained. But it does not follow for this reason that millionaires are devoid of all political power. If they cannot easily be made Governors, Senators or members of Congress, they can, if they are disposed, often manage to control these officials. They have, in many cases, the strings of real power in their hands. But as already stated, it is a power upon which there are some very sharp limitations. In some cases it must be admitted that the rule does not work well. There are many rich men who would be a great benefit to the Government. They have the leisure to give to their public functions, and they are above, at least, vulgar temptation. —Bulletin.

German Ocean Once Dry Land.

The German ocean, or North sea, like the English channel, was once an inland plain or valley raised far above the sea level. The sea has but recently invaded this depressed plain, submerged its forests, and superceded its river courses. The buried trees of its sunk forests are still standing, rooted in their own vegetable soil, although beneath the waves. Cromer forest, which dips into the waters from the coast of Norfolk is the most famous of the submerged forests of the German ocean. This ancient woodland has been traced at low tide for more than forty miles. At certain seasons, and especially after great storms, the stumps of oak, alder, yew and Scotch fir are seen standing upright in the water. The condition of the wood and of the fir cones (some of the latter obviously bitten by animals) tells us that the sinking of the land here occurred at no distant period in the physical history of our country. The remains of land animals, too, as well as of the forests they inhabited, are discovered in the bed of the German ocean. In his "Physical Geography of Norfolk," Mr. Woodard tells us that in less than fifteen years the fishermen of the village of Happisburgh dredged from their oyster beds as many as two thousand teeth of mammoths. Bones and tusks of mammoths have also been fished up from these watery depths. It takes us back to the time when the European mainland stretched far westward in one unbroken area, beyond the present coast of Ireland.

Garfield's Ambition.

Gen. Garfield is said by his intimates to have always looked far into the future. A year ago, in conversation with Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, he said: "It is possible that I shall be elected President. If I am I will come out of that office before I am 54 years of age about the most useless man in America—an ex-President." It was suggested to him that he might be elected to a second term. "Suppose I am," he continued, "then I will come out of the office before I am 58 years old strong in physical and mental health, with nothing to engage me, for what a useless piece of timber an ex-President is. I have one piece of ambition. I began my life teaching school, and I would like to end it instructing the young. The great state of Ohio has no university worthy of her, and if I survive my term or terms of office, I would like to devote the remaining years of my life to building up such a university. I know of no nobler work in which any man can engage."

Proving Her Love.

Do you love your Birdie as much now as you did last Thursday?

It was a beautiful girl who spoke these words as she leaned her head trustingly on the shoulder of a young man whose strong right arm encircled her corset.

"Your heart must tell you that I do, my sweet," he murmured folding her closely to his breast.

Juliet Mahaffy and George W. Simpson had plighted their troth months ago in the festal Christmas-tide, when the earth was wrapped in a mantle of snowy whiteness, and the moon looked down, cold and beautiful, on the thronged oyster saloons. It was now July. The snow had given way to the violet and the oyster to the ice-cream. But Juliet's love never wavered. She had for George a calm but intense affection that buried all else in its wondrous depths. "A true woman never loves but once, and you are my idol," she had said to him one night after he had told her that her bustle was coming loose. From that moment each understood the other perfectly.

"But, Georgie dear," said the girl again, "if you love me with a really and truly love, kiss me again."

A shudder passed over the young man's frame, and he changed the subject of conversation. But the girl would not listen. "You must kiss me," she said "or you do not love me."

Turning ghastly pale in the dim half light of the turned-down gas, he averted his head and said in a low, choked voice, "I cannot kiss you."

"Cannot?" shrieked the girl in agony of grief, clinging to him with the energy of despair, while a deathly pallor overspread her cheek. "Tell me, Georgie," tell me truly, what has come between us?"

For an instant there was silence, and then George W. Simpson said in low, bitter tones, every word falling upon Juliet's waiting ears with terrible distinctness: "I am chewing plug tobacco."

Two minutes later Juliet came into the room kicking something along the floor in front of her.

It was a cuspidor.

She had proven her love.—"Short Stories," by Rosee Conkling.

The force of will is a potent element in determining longevity. This single point must be granted without argument, that of two men, every way alike and similarly circumstanced, the one who has the greater courage and grit will be the longer-lived. One does not need to practice medicine long to learn that men die who might just as well live if they resolved to live, and that myriads who are invalids could become strong if they had the native or acquired will to vow they would do so. Those who have no other quality favorable to life, whose bodily organs are nearly all diseased, to whom each day is a day of pain, who are beset by life-shortening influences, yet do live by will alone.

The term "Gotham" was first applied to New York city in "Salomagdani" (a humorous work by Washington Irving, William Irving and James K. Paulding,) because the inhabitants were such wise acers.

The selection of Friday as "hanging day" probably was due to the superstition that Friday is an unlucky day and the fact that the most unlucky thing that can possibly happen to a man is to be hung.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere. 25 cents a bottle.

Peruviana Bitters.

Cinchona Bitter.

The Count Cinchon was the Spanish Viceroy in Peru in 1630. The Countess, his wife, was prostrated by an intermittent fever, from which she was freed by the use of the native remedy, the Peruvian bark, or, as it was called in the language of the country, "Quinquina." Grateful for her recovery, on her return to Europe in 1632, she introduced the remedy in Spain, where it was known under various names, until Linnaeus called it Cinchona, in honor of the lady who had brought them that which was more precious than the gold of the Incas. To this day, after a lapse of two hundred and fifty years, science has given us nothing to take its place. It effectually cures a morbid appetite for stimulants, by restoring the natural tone of the stomach. It attacks excessive love of liquor as it does a fever, and destroys both alike. The powerful tonic virtue of the Cinchona is preserved in the Peruviana Bitters, which are as effective against malarial fever to-day as they were in the days of the old Spanish Viceroy. We guarantee the ingredients of these bitters to be absolutely pure, and of the best known quality. A trial will satisfy you that this is the best bitter in the world. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," and we willingly abide this test. For sale by all druggists, grocers and liquor dealers. Order it.

IRITATION OF THE SCALP.

An Authentic Testimony.

Gentlemen.—For five years I have been greatly troubled with dandruff, with a severe itching of the scalp, and my hair falling out. I have tried almost every known remedy, all proving worthless. Seeing BRUNETT'S OINTMENT and BURNETT'S KALLISTOX advertised, I procured a bottle of each, and am happy to state that the dandruff is completely removed, and no itching whatever remains. J. E. CAVEN, Kansas City, Mo.

BURNETT'S FLAVORING EXTRACTS are the best.

—Whips, curry-combs, brushes; new stock; first class goods, cheap for cash.

—Fresh land of their own manufacture, at Warren & Eaton's.

—Hot, cold, and shower baths at the Occident hair dressing saloon, twenty-five cents.

—Dr. Lockhart, medical and surgical diseases of women. Rooms over City Book Store.

—Vinegar of the very best quality can be had of Max Wagner, in any quantity at 20 cents per gallon.

—Max Wagner has had his place repainted, and it is now more attractive than ever. Stop as you go by.

—Mr. John Rogers of the Central Market, has made arrangements to keep all the finest fresh fish, etc. in their season.

—The New Testament authorized edition revised, for twenty-five cents at Charles Stevens and Sons City Book Store.

—A splendid lot of Eastern Oysters just received by the State of California at Tom Smith's Oyster Saloon, Main Street.

—Warren & Eaton have moved to the corner of Hamilton and Chenamus streets, in the building formerly occupied by Trenchard & Usher.

—P. J. Goodman, on Chenamus street, has just received the latest and most fashionable style of gents and ladies boots, shoes, etc.

—If you want the best of fruit and vegetables, fresh every day, call at T. G. Rawling's fruit store, Main street, opposite Locks.

—A fine assortment of little boy's turbans and winter caps, the latest styles, just received at M. D. Kant's merchant tailor establishment. Don't fail to get one for your boy.

—As a mild, but effective laxative, as a safe but sure tonic, blood purifier and general strengthener, use King of the Blood. See advertisement.

—Chas. Stevens and Son have a stock of mouldings and moulders tools which can be bought cheap for cash to clear out that branch of the business.

—For the genuine J. H. Cutler old Bourbon, and the best of wines, liquors and San Francisco beer, call at the Gem, opposite the bell tower, and see Campbell.

—These hats and caps for little fellows are selling rapidly at M. D. Kant's merchant tailor establishment; no wonder, though, they are new and nobby styles and very cheap.

To Live Men.

THE ASTORIAN has now reached a circulation which places it at the head of the list of Oregon dailies, and insures to advertisers thereof more benefit for the amount paid than can be secured elsewhere. To those who wish to reach the largest number of readers at the smallest expense, we offer the columns of an attractive daily, the success of which from the very start has been far beyond the expectations of the most sanguine.

Willamport Property.

Great bargains are now offered in the city of Willamport for any persons wishing to locate from one lot to five acres. It is well adapted for gardens, dairy ranches or pleasant homes; well elevated, situated one mile south of Astoria on Youngs bay, with a good graded road to the place. For further information call at my residence near the cemetery. JOHN WILLIAMSON.

Various Causes.

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. AYRES HAIR VIGOR will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It regulates and cures dandruff and humors, by its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its operation, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts. It contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil or color white combings; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous.
